'Kid's Climb,' Children's Tales, Corn Maze Await

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — More so than in the past, Penn State is gearing its annual showcase of agriculture to everyone in the family.

"From the Ground Up: Building a Better Environment" is the theme for this year's Ag Progress Days, Aug. 14-16, with plenty of family events.

Sponsored by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. the event is conducted at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rockspring, nine miles southwest of State College on Rt. 45.

In his welcoming address, Robert D. Steele, Dean, Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences, wrote that he is "very excited to welcome you to Ag Progress Days 2001."

In the letter, Steele noted, "New this year is the 'Kid's Climb,' where the daring can ascend to the treetops and discover what it's like to be an arborist.

"Some of our most popular features are back for your enjoyment. The corn maze and largest weed contest await you, as do the lovely flower gardens. The Family Learning Hub, ImAGination Station, Shavers Creek and the Farm Animal Learning Center continue to offer great fun, great information, and a place to relax with your family.

"Our storyteller will weave magic tales, and the horse exhibitions promise to be as exciting as ever. Don't forget to visit to the Pasto Agricultural Museum to see their special exhibit and take part in the second annual silent auction. And throughout the show, you'll find food booths offering wonderful treats from ice cream to steak sandwiches."

Today, according to the college dean, "wrestling with complex issues is the name of the game for all of us. Profitability, environmental protection, biotechnology, globalization, SAYLORSBURG (Monroe Co.) — For those interested in viewing the new equipment available to the agricultural industry, Ag Progress Days and the dealer display at county fairs are a priority stop on their summer schedule. Most often the crowds are gathered around the largest pieces of equipment.

Now there is an event that is geared toward the small farm owner and individuals interested in living in the country.

At a joint press conference Tuesday, Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. and New Jersey Agriculture Secretary Arthur R. Brown Jr. endorsed the first-ever Northeast Small Farm and Rural Living Expo scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 22 and Sunday,

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
August 8, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

Wheat bids were mixed but corn and soybeans closed moderately higher follow by weather concerns and a higher soybean market. Wheat bids 3 cents lower to 5 cents higher. Corn 2 to 3 cents higher. Sorghum 3 cents higher. Soybean bids 2 to 6 cents higher, with Minneapolis up much as 10 cents.

Wheat bids were mostly higher after reductions in crop rating for spring wheat. Global supply picture continue to look supportive, but lack of export interest is pressuring wheat market. Corn prices were slightly higher as weather continue to be a market factor this week. Soybeans bids also support by weather and potential for yield losses with hot and dry condition persisting.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

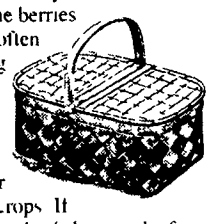
NEW MOON, AUG. 18

RAISING CANE

Now is the time to cut back raspberry canes that have already borne fruit, but leave the fall-bearing varieties alone. Let the strawberry runners go wild, taming them only to keep them out of the way. Seek out wild blueberries, and remember that the berries that face the sun are bluest and often the sweetest. If you're growing your own blueberries, give them a loose, acid soil and a fall mulch of oak leaves, pine needles, or sawdust. Try some loganberries, boysenberries, or tayberries for hardier, cool-area crops. If berries don't grow well in your neck of the woods, fear not the frozen berry, which cooks up well in a pie, cobbler, or muffin, great for family reunions or any picnic.



Earth's crammed with heaven, And every common bush afire with God.

–Elizabeth Barrett Browning (1806–1861)

TIP OF THE WEEK

Pick blueberries by gently grasping the berries from underneath and coaxing them into your bucket.

WILD BLUEBERRY SMOOTHIE

6 ounces small wild blueberries
6 ounces yogurt (vanilla or blueberry)
1 tablespoon honey
3 or 4 ice cubes
sprig of mint (optional)

Pick over berries, removing any stems or leaves. Frozen berries can be used, if fresh are not available, but be sure to use the small ones—not the tougher-skinned, cultivated berries. Blend berries, yogurt, honey, and ice at high speed. Serve immediately. Garnish with mint if desired, or by dropping a berry or two on top.

OPINION

Signs Of Recovery?

Late last month the Equipment Manufacturers Institute (EMI) released its "State of the Ag Industry Mid-Year Outlook," a forecast for retail sales of farm equipment.

EMI paints a positive picture for 2002, which, according to the institute, looks "promising in most of the farm equipment categories."

According to the outlook, U.S. retail sales forecast for all two- and four-wheel-drive farm tractors in 2001 will show a slight increase in sales of 0.9 percent compared to actual sales for 2000. Sales predictions for 2002 show a 3.9 percent increase compared to the 2001 forecast.

Leading the way in tractor sales for 2001 are four-wheel-drive tractors (all sizes), which forecast an 11.6 percent increase over 2000. However, the forecast for 2002 is not as favorable, according to EMI, as manufacturers predict a 2 percent decease in sales.

Leading the two-wheel-dive farm tractors in sales for 2001 are those ranging from 40-100 hp with a 1 percent increase over 2000, followed by an even stronger sales prediction for the next year of 5.5 percent.

We find that economic times can be improving, apparently, for smaller tractor manufacturers, garden tractors, with a huge horticultural and landscaping industry demand. Small landscaping firms are sprouting up all over the place, and business seems brisk (despite a nagging drought here in southeast Pennsylvania).

And for the general farm economy, EMI's report is good news.

Additional good news comes from EMI regarding self-propelled combines, round balers, planters, mower-conditioners, windrowers/swathers, farm loaders, and air seeders/air drills. However, EMI expects demand for rectangular balers, disk harrows, forage harvesters, and manure spreaders to be down into next year.

Demand is expected to improve for chisel plows and field cultivators for 2002.

Data were collected from 47 farm field and farmstead type equipment EMI member companies. For more information, contact EMI at (312) 321-1470 or through the Internet at www.emi.org.

To Care For Next Year's Strawberry Crop

Late August and Early September is when strawberries set their fruit buds for next year's crop. In the conventional production system, they also produce additional runners during this period as well. There are several steps you can take to maximize the potential of next year's crop.

First, you need be irrigating to relieve the drought stress on the plants. If water is short through this dry weather, you may be tempted to skip the strawberries, since there is no fruit in the field at this time.

This would be a serious mistake and will reduce the potential of next year's crop. Irrigation will relieve the water stress, which will put the plants in a good condition to produce fruit buds.

The other step you should take now is the second application of nitrogen. You should have fertilized with around 40 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre in early July at renovation. If you did that, you should now add an additional 20 pounds of nitrogen per acre to give the plants another boost. If you did not fertilize at renovation, then add 40 pounds of nitrogen per acre now.

If the current dry weather persists, continue to irrigate through September. When the temperatures drop in the fall, strawberries resume vigorous growth and it is important to remove the water stress to enable the plants to produce next year's buds and runners.

To Visit The Pasto Agricultural Museum At Ag Progress Days

"Six Thousand Years of Small Grains" will be the featured theme at the Pasto Agricultural Museum during Penn State's Ag Progress Days Aug. 14-16.

Visitors can see historic grain production items used for soil preparation, sowing, harvesting/handling, threshing, power, cleaning and grain handling.

The collection begins with a 6,000-year-old clay sickle and concludes with a horse-drawn binder and photographs of horse-drawn combines, according to Darwin Braund, museum curator. The latter items are representative of those that closed the human- and animal-power era in most of the U.S. by the 1940s.

"For centuries, the harvesting and threshing of small grains required more labor than growing them," said Braund. "Thus, much attention was paid to improving the harvest. It was the most important event on Earth every year."

In the earliest days, the heads of grain were handpicked from each stalk, and then threshed by rubbing them between the hands, explained Braund. A flint stone with a sharp edge was the earliest mechanized cutter. Clay sickles were made in areas with no stones.

Sickles made of bronze, an alloy of copper and tin, followed the clay models. They in turn were replaced when the Iron Age made sharper blades possible. New designs of the tools improved efficiency in their use.

"A large timeline on the museum wall will cover the 6,000 years and describe the concurrent developments in harvesting and threshing small grains," said Braund. "Visitors will see a self-raking reaper (1830s) and grain binder (1930s) operating in the museum, as well as a horse-tread-powered threshing machine (1870s)."

To Support The Pasto Agricultural Museum's Silent Auction

The second silent auction to support Penn State's Pasto Agricultural Museum will be conducted during Ag Progress Days, Aug. 14-15.

The auction will help generate funds to preserve our rich heritage of agriculture and rural living. Proceeds will benefit the Penn State Ag Alumni Endowment for the Pasto Agricultural Museum. More than 100 items, from a baby llama to a new John Deere lawn tractor, have been donated, according to Darwin Braund, museum curator. "Buyers will find items to meet practically any interest, need, and checking account," he said.

Items include antique hand tools and furniture, newer and antique model tractors, a year's supply of Penn State Creamery ice cream, meats from the University Meats Lab, and gift certificates for tools, dinners, perennial plants, seed corn, and shoes.

Farm production items include bull semen, one ton of Agway calf feed, tires for a farm wagon and skid-steer loader, a galvanized farm gate, fence wire, dry cow treatments for mastitis, a barn ventilation fan, a 6-foot diameter stock-watering tank, alfalfa and corn seed, and a four-year subscription to Lancaster Farming.

Donations for fun and recreation include Penn State football tickets, Nittany Valley Symphony tickets, a full day of fly fishing on the world-famous Spruce Creek trout stream in Huntingdon County and a major league baseball and baseball card, both signed by Bellefonte native Eric Milton, starting pitcher for the Minnesota Twins.

So you can see everyone should be able to find something of interest at the silent auction. While at Ag Progress Days, stop by the museum, enjoy the exhibits, and bid on an item of interest.

❖ FARM FORUM ❖

Editor:

Maryland poultry growers and poultry companies continue their fight against "co-permitting" by filing requests with the Maryland Department of the Environment for contested case hearings.

By meeting the Aug. 8 filing deadline, growers and companies are seeking a review of co-permitting by the Maryland Office of Administrative Hearings.

This is the first step in a legal challenge to the new poultry company wastewater discharge permits that make Maryland's three poultry companies responsible for some of the environmental practices of farm families that grow their chickens.

As proposed by the Maryland Department of the Environment, the three poultry companies, through their wastewater

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

GOOD NEWS AND BAD NEWS

Background Scripture:
Isaiah 7; 2 Kings 16;
2 Chronicles 28.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 33:4-12.

This passage from Isaiah needs a cast of characters and some textual notes. Remember that on the death of King Solomon, the nation of Saul, David, and Solomon broke into two: Israel, the larger kingdom in the north, and Judah, the smaller kingdom in the south. In the times described in Isaiah 7, 2 Kings 16 and 2 Chronicles 28, Ahaz (not to be confused with Ahab) is King of Judah and Remaliah is king of Israel. Ahaz is the grandson of King Uzziah who reigned in Judah at the time when Isaiah received his prophetic call (Is. 6). The ruling house of Judah is called "the House of David" and "Ephraim" is a name that is sometimes used for Israel.

Now that we have that sorted, let's see what is happening.

Israel, under the leadership of Pekah, son of King Remaliah, and Syria, under the leadership of Syrian King Rezin, have attacked Jerusalem, the capital of Judah ,and have been repulsed. We must assume that the leaders of Judah did not at first realize that the Israelites (Ephraim) were in league with the powerful Syrians, for when that has become common knowledge, even though Judah has successfully repulsed their attack, both King Ahaz and his people are paralyzed with fear!

That's amazing, isn't it? After they were successful in defending themselves, then they became afraid. But it happens sometimes, like Peter obeying Christ's commands to walk on the waters of the Sea of Galilee. But when he looks down and realizes what he is doing, then he becomes afraid and begins to sink! I have also read historical accounts in which, while in battle, soldiers seemed to perform without fear, but, when it was all over, suddenly fell apart. In a somewhat less dramatic manner we know there are times in our lives when, after God has demonstrated his love for us, we are strangely susceptible to fear.

Do Not Fear

So God sends the Prophet Isaiah to King Ahaz to reassure him that God will not let Rezin and Pekah and the allied armies of Syria and Israel prevail of Judah: "Take heed, be quiet, do not fear, and do not let your heart be faint because of these two smoldering stumps of firebrands . . . It shall not stand, and it shall not come to pass" (7:7).

You can't get a much better guarantee from the Lord that what you fear will absolutely not happen. I know that, if I were facing some tragedy in my life and I got a message from God, saying " . . . it shall not come to pass," I would definitely believe it — no matter how fearful I might be.

King Ahaz, however, cannot bring himself to believe it, so Isaiah says to him, "Ask a sign of the Lord your God; let it be deep as Sheol or high as heaven." In other words, don't hesitate to ask for something tremendous. "But Ahaz said, 'I will not ask, and I will not put the Lord to the test'" (7:10,11).

The first time I read these words of Ahaz, I thought to myself, he said the right thing. We're not supposed to put God to the test, to insist that he jump through hoops for us. Isn't that what Jesus told "the tempter"? " . . . it is written, 'you shall not tempt the Lord your God'" (Mt. 4:7). It sounds as if Ahaz is responding with orthodox theology.

Ahaz, however, although he replied to the challenge with sound theology, was probably just using it as an excuse to refrain from trusting the Lord. When we read more of Ahaz, as scholar R.B.Y. Scott puts it, we realize "his idolatry, fearfulness, unbelief, and disobedience to the divine word." His fine-sounding reason was simply a cover for his lack of faith and trust. This is why, then, Isaiah responds so vehemently, "Is it too little for you to weary men, that you weary my God also?" (7:13). Ahaz exhausts the patience of both God and men with his insipid faith.

Take My Word For It

That's when Isaiah delivers both the good news and the bad news of God. The Good News: since Ahaz will not designate a sign, God will give him a very simple one — a young woman bearing a son and calling him Immanuel, a name that means "God with us." This is the promise of the Lord, that he will be with Judah despite the disbelief of the king and some of his subjects.

Both Syria and Israel will suffer: "For before the child knows how to refuse the evil and choose the good, the land before who two kings you are in dread will be deserted. Terrible consequences will fall upon these two evil rulers."

Now, the bad news: because Ahaz was so disbelieving, grave consequences will be suffered by Judah also. "In that day every place where there used to be a thousand vines, worth a thousand shekels of silver, will become briars and thorns" (7:23). Faithlessness has its consequences, in the lives of nations and in our lives as well.

"My only regret is that I wish I had made the pit under the barn deeper."

"In my previous barn, I scraped two times a day, and I was tired of it, not to mention the danger to the cows if a cable snapped. I thought I would not be able to justify the additional cost until my builder suggested a design change which brought the cost down relatively close to the original design.

The biggest benefit to me is the labor savings. Two people can handle all the chores for our herd. I save money not only on labor but also on repairs.

The cows' hooves are healthier, and they show heat better because they are not afraid of slipping. During the five years with slats, I have not lost a single heifer from slipping. The cows stay much cleaner, even with my misting system for cooling them. The water has a place to escape."
- Raymond Good
Good's Dairy Farm

Congratulations, Raymond, for enjoying the benefits of slats

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State

Aug. 3, 2001

Cheese Production Grows

- American cheese production down just 0.2 percent.
- Production of high fat dairy products down.
- July Federal order class prices announced.

USDA released the Dairy Products report for June 2001. The results show cheese and butter production gained relative to year ago levels. Production of other high fat dairy products, however, slipped.

Recall that June milk production was down 0.5 percent relative to a year ago. Butter production in June was 88.125 million pounds, down just 1.1 percent relative to a year ago. American cheese production in June was 307.844 million pounds, down just 0.2 percent from a year ago. That decline is right in line with the growth rate for milk production.

American cheese production could put downward pressure on the Class III futures prices, particularly in the outer months of September-December. The production of other cheeses was mixed. Mozzarella production was up 0.9 percent in June, but was offset by a drop of 11.5 percent of other Italian cheeses. Cream cheese and Neufchatel production, which uses a lot of expensive cream, was down 13.4 percent. Cream cheese prices at retail likely haven't risen fast enough to pay the high cost of butterfat.

Dry whole milk, another user of butterfat, fell 77.2 percent in June relative to a year ago. And ice cream production (regular) fell 4.4 percent in June relative to a year ago.

The ice cream industry is concerned that they can't pass on the high cost of butterfat to retail customers. Thus the laws of supply and demand are at work: butterfat is being rationed to alternative dairy uses.

USDA announced the federal order class prices for July 2001. The Class II price was $15.96 per CWT (down $0.09 from the prior month), Class III was $15.46 per CWT (up $0.44 from the prior month), and Class IV was $14.81 per CWT (down $0.52 from the prior month). The Class III price rose because of a higher NASS cheese price, and the Class IV price fell because of a lower NASS market price for nonfat dry milk.

Product price averages used in computing these prices were: butter $1.9094, nonfat dry milk $0.9634, cheese $1.6573, and dry whey $0.2862.

For those interested in class and blend price forecasts for the Northeast Federal Order 1, see my weekly updates at my website: http://dairyoutlook.aers.psu.edu/Northeast/QuarterlyOutlook/NortheastFore.htm.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
August 8, 2001
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 2.5665-2.6849; Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 2.5467-2.7244 mostly 2.5665-2.6652.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, DOLLARS PER LB. WET SOLIDS, F.O.B. PRODUCING PLANTS: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: 1.0500-1.1400; Class III - spot prices - .9400-.1.0300.

The following are the July 2001 Class and component prices under the Federal Milk Order pricing system: Class II $15.96 (down $.09 from June), Class III $15.46 (up $.44); and Class IV $14.81 (down $.52). The following are product price averages used in computing Class prices: butter $1.9094, NDM $0.9634, cheese $1.6573, and dry whey $.2842. The Class II butterfat price is $2.1953 and the Class III/IV butterfat price is $2.1883.

Hot weather continues to plague the East. Record high temperatures are being record in most of the Northeast. Cow comfort is a big issue and milk production is falling in all areas of the region. Along with the falling output, fat and protein tests (yields) are lower. The hot weather is also causing some plant efficiency problems. Fluid milk supplies are lighter, but the generally slow bottled milk sales are keeping surplus milk volumes fairly steady. More Southeastern schools are reopening next week and bottlers are ordering more milk. Handlers are pulling more milk in from Northern states. Florida's imports are not taking too much milk this week, but volumes are expected to jump next week when school lunch bottling "kicks in." So far, milk shipments into the Southeast are coming from New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Michigan, and Iowa.

The condensed skim market is unchanged, but prices for Class III continue to inch higher at the low end of the range. Demand for wet solids is good, particularly from cheese makers trying to improve their yields and output. However, as wet solids' prices move higher, some users are looking to NDM as a less expensive source of solids.

The fluid cream market is little changed. Demand is good, but offerings are heavier than some might expect when milk supplies are tightening. Reports indicate that quite a few loads of Eastern cream are moving to butter makers in the Midwest. Eastern butter makers are less eager to churn and build inventories at current butter prices. Most are using their inventories to fill retail orders. More often, these butter makers are selling their own cream on the spot market if they can. Spot prices are generally higher as the average price of butter at the CME increased more than two cents last week. Ice cream production is steady at seasonally heavy levels. The high cost of butterfat is still a big concern to most mix and ice cream makers.

Cream cheese production is steady to a little heavier. Some producers are buying some extra loads of cream this week. Bottled cream sale are fair to good as UHT plants are taking in a little more cream this week.

Agriculture Counts

By Marc Tosiano
Pa. State Statistician

SEE YOU AT AG PROGRESS DAYS

Editor's Note: This is a monthly column from the Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service (PASS), a field office of USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA). The Website is www.usda.gov/nass/.

If you are attending Ag Progress Days, please stop by our booth in the Conservation Education Tent. I will be there all three days to provide information and discuss the use of NASS statistics.

Some of the handouts available will include aides for teachers and home schoolers, state and county ag profiles and rankings, Internet access, free e-mail subscriptions, and samples of reports from NASS and the Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service.

Aquaculture

The fish count is in! We recently released the results of the first annual aquaculture census sponsored by the PDA.

This PDA aquaculture census is planned to count production and sales for those years that are not counted by a USDA Aquaculture census.

For 2000, Pennsylvania producers of aquaculture products reported sales totaling $8.4 million from 70 operations statewide. Only those with more than $1,000 in gross receipts were included in the summary.

Sales of food fish comprised 80 percent of the total sales with the remainder of the sales made up of sport and game fish, baitfish, crustaceans, mollusks, ornamental fish, and other animal aquaculture (tadpoles and frogs).

There were $4.8 million from trout sales, which is about 58 percent of total aquaculture sales in Pennsylvania. This ranks Pennsylvania as the fourth largest state for trout sales behind Idaho with $38.1 million, North Carolina with $5.2 million, and California with $5 million. The fifth largest trout producer is Washington with $3 million.

Tobacco

In my May article, I discussed the upcoming June acreage survey.

The resulting acreage report was issued June 29 with acreage for many crops across the nation. The Pennsylvania tobacco statistics were most interesting.

Our combined Pennsylvania-type and Maryland-type acreage showed a large decline from 5,100 acres last year to 2,900 acres in 2001. This is 43 percent decrease in one year. However, these statistics do not include Vector tobacco.

Crop Forecasts

Last month I discussed NASS yield forecast statistics.

Here are the latest results for Pennsylvania.

As of July 1, oat yield is expected to be 57 bushels, winter wheat 51 bushels, and barley 65 bushels per acre. After combining these yield forecasts with acreage statistics from the June Acreage Survey, production for all three of these small grain crops is expected to be smaller than last year.

The peach and potato crops are expected to exceed last year's production, based on July forecasts. Despite declining acreage because of the plum pox virus, peach production is expected to be 8 percent more than last year. Tart cherry production is forecast to be 25 percent less than last year.

However, sweet cherry production is expected to be 10 percent more than the 2000 crop.

All these yield forecasts assume normal growing conditions for the remainder of the season.

Sweet corn for fresh market is showing a 5 percent increase in harvested acres compared to last year. Processors have contracted less acreage for both snap beans and sweet corn this year compared to last.

Fresh Produce Study

On June 13, NASS published the first "Fruit and Vegetable Agricultural Practices" report describing the U.S. fresh produce industry. This 180-page report shows detailed information on practices related to field environment, agriculture water, organic fertilizers, harvest operations, workers, facility and field packing, and traceback systems.

This survey was developed in response to a 1997 Presidential Initiative related to the safety of fresh fruit and vegetables. The report can be found at www.usda.gov/nass/. Use the "search" button to find the report in the June 2001 calendar on the search screen.

Thank you to those of you that completed any of our surveys. Your help is essential to "Agriculture Counts."

Milk Marketing Board Announces July Class I Price

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Milk Marketing Board (MMB) announced the prices to be paid for Pennsylvania Class I milk (beverage) for July as an average of $19.09 in the western areas of the Commonwealth, and an average of $19.58 in the central and eastern areas of the Commonwealth. However, the price received by an individual dairy farmer will vary as the component composition of a farm's milk differs from the established benchmarks of 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids.

These prices include the current MMB mandated over-order premium of $1.10 per hundred pounds of milk and the fuel adjustment premium of $.25 per hundred pounds of milk.

Since 1988, the MMB has mandated over-order premiums on Class I milk due to adverse conditions affecting the Pennsylvania dairy farmer.

Senate Adopts Smaller Farm Emerging Aid

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Senate, led by Majority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., and Agriculture Committee Chairman Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, was thwarted in its effort to adopt emergency farm assistance that would have provided almost $2 billion more to struggling American farmers and ranchers while being in full compliance with the federal budget.

As the House of Representatives recessed Thursday night for the month-long August break, delay tactics by Republican Senators and a threat by President Bush to veto additional assistance to hard-pressed farmers forced the Senate to approve the smaller economic assistance package.

"I am extremely disappointed that President Bush opposed the additional assistance to farmers," said Leland Swenson, president of the National Farmers Union. "Rural America has been struggling for four years with low commodity prices. To deny the much needed $7.4 billion in assistance to farmers, on the heels of giving $1.3 trillion in tax breaks to the wealthy and $33 billion in tax incentives to the energy industry, does not make sense."

The attempts to improve the assistance ended when the House adjourned for the recess, which would have meant Congress could not get the much-needed package enacted in time to meet Congressional budget rules. The Senate Agriculture Committee, earlier this week, approved the $7.4 billion package sponsored by Harkin, which provided $1.9 billion more in assistance. The House had earlier adopted a $5.5 billion package that provides 85 percent of the emergency assistance farmers received last year.

Lancaster 4-H Roundup Selects Beef Champions

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Last week was a hectic one for 4-H exhibitors at a variety of roundup contests conducted by Lancaster 4-H here at the Solanco Fairgrounds.

Sarah Nolt, 15, won grand champion steer at the roundup. Sarah, 15, is the daughter of Gene and Charlene Nolt, New Holland.

A sophomore at Garden Spot High School, Sarah exhibited the light heavyweight champion, weighing 1,258 pounds. Sarah nicknamed the Maine Anjou/Angus steer "Titus" after the TV show.

This was Sarah's second roundup championship. She won in 1997, she said, and plans to exhibit at either Ephrata or New Holland fairs and at Keystone International Livestock Expo (KILE) and Farm Show.

Ryan Donough, 17, son of Ed and LaRue Donough, Manheim, won reserve champion of the beef show with an Angus/Maine Anjou crossbred. The crossbred is nicknamed "Cletus," said Ryan, because it "sounded good."

Ryan, a senior at Manheim Central High School, exhibited the light heavyweight reserve champion, at 1,244 pounds.

Ryan won reserve twice before at the roundup. He'll be showing steers at Manheim Farm Show and other livestock at Elizabethtown, Denver, Ephrata, and New Holland fairs.

Wool Forum Will Address Domestic, International Marketing

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — An American Sheep Industry Wool Forum will provide participants information on domestic and international marketing of American wool, as well as an opportunity for input into wool marketing programs.

The forum is being sponsored by the American Sheep Industry Association's (ASI) American Wool Council and will be held in Denver, Colo., Aug. 16-17, 2001.

The international session on Aug. 16 will feature speakers discussing marketing wool on an international basis, including international financing, freight forwarding, e-commerce and marketing conditions in various wool importing countries.

The Aug. 17th session will provide forum participants with an opportunity to identify key issues in the U.S. wool industry. Information also will be presented on current wool programs being implemented through the Wool Trust Fund, which is the current funding source and program focus for the American Wool Council.

"In addition to participating in the international session, forum attendees will be able to help create and shape the future direction of American wool marketing programs," said Rita Kourlis Samuelson, ASI's international wool/pelt marketing director.

Team Wins Envirothon

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A team of five students from North East High School in North East, Erie County, captured the 2001 Canon Envirothon at Hinds Community College in Raymond, Miss.

The North East team scored 554.5 points out of a possible 700, eight points above a field of 49 other teams to win the championship.

Members of the winning team are Carson Engelskirger, Jeremy Stempka, Justin Pierson, Markus Fish, and Doug Fynan. Team advisers were John Hallenburg and Patrick Coyne.

"Congratulations to the Erie team for bringing home another first place win for Pennsylvania," DEP Secretary David E. Hess said. "Each member of the team and their coach should feel a great sense of accomplishment."

Teams from 42 U.S. states and seven Canadian provinces participated in the event, which is a high impact program that fosters interest and develops knowledge and skills among youth in the area of environmental science and natural resources management. Students are challenged in the areas of aquatics, forestry, soils, wildlife, and this year's current environmental issue, urban nonpoint source pollution. Teams representing Pennsylvania have won eight of the 14 national/international events held since 1988.

Each of the five North East students received a $3,000 scholarship and products from Canon. The coaches received a digital camera. The team's sponsoring conservation district also received a digital camera.

Treichler Takes Several Awards At Reading Fair Swine Show

MICHELLE RANCK-KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — High temperatures and humid conditions did not seem to phase 4-H exhibitors during Reading Fair's swine show this Monday.

"The 4-H'ers were enthusiastic in spite of the heat," said show judge Daryl Grumbine, Myerstown.

The swine show at Reading Fair included fitting and showmanship contests along with a market hog and pair shows.

"It will be interesting to see the hogs that will exhibited later in the season with another 70-80 pounds on," said Grumbine. "Today I picked a pig ready to go to market."

Grand champion market hog placing went to Jared Treichler, Fleetwood, with an animal that was "ultra lean and heavily muscled," according to Grumbine. Treichler, 17, from Twin Pines Farm, drew on his six years of experience in the show ring to earn both champion fitter and showman honors.

He is the son of Sandra Stump and Rodney Treichler.

Treichler plans to take his homebred Duroc, "Charlie," to Kutztown, Allentown, and Oley fairs.

To get the animal in shape for exhibition at Reading, Treichler "ran him every day for the past month," said Treichler.

Matt Manbeck, 17, Womelsdorf, took home reserve grand champion market hog honors. The son of Herman and Connie Manbeck, he gained experience on the family's 200-sow farrow-to-finish unit.

Manbeck made the breeding decision for his homebred animal, looking for a long, lean animal with thickness in the top, attributes which caught Grumbine's eye in Manbeck's market hog.

In addition to the Reading Fair he plans to exhibit the hog at Kutztown Fair. Manbeck, who has been showing since he was eight years old, also exhibits beef cattle at Reading and Kutztown fairs.

A Kutztown graduate, Grumbine owns and operates a farm equipment dealership in Myerstown. Grumbine, who learned to judge by participating on a 4-H judging team and began judging after he graduated from high school, judges 4-5 county fairs across Pennsylvania each year.

Grumbine acknowledged the "good quality 4-H pigs" at the competition.

"The 4-H'ers did a good job of preparing the pigs for the show," he said.

Two Senior 4-H Members Win Dairy Shows At Plainfield Farmers' Fair

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co.
Correspondent

BANGOR (Northampton Co.) — Approximately 70 animals paraded before judge Paul Knight, Airville, in the open dairy show at the Plainfield Farmers' Fair recently.

The star of the open show was Keystone Highlight Lake, the Holstein entry of Bryant Hlavaty, a July 1993 daughter of Highlight Mr. Mark Cinder — ET and Keystone Dale Lace. This winner of the 125,000 pound class impressed the judge as he described her as outstanding and having the best feet and legs of the show. This cow went on to earn the title of senior champion, grand champion Holstein and second place in the best udder competition. Lake also was part of Keystone Farms group winners for best three females, dairy herd, and the dam and daughter class.

Reserve senior champion and reserve champion Holstein went to Eric Longenbach's 4-year-old entry, Red-Mapl-Spring Chespk Coke, the August 1997 daughter of Bushy-Park Chesepeake-TW and Red-Mapl-Spring A Cinderela.

The junior get of sire class went to Keystone Farms. The breeder's junior herd was won by Juniperdale Farms.

While judging the colored breed show, Knight selected a June 2000 Brown Swiss summer yearling, Miss Sweet Jetway Jenny, belonging to Charlene Barlieb as the junior champion. Reserve junior champion was the September 2000 Jersey senior calf of Brian Kromer, BDK American Mistycal.

Kromer's aged cow entry, Prosper Jester Misty, the September 1993 Jersey daughter of Headspring Babeslad Prosper and Jester M Monica of SSF was named the senior champion and later named grand champion of the colored breed show. Reserve senior champion and reserve champion of the colored breed show went to the June 1999 Jersey entry, Vall-Haven Berretta Daffodil, belonging to Krissa Brewer.

The morning after the open dairy show, William Lesher of Way-Har Farms, Bernville, judged the 4-H Dairy Round-Up.

Senior 4-H members Brian Kromer and Bryant Hlavaty finished their 4-H careers on a high note first being named senior and reserve fitter, senior and reserve showman and later moving on to being named champion and reserve fitter and champion and reserve showman, respectively.

Not only did Kromer and Hlavaty top the fitting and showmanship competition, their entries repeated their success from the open dairy show. In the colored breed show, Kromer's Jersey entry, Prosper Jester Misty, again earned the senior champion and grand champion titles. Lesher then named the junior champion entry, a Brown Swiss June 2000 summer yearling of Charlene Barlieb as reserve champion.

In the Holstein show, Hlavaty's Keystone Highlight Lake first was named senior champion and easily moved on to grand champion Holstein honors. The senior reserve champion and reserve grand champion Holstein was Hlavaty's senior 2-year-old, Keystone Rudolph Lolipop, an October 1998 daughter of Startmore Rudolph and Keystone Highlight Lake. This pair went on to win the dam and daughter class.

The results of the open and 4-H Round-Up are as follows:

Cooperatives Unify

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — Land O'Lakes, Inc., Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Lone Star Milk Producers, Inc., and Arkansas Dairy Cooperative Association have signed letters of intent to develop a plan for merger, according to officials of the four cooperative organizations.

A new Eastern Fluid Milk Marketing Division of Land O'Lakes would be created and would operate under the established Advantage Dairy Group identity.

Advantage Dairy Group was established in January 2000 as an East Coast milk- marketing joint venture involving Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers, Land O'Lakes, and Southeast Milk, Inc. (SMI). The South East Milk Marketing Agency, which includes Lone Star Milk Producers and Arkansas Dairy Cooperative Association, joined in June 2000. While SMI will not be part of the merger, it is anticipated that SMI will continue its mutually beneficial marketing relationship with the new Advantage Dairy Group.

"This consolidation will bring together four organizations that share a commitment to the dairy industry and dairy-producer success, as well as a dedication to quality and operational excellence," Land O'Lakes President and Chief Executive Officer John E. Gherty said. "In addition, it will continue the successful eastern milk-marketing efforts of Advantage Dairy Group. Ultimately, it will put us in a better position to compete effectively and deliver maximum value to members and customers."

Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association General Manager Robert Shore, who will manage the new Land O'Lakes Eastern Fluid Milk Marketing Division, said Advantage Dairy Group would address current industry forces on behalf of member-owners.

"We are operating in a rapidly consolidating industry, in which success is increasingly determined by the ability to maintain competitive size and scale," Shore said. 'This addresses that issue and continues the strong member and customer relationships that are part of Advantage Dairy Group. The new organization will enable us to improve milk-marketing efficiencies and market access for members."

"Establishing and maintaining a national procurement, processing and marketing system are also critical to success in today's dairy industry environment," Gherty said. 'The merger being explored will create a strengthened Eastern Fluid Milk Marketing Division within Land O'Lakes farmer-owned organization. Land O'Lakes has a well-established national presence in dairy foods manufacturing, milk marketing and value-added product marketing."

Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association President Jack Hardesty said that the four organizations were well-suited for unification.

"We have a proven record of working together," Hardesty said. "And we share a cooperative commitment to generating and preserving market access for member milk, adding value to that milk and generating positive returns for producer-members."

Lone Star Milk Producers General Manager Jim Baird said, "When you look at customer consolidation and federal order reform, we're operating in an environment that makes this an important, positive, strategic decision."

Officials of the four organizations did not release further details of the merger discussions, but indicated a target of early fall for the development of a definitive merger agreement. That agreement would be subject to approval by the members of each participating cooperative.

Land O'Lakes annually procures and processes approximately 12 billion pounds of milk, relatively equally divided among its eastern, upper midwest and California dairy producer regions. Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association, which markets milk for producer-members in ten eastern and southeastern states, handles over three billion pounds of milk annually. Lone Star Milk Producers markets 700 million pounds of milk in eight states from Kansas to Alabama. Arkansas Dairy Cooperative Association handles 300 million pounds of milk in four mid-southern states.

Land O'Lakes (www.landolakesinc.com) is a national, farmer-owned food and agricultural cooperative, with sales approaching $6 billion. Land O'Lakes does business in all fifty states and more than fifty countries. It is a leading marketer of a full line of dairy-based consumer, foodservice and food ingredient products across the U.S.; serves its international customers with a variety of food and animal feed ingredients; and provides farmers and local cooperatives with an extensive line of agricultural supplies (feed, seed, crop nutrients and crop protection products) and services.

Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association (www.mdvamilk.com) is a milk marketing and processing cooperative which markets milk for nearly 1,600 dairy farmers in 10 states from Pennsylvania to Alabama. Headquartered in Reston, Va., the cooperative includes a fluid milk processing plant in Newport News, Va.; two manufacturing plants in Laurel, Md. and Strasburg, Va.; and an equipment warehouse in Frederick, Md.

Lone Star Milk Producers, Windthorst, Texas, markets 700 million pounds of milk for 130 dairy farmers in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

Arkansas Dairy Cooperative Association, Damascus, Ark., represents 300 million pounds of milk and 185 dairy farmers in Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma.

emerging diseases — these issues present multifaceted challenges, and their solutions will be as complex as the issues themselves. I know, however, that research and education are critical to finding our way through to answers that work not only for those of us who are here, now, but also for our children and their children.

"That's why I'm very proud to share with you some of the work we're doing in the College of Agricultural Sciences. As you walk through the College Exhibits Building, you'll see displays featuring research and extension programs that address issues such as land and water pollution while at the same time enhancing farm profitability. Turning farm waste products into profit-generating energy or utilizing wetlands as buffer zones to trap excess nutrients are good examples of this work. Presentations in the theater will address current issues such as foot-and-mouth, West Nile, and Lyme diseases. A highway safety workshop for farm equipment operators and a public forum on hot topics in today's agriculture also are scheduled."

Steele's complete letter is scheduled to be included in this issue.

Throughout the show, you'll find exhibits and displays packed with information to help you and your family. More than $20 million in farm equipment and services are on display, with an equipment manufacturers "show and tell" demonstration featuring the very latest technologies.

Also scheduled are a skid steer rodeo, a special high-tunnel production tour, and a variety of field demonstrations. You'll find information on crops and soils, dairy and livestock production, integrated pest management, farm safety, woodlot management, and lawn, landscape and garden care.

Field demonstrations will feature hay mowing, baling, bale handling, haylage chopping and bagging, and rakes and tedders. In addition, three specialty line equipment companies will demonstrate a variety of equipment, such as planters, forage mixers, loaders, bale processors, and forage platforms.

Other exhibits, tours, and workshops will feature cutting-edge research and information on crops and soils, animal science, dairy and livestock production, integrated pest management, farm safety, conservation practices, and woodlot management. More than 340 commercial and noncommercial exhibitors also will be on hand to display the latest goods and services.

Because of concerns over the possible transmission of foot-and-mouth disease and other foreign animal diseases, visitors who have been overseas within two weeks of attending Ag Progress Days are asked not to visit the event's live-animal exhibit areas.

Ag Progress Days hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 14; 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 15; and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 16. Admission and parking are free.

For more information, call (800) PSU-1010 toll-free from July 9-Aug. 16 or visit the Ag Progress Days Web site at http://apd.cas.psu.edu.

More information about Ag Progress is included this issue. See the index to stories on page A4.

Agriculture Secretaries Endorse Expo

Sept. 23 at the West End Fairgrounds, Gilbert.

At a morning press conference at a livestock farm in Hunterdon County, New Jersey and later at Cherry Valley Vineyards, an award-winning family owned and operated winery of Dominick and Mary Sorrenti near Saylorsburg, the two agriculture secretaries spoke of the importance of small farms in each state's overall agricultural economy and the need to preserve agriculture, regardless of the size of the operation.

"We must do whatever we can as a society to preserve agriculture," said Hayes. When speaking of the need to diversify and the possible need for farmers to change their commodity to succeed and continue, Brown said, "The mix of people in society has changed and their food needs must be met or they will go elsewhere — we must keep the market here."

According to Donna Foulk, regional ICM coordinator with Rutgers Cooperative Extension and chair of the educational committee of the Northeast Small Farm and Rural Living Expo and Trade Show, there is an increase in small farms in the Northeast, often purchased by people who are not coming from an agricultural background. There is a need to link these newcomers with suppliers and support agencies. It is important to provide the current agricultural community with ways of providing additional income by diversifying to become more profitable, and perhaps the younger generation of the family will remain interested in continuing the operation. Another goal of the Expo is to educate those that are interested but have no desire to farm, but wish to learn more about agriculture.

At the Expo, visitors will be able to choose from 75 educational workshops, lectures and demonstrations; participate in organic and traditional small farm workshops; sample locally produced honey, wine, cheese, maple syrup, and other food products; attend demonstrations of small farm equipment, supplies, and services; and participate in seminars on forest stewardship and natural resource conservation.

The Expo has attracted the interest of many local businesses and agencies that have volunteered to serve as sponsors for the event. These sponsors include Mid-Atlantic Farm Credit, Rutgers University, Penn State University, Pocono Northeast R.C. & D, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, The Pocono Mountain Vacation Bureaus, Ray Price Ford, PP & L, East Stroudsburg Savings Association, Sprint, and Kistler Printing.

discharge permits, would have responsibilities for the environmental practices of their Maryland growers, even though these growers are independent farm families who raise chickens for the companies. According to the Maryland Farm Bureau, this co-permitting is a threat to the future of family farms in Maryland, not just those that grow chickens, but farms that supply the corn and soybeans used to feed Maryland chickens.

Maryland poultry growers working with Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI), the trade association for the Delmarva Peninsula broiler chicken industry, and the Maryland Farm Bureau, the largest farm organization in the state, have filed protests against the permits on behalf of poultry growers who will be harmed by co-permitting. Each of the poultry companies, Allen Family Foods, Inc., Perdue Farms Inc., and Tyson Foods, Inc. also has filed requests for a contested case hearing.

Both DPI and the Maryland Farm Bureau have chosen not to join in the appeal so that the focus stays on the illegality of the permits, not on peripheral issues of legal standing of organizations. Nevertheless, both, working together, recognize the important interest poultry growers have in the permits and their vital role in the process.

Maryland Farm Bureau President Steve Weber and DPI President Ken Sterling said, "Co-permitting is a serious threat to the future of farm families and the poultry industry in Maryland and both our organizations felt it was necessary to help our growers be represented in the legal process."

The process calls for the Office of Administrative Hearings to review the requests and schedule a hearing. The hearing might not be held until late this year. While the appeal is pending, the permits are not final and the co-permitting requirements in the companies' permits will not be enforced.

Poultry companies and poultry growers are committed to working for improved water quality in Maryland. Co-permitting will not result in improved water quality but will create another level of government regulation beyond what the Maryland General Assembly authorized in 1998. Instead it will divert time and resources that could and should be directed to legitimate water quality initiatives.

In their challenges, the poultry growers and poultry companies will argue that a requirement for a facility's wastewater discharge permit to regulate the activities at other, independently operated businesses that are under different ownership is not authorized under state or federal law. This message was made loud and clear by the nearly 1,400 people who attended early 2001 public hearings to protest co-permitting.

Maryland farmers and poultry growers do not want the poultry companies to be the environmental police. The working relationship between growers and companies will be seriously disrupted because of this. Additionally, it is a threat to farm families that might not get chicken placements on their farms as poultry companies seek to reduce their potential liability. Violators of the co-permitting requirements could face civil fines up to $27,500 per day per violation and criminal fines of up to $27,500 per day per violation, plus jail time.

Heat And Drought

The drought watch focuses on conservation of drinking water, calling for a voluntary 5 percent reduction of nonessential water use.

"We've been experiencing below-normal precipitation across the state since August 2000, and well levels are continuing to drop," said David Hess of the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP).

Steve Wagner, press secretary for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA), said the PDA endorses the drought watch while having no official part in the decision. The department would consider provisions to farmers in the event of a drought emergency such as occurred in 1999, he said.

A drought watch is the first of three drought stages under the Pennsylvania drought-operation plan. A drought warning, the second stage, calls for a 10percent to 15 percent voluntary reduction in water consumption. The third stage, a drought emergency, imposes mandatory restrictions on water use.

Wagner pointed out that voluntary water use reduction applies to farmers as well as others in the 23 counties.

"To my knowledge, farmers are not exempted," he said.

York County extension agent John Schwartz reported that crop conditions are widely varied in the area because of spotty shower activity.

"Our corn is very erratic (in York County)," ranging from total crop failure to normal, he said.

Schwartz said that one farmer reported 2½ inches of rain the first week in August, while other areas have had less than an inch in a three- to four-week period.

Livestock and poultry producers have also been coping with a string of high heat index days.

"There's some concern right now with the length of the heat struggle," said Jim Shirk of PennAg Industries Poultry Council this Thursday."(Poultry producers) have been turning up their ventilation systems 24 hours a day, seven days a week. They have everything maxed out."

Shirk said that other strategies can also be used to help offset the effects of heat on poultry.

Birds tend to build up heat as they sit throughout the day, Shirk said. Making sure they get up and walk during the afternoon heat can help to cool them.

Also, as the birds tend to drink after feeding, flushing the water lines before feeding time will insure that they are getting cooler water when they come to drink, Shirk said.

Poultry producer Dan Heller of Lititz explained how his birds are kept cool in hot weather.

Heller manages eight houses of 25,000 broilers each along with his brother Daryl and partner Rick Haller.

Each of the broiler houses has nine four-foot diameter "tunnel" fans at one end. The fans convert the 500-foot-long building into a sort of wind tunnel by drawing air from an opening at the opposite end through the entire length of the house, creating a "wind-chill effect" for the chickens. When the fans are running on a muggy day, the inside of the broiler house "feels much better than outside," Heller said.

Injecting pressurized water or "fog" into the air is another way to prevent the broilers from overheating.

Both the fans and the fogger are controlled by computer systems, Heller said.

Michael O'Connor of the Penn State Dairy and Animal Science Department said that temporary losses in milk production from high heat indexes over an extended time can exceed 10 pounds a day per cow.

A greater problem is when the overall well-being of the animal is affected.

"We're more concerned with livestock health," O'Connor said. Adverse effects of the heat and dry weather on cow health can include poor quality forages as well as the animals simply getting too hot.

"You'll see animals overheating if they're not provided with shade," O'Connor said.

Signs of an overheated animal are rapid, shallow breathing, and a tendency for the animal to be immobile, he said.

A rectal temperature of greater than 105 Farenheit calls for immediate action to cool the animal, O'Connor said.

Tunnel ventilation and foggers employed by poultry producers are also tools that some dairy farmers have been using to help keep their animals comfortable.

A common sight at local livestock shows during July and August is that of conscientious exhibitors spraying their animal's entire body with water from a hose.

"Get the (animals) thoroughly wet," O'Connor said.

He also recommended providing the animals with extra access to salt along with plenty of water of to drink.

A cold front, expected to pass through the area after this newspaper goes to press, might provide some relief from the heat wave.

According to the National Weather Bureau in Harrisburg, precipitation levels for the year in the southeastern part of the state are at least eight to nine inches below normal.

Counties included in the drought watch are Adams, Bedford, Blair, Centre, Clinton, Columbia, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Juniata, Lancaster, Lebanon, Lycoming, Mifflin, Montour, Northumberland, Perry, Schuylkill, Snyder, Union, and York.

Kathy Heil of the Lancaster County Farm Service Agency (FSA) office recently announced a Noninsured Crop Disaster Program (NAP) for 2001 that offers new, improved coverage to farmers for losses on noninsurable crops.

"(The) new NAP will provide immediate relief to farmers," she said.

Beginning with this year, availability of NAP benefits will be based on producers' individual crop losses rather than on losses occurring in a large area.

To be eligible for assistance, farmers must pay a nonrefundable service fee of $100 per crop, per administrative county. They must have risk in producing the crop and must comply with a conservation plan. Limited resource farmers may request a waver of the fee.

FSA is currently accepting applications for NAP coverage for 2001 crops.

To check eligibility of a particular crop or for more information on the program, contact your local FSA office or visit FSA online at http:/ www.fsa.usda.gov.

The Lancaster County FSA office is at 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster, Pa.

Confirmation Fills USDA Posts

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Senate confirmed two nominees for key positions at USDA.

James R. Moseley will serve as deputy secretary and Joseph Jen will serve as undersecretary for research, education and economics.

Moseley has 32 years of farming experience and most recently has worked with Infinity Pork and AgRidge Farms while participating in natural resource and environmental policy at the state and national levels. In the previous Bush administration, Moseley served as assistant secretary of agriculture for natural resources and environment and as an agricultural adviser to the Administrator of EPA.

Jen is a well-known agricultural scientist and educator with experience in both the private and public sectors. Since 1992, Jen has served as the dean of the College of Agriculture at California Polytechnic State University in San Luis Obispo, where he oversaw 11 departments and a budget of more than $30 million. Jen has been involved in research at private corporations and on the faculty of three land grant institutions.

DAIRY FEEDING ALTERNATIVES IN TIMES OF DROUGHT

Philip E. Wagner
Extension Agent — Dairy
Franklin County

Philip E. Wagner

For some dairy producers, a prime concern is forage supply. Weeks ago was the time to evaluate your supply and start making plans.

On some farms, 10-20 percent more forage is fed than is necessary to maintain animals in a reasonably normal state. This is good management and economical in a normal year.

However, times are not normal now and some farms will need to reduce forage intakes to minimum levels for cows in milk and for young stock.

Do not limit normal forage intakes for dry cows and springing heifers. Use of forage substitutes and high-fiber concentrates will be an option for some. Relatively speaking, the price outlook for corn, soybeans, and by-product ingredients should remain favorable. The crops in the "bread-basket" of this country are looking good. Some feed concerns will be offering a complete feed that will meet essentially all nutrient needs. Be sure to work closely with your nutritionist.

If buying hay, this is a year to compare local and regional prices with western hay prices. Most western hay is sold with a guaranteed relative feed value (RFV). RFV is a measurement of the overall feeding value of a specific forage. Most western hay has a higher RFV than local hay. Several producers have found western hay to be an enhancement to their feeding program even in a normal year. Avoid paying unreasonably high panic prices for forage.

Pricing corn silage will be a challenge. In a drought year, corn silage is generally higher in protein and lower in energy than during a normal year. As a rule of thumb, drought corn silage generally has a feed value 90-92 percent of normal corn silage. Some of you may have neighbors with corn planted specifically for grain production. Some of that corn will never make an ear. Now is the time to talk to them if you need forage. Maybe these same neighbors also have soybeans that will not make a crop but could be utilized for silage.

Elevated nitrate levels are a concern in some of our crops this season. Nitrate related problems can be kept to a minimum if common sense is used. Introduce suspected forages gradually — don't feed suspected feeds to hungry animals, utilize suspected material for silage rather than green-chop, don't harvest suspected crops for 3-5 days after a significant rain, and make sure other forages and concentrates are fed prior to or mixed with suspected material. Also, be wary of silo gas.

Be sure to look at the animal side of the equation. Maybe some of you need to cull harder. You may maintain or increase milk production by culling hard and providing what forage is available to the more efficient cows remaining. Some will need to reduce young stock numbers.

A year like this gives a person time to reflect somewhat on the cropping end of the dairy business. Here are some questions — and I am sure you can think of others:

Is all the land I plant in corn suitable for corn? With the advances that have been made with barley yields, should I take a closer look at this crop? As a risk management practice, should I regularly include some summer-annual grasses such as sudangrass, sorghum-sudan hybrids, or sorghum into my forage program? Should I do more double-cropping and if so with what?

If you want more details on some of the topics discussed here, Penn State dairy specialists put together several handouts you may find helpful. "Dairy Feeding Alternatives Following Adverse Weather" (DSE 88-31) and "Drought-Related Issues In Dairy Cattle Nutrition" (DAS 99-5) are two that you may find helpful. Publication DAS 97-17 was referenced in a previous column article. Request a copy of these publications from your county extension office or give me a call at (717) 263-9226.

A new booklet will appear in the Sept. 22 issue, just in time for the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show in Harrisburg.

Lancaster Farming's Dairy Plus is scheduled to include dairy industry news and information never seen before in the paper, including expanded DHIA reports, information about dairy herd expansion, nontraditional dairy marketing, and a calendar of events strictly for dairy producers.

Reversal Of Champion 'Fate' At Lebanon Holstein Show

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Lebanon Holstein Show late last week here at the Lebanon Area Fair was a simple reversal of fate for both grand champion and reserve.

Last year's champions, Scott and Karen Nolt, Lebanon, became reserve this year, and vice versa, with Adam and Lisa Sonnen, Richland, taking champion this year.

Lisa said the champion was a 7-year-old 100,000-pound class winner, Stardust. Stardust, from a Canadian sire, has calved five times. This was the Sonnen's fourth grand champion at the Lebanon Area Fair.

Reserve was a 6-year-old shown by Scott and Karen Nolt, Lebanon.

Following is a list of show placings.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The 38th All-American Dairy Show is scheduled Sept. 22-27 here at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex.

Some of the nation's top dairy cattle will travel to Harrisburg to compete in regional and national dairy breed shows throughout the week. The "All-American" will also host the Pennsylvania Holstein Fall Championship Show and the Eastern Elite Holstein Sale, providing opportunities for Holstein breeders to purchase some of Pennsylvania's best of the breed to take home to their herds. Selection of the supreme champion will be Sept. 27 following the Holstein and Jersey shows.

Festivities will begin Saturday evening, Sept. 22, with the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Pageant.

Several exciting youth activities will be featured at the All-American. The youth showmanship contest will begin at 1 p.m. Sept. 23, and will close with the senior youth fitting contest. Sunday evening's activities will conclude with the Junior Dairy Show Olympics.

First Pa. Bird Of 2001 Tests Positive For West Nile Virus

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Secretary of Health Robert S. Zimmerman Jr. announced the first West Nile Virus positive bird in Pennsylvania in 2001.

A crow, which was collected last week in Philadelphia, was confirmed positive by the Pennsylvania Department of Health Laboratory in Lionville, Chester County. Since Jan. 1, 2001, the Health department has tested 211 birds, and this is the first to test positive. In addition to the birds, Pennsylvania has tested more than 5,000 mosquito pools, and all those tests have been negative.

West Nile was identified in Pennsylvania last year and already has been found in mosquitoes and birds in several neighboring states including New Jersey, New York, Maryland, Virginia and Ohio. A human case has been identified in Florida.

"No people have tested positive for West Nile Virus in Pennsylvania, nor any mosquitoes," Zimmerman said. "This result should remind Pennsylvanians to take steps in their own backyards to reduce mosquito-breeding areas by removing standing water. "

Mosquitoes breed in standing water. Even a small bucket that has stagnant water in it for seven days can become home to up to 1,000 mosquitoes.

Here are some easy tips to eliminate standing water:

- Dispose of all tin cans, plastic containers, ceramic pots or similar water-holding containers that have accumulated on your property. Do not overlook containers that have become overgrown by aquatic vegetation;
- Pay special attention to discarded tires that may have accumulated on your property;
- Drill holes in the bottom of recycling containers that are left out of doors. Drainage holes that are on the container sides collect enough water for mosquitoes to breed in;
- Clean clogged roof gutters on an annual basis, particularly if the leaves from surrounding trees have a tendency to plug up the drains. Roof gutters are easily overlooked, but can produce millions of mosquitoes each season;
- Turn over plastic wading pools when not in use. A wading pool becomes a mosquito producer if it is not used on a regular basis;
- Turn over wheelbarrows and do not allow water to stagnate in birdbaths. Both provide breeding habitat for domestic mosquitoes;
- Aerate ornamental pools or stock them with fish. Water gardens are fashionable, but become major mosquito producers if they are allowed to stagnate. Clean and chlorinate swimming pools that are not being used. A swimming pool that is left untended by a family that goes on vacation for a month can produce enough mosquitoes to result in neighborhood-wide complaints. Be aware that mosquitoes may even breed in the water that collects on swimming pool covers;
- Use landscaping to eliminate standing water that collects on your property. Mosquitoes will develop in any puddle that lasts for more than four days.

Last year, West Nile virus was found in 19 counties: Bucks, Bradford, Chester, Cumberland, Dauphin, Delaware, Erie, Franklin, Lehigh, Montgomery, Northampton, Philadelphia, Pike, Schuylkill, Susquehanna, Tioga, Union, Wyoming, and York. It was identified in 37 birds, 46 mosquito pools and a horse.Dead birds are the best indicator of West Nile virus activity. Pennsylvania residents are encouraged to report all dead birds seen around their property or elsewhere so that they can be tested for West Nile virus. Residents should call the 877-PA-HEALTH toll-free telephone line whenever they see a dead bird, and a Department of Health staff will assist them.

A Website about West Nile virus — http://www.West-Nile.state.pa.us — has been established to provide citizens with background information and regular updates. Visitors can log on and sign up to receive news releases and other updates on West Nile automatically by e-mail.

For more information about West Nile virus or to report dead birds, call the toll-free information line, 877-PA-HEALTH.

Northeast Council Of DFA And Dairylea Working To Raise Milk Premiums

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The Northeast Council of Dairy Farmers of America (DFA) and Dairylea Cooperative Inc. jointly petitioned the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) to hold an emergency hearing in an effort to raise premiums for September's milk production. The request was turned down by the Milk Marketing Board.

Citing continued declines in Pennsylvania's cow herd, lower milk production, higher premiums in other adjacent regions and the need to maintain strong farm profitability to make up for last year's low prices, the Northeast Council of DFA and Dairylea asked the board to take immediate action.

"We expect to be back in front of the board again soon asking for their help in raising premiums for October," said Lew Gardner, DFA's Northeast Council chairman. "Market dynamics indicate the need for higher premiums and DFA does not want to be leaving dairy farmer money on the table."

"Although the board can only set prices on 10-20 percent of Pennsylvania's milk, its action's have far wider implications that impact dairy farmer profitability," said Dairylea's President Clyde Rutherford.

Rutherford added that typically the Board's price increases help influence and increase Class I and manufacturing premiums throughout the Northeast.

"This brings real dollars to all of our members," said Rutherford. The Northeast Council of DFA and Dairylea were the only farm organizations that spoke in favor of increasing premiums and holding an emergency hearing.

Both Gardner and Rutherford stated that their organizations would continue to press the industry to work together to improve dairy farmer profitability.

Stuffed Molasses Not So Sweet, Says Farmers' Group

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCFC) recently passed a resolution supporting proposed legislation that would stop the circumvention of sugar import tariff-rate quotas (TRQ) by producers of stuffed molasses.

Stuffed molasses is a mixture of dumped market sugar from Brazil and other countries, water, and molasses. The ingredients are combined in Canada to produce a syrup that exploits a loophole in the Harmonized Tariff Schedule (HTS), allowing the stuffed molasses to enter the U.S. without import duties. Once in this country, the liquid sugar is removed from the compound and sold at low prices. The molasses is then transported back to Canada to be reused.

"NCFC supports congressional action to ensure that the stuffed molasses loophole is closed tightly," said David Graves, president and CEO of NCFC. "This is an issue of fairness, in that both domestic sugar producers and foreign producers who pay U.S. import duties are unfairly hurt economically when stuffed molasses is dumped onto the market."

The past five years has seen an explosion in stuffed molasses imports. In fiscal year 1995-96, the amount of stuffed molasses coming into the U.S. equaled 8,056 short tons of raw sugar, according to the USDA. By fiscal year 2000-01, the amount increased to an equivalent of 100,000 short tons of raw sugar.

Increases of this sort can cause instability in U.S. sugar prices, leading to failures of cane and beet sugar farms and the closing of sugar processors.

To address this problem, Senators John Breaux (D-La.) and Larry Craig (R-Idaho) recently introduced Sugar TRQ Anticircumvention Legislation (S.753), which seeks to close the stuffed molasses loophole. The bill extends quotas to one HTS subheading that includes stuffed molasses and is not under the sugar import quotas. Molasses imported for use in animal feed or in the production of rum would not be affected.

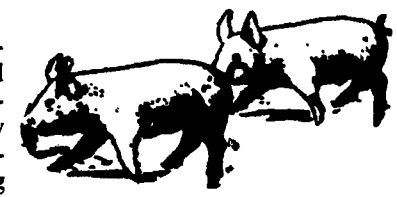
N.Y. Bill Improves Access To Schools For Farmers' Produce

ALBANY, N.Y. — Fresh, locally-grown fruits and vegetables from New York farmers may start flowing into school cafeterias, college dining halls and other state-run educational institutions, thanks to a Farm Bureau-backed bill recently passed by both houses of the New York State Legislature.

The bill was introduced and championed by Assemblyman Felix Ortiz, from Brooklyn, during his first-year as chair of the Assembly Task Force on Food, Farm and Nutrition. State Senator Nancy Larraine Hoffmann, chair of the Senate Agriculture Committee, successfully passed the legislation in the state Senate.

In expressing Farm Bureau's strong support for the bill, Farm Bureau Senior Associate Director of Public Policy Julie Suarez said, "Serving students fresh, locally produced fruits and vegetables will help ensure they have the best quality school lunches, while at the same time providing farmers with an additional marketing opportunity."

The bill — sent to the Governor for his signature — would direct the Commissioner of Agriculture to obtain from the New York State Department of Education "information...regarding school districts and other educational institutions interested in purchasing New York farm products, including...the type and amount of such products schools wish to purchase and the name of the appropriate contact person." The Department of Agriculture and Markets would then be obligated to make the listings available to farmers.



USDA To Publish New Swine Market Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA has announced a new daily swine market news report to complement existing reports issued as part of the Livestock Mandatory Reporting Program.

The new report, National Daily Direct Hog Prior Day — Slaughtered Swine Report, will include net cost price information, live and carcass average weight data, and average carcass characteristic measurements for all swine slaughtered on the previous day, categorized by purchase type.

In addition, the report will furnish information on the volume of swine that packers have scheduled for slaughter during each of the next 14 days. A base cost section, which includes swine cost to packers at various lean percentages, will subsequently be added to the report beginning Aug. 20, following the expiration of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange August futures contract.

Chester County Seeks Applications For Ag Land Preservation

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — The Chester County Agricultural Conservation Easement Program is now accepting applications to preserve viable agricultural lands in Chester County. Farm owners interested in preserving their farm may sell an agricultural conservation easement, otherwise known as development rights, to the County of Chester and/or Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The Chester County Agricultural Conservation Easement Program is a voluntary program that financially compensates farm owners for placing a perpetual agricultural conservation easement on their land. The easement allows the farmer to continue farming, but insures that the land will never be developed. The Chester County Agricultural Land Preservation Board has 130 farms totaling 12,870 acres under agricultural conservation easement.

For more information, contact the Chester County Agricultural Land Preservation office at (610) 344-6285; or 601 Westtown Road, GSC, Suite 270, P.O. Box 2747, West Chester, PA 19380 for application and program guidelines. The deadline for applications is Sept. 1.

Agriculture Department Completes Successful Ram Performance Test, Sale

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Helping to keep Pennsylvania's sheep industry at the forefront of excellence, the Department of Agriculture offered 133 rams and ewes at its Annual Performance Test Ram Sale at the Livestock Evaluation Center, State College, Aug. 4.

"It is not possible to conduct a performance test without the involvement of many persons including the sheep breeders of Pennsylvania, department staff, the livestock technical committee, sale committee, and staff professionals at Penn State University," said Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes. "Also, I appreciate the buyers who attended the sale. This is a team effort."

Of the high quality rams entered into the performance test, several rams rose to the top of their breed at its conclusion. In the Hampshire division, Clyde Brubaker of Robesonia owned the highest scoring ram. The Ken Staver Family of Palmyra ram entry topped the Dorset Breed. Leading the Suffolk breed test was the ram owned by Anne Rich of Jersey Shore.

At the sale, 65 rams were offered for sale by breeders looking for rams to help improve the genetic quality of their flocks. The top selling ram was a Dorset owned by Justin Smith of Dorcas, W. Va. and was purchased for $800 by Dean Wehry of Hershey.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture sponsors the annual ram performance test and sale, helping Pennsylvania's sheep industry achieve its mission of remaining a leader. The Department's annual performance test evaluates the quality of rams to stay on the progressive edge of agriculture.

Over the course of the 84-day test, genetics and feedlot performance are evaluated in a controlled facility to determine the types of sires to be used in maintaining a solid genetic foundation in flocks. Through the Department of Agriculture's testing programs, Pennsylvania's sheep growers are able to identify preferred characteristics.

At the conclusion of the test, only the highest-ranking rams are offered at the annual ram sale, allowing for farmers to purchase affordable high quality genetics to take home to their farms.

Excitement continues to build in anticipation of the new Livestock Evaluation Center to be constructed at the Ag Research Center, Rockspring. With the construction of the new center, the Department of Agriculture will be able to further its mission of conducting 21st century livestock test programs.

Hayes said "We should enter the construction phase for the new Livestock Evaluation Center in the near future. It is my hope to have a Livestock Evaluation Center that serves as a model for the nation. It is important for livestock producers and consumers. In addition to the performance test, the new facility will also be available for instruction, research, and as a professional conference center for livestock producers."

USDA Announces New Guidelines For Reporting Program

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture today announced new confidentiality guidelines for the Livestock Mandatory Reporting Program which will increase the number of reports available while protecting the identity of market participants.

These changes will become effective Aug. 20.

The new A3/70/20@ confidentiality guideline will require the following three conditions:

- At least three reporting entities need to provide data at least 50 percent of the time over the most recent 60-day time period.
- No single reporting entity may provide more than 70 percent of the data for a report over the most recent 60-day time period.
- No single reporting entity may be the sole reporting entity for an individual report more than 20 percent of the time over the most recent 60-day time period.

These changes will enable USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service to issue more frequent and more complete reports on livestock and meat, providing all segments of the livestock and meat industries with information on which to base market decisions, while preserving the confidentiality of proprietary business transactions.

The Livestock Mandatory Reporting Act of 1999 required USDA to publish mandatory data on livestock and meat price trends, contracting arrangements, and supply and demand conditions in a manner that protects the identity of reporting entities and preserves the confidentiality of proprietary transactions.

Since initiating the livestock mandatory reporting program on April 2, USDA has attempted to preserve confidentiality by following a A3/60@ reporting guideline. Data was only published in a report if at least three reporting entities had supplied the data, and no single entity was responsible for reporting 60 percent or more of the data.

For additional information, contact John Van Dyke, Chief, Livestock and Grain Market News, AMS Livestock and Seed Program, USDA Stop 2619, 1400 Independence Ave. SW, Washington, DC 20090-2619; telephone (202) 720-6231; fax (202) 690-3732; or e-mail john.vandyke@usda.gov.

Farm Bureau Opposes Proposed Animal Farm Regulations

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Farm Bureau has told the Environmental Protection Agency that its proposed increased regulation of animal feeding operations is neither needed nor justified.

Both American Farm Bureau and Pennsylvania Farm Bureau strongly opposed EPA's proposed regulations for Concentrated Animal Feeding Operations (CAFOs) in comments recently submitted to the agency.

EPA's proposal, announced in January, could drastically increase the number of livestock operations required to get federal Clean Water permits. The agency claims nearly 40 percent of U.S. waters are too polluted for swimming or fishing, mostly due to agricultural runoff. Farm Bureau has refuted that claim as "incorrect and unsupported" by facts.

"Farm Bureau believes the current effort to expand the scope of regulation goes well beyond congressional intent and, as a matter of policy, we believe the non-point source issues of animal feeding operations are best addressed through incentive-based programs," said American Farm Bureau President Bob Stallman.

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau further emphasized the needlessness of regulations in its comments, pointing out that, "Water quality data, both nationally and within Pennsylvania, shows that the impact on watersheds by feedlots and agriculture is a problem in a few localized areas. Data does not suggest that the solution to such problems justify a revamping of existing EPA regulations."

A U.S. Department of Agriculture study shows only 160 of the nation's 3,100 counties have county-level excess phosphorus and just 73 have excess nitrogen from manure.

In Pennsylvania, less than seven percent of 45,234 miles of streams assessed so far by the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) had their water quality impacted by agricultural activity. Since the streams assessed first were considered problem areas by DEP, it's expected that when all of the state's 83,161 miles of streams are assessed the total percentage of agriculture's impact will be considerably lower.

In addition, DEP monitoring indicates that animal feedlots are not a major source of groundwater contamination in Pennsylvania. Aboveground and underground storage tanks, landfills and industrial facilities are among the major culprits there.

Farmers are also frustrated, PFB said, by EPA's continuing efforts to increase regulation of agriculture while other environmental issues remain unresolved. For example, Pennsylvania leads the nation in combined sewer overflows, which dump raw sewage and storm water directly into lakes, rivers and streams during major storms.

Furthermore, PFB questions whether EPA has statutory authority to expand the definition of CAFOs to include many previously unregulated animal feeding operations (AFOs).

MDIA 2001 Meeting Set

WESTMINSTER, Md. — The Maryland Dairy Industry Association (MDIA) announced that it will outline a dairy production management plan at its 2001 annual meeting here on Nov. 29. The plan will be designed to assure dairy producers of "Thriving in 2002 and Beyond," theme of the 2001 annual meeting, according to MDIA President Myron L. Wilhide of Detour, Maryland.

More than 150 dairy producers and industry representatives are expected to participate in the 2001 annual meeting at Wilhelm's Conference Center in this Carroll County seat.

Veteran dairy veterinarian Dr. Jerome K. Harness will keynote the program, outlining guidelines for maximizing economic returns in the modern dairy operation. He sets the stage for an all-day program that includes Penn State University Specialist Richard Stup to discuss a farm labor management plan, dairy management consultant Brad Hilty to draft a farm investment management guide, Virginia Tech dairy specialist Dr. Ray Nebel to outline a reproduction plan and timetable, and Agway veterinarian Dr. Charles Gardner to review bio-security measures to protect and maintain dairy herd health.

MDIA's dairy experts will then assemble in a panel to complete a practical dairy management guide designed to assist dairy producers in meeting the challenges of 2002 and beyond.

Also in the planning stage is a pre-conference seminar at the Carroll Community College Annex compute lab on "Data-Mining," to provide dairy producers with hands-on experience using PC Dart management software. The seminar is being planned for 8 a.m. on Thursday, Nov. 29, ahead of MDIA's 2001 annual meeting.

The 2001 MDIA annual meeting will also feature exhibits on latest dairy technology and services, University of Maryland dairy extension reports, association business reports, and election of directors and officers.

Drought Can Increase Feeder Cattle Respiratory Disease

MILLIE BUNTING
Market Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — "Blame it on the weather."

That's the simple answer to county agent Chet Hughes' question regarding the increase in respiratory problems in feedlot cattle here last fall.

"What went wrong?" Hughes asked. Why were there were unusually high mortalities and labor intensive treatments reported on sick animals?

Dr. Arlen Mills

The focus of this year's Cattle Feeders' Summer Workshop, coordinated by the Lancaster County office of Penn State Cooperative Extension, was finding the answer.

Hughes and his cooperating sponsors assembled a blue-ribbon panel of experts on feeder calf health to address the respiratory problems of area cattle feeders. "Shipping fever" is the term sometimes given to a runny-nosed, lethargic calf in the auction ring. But it's not that simple. Nor is the treatment. There are specific organisms at work and specific vaccines and treatments available to prevent or combat them.

"Blame it on the weather." That explanation was offered as part of Dr. Arlen Mills' comments on the respiratory problems. A cooperative extension veterinarian based in Lebanon County, he said there were more feeder calves with respiratory sickness last fall in area feedlots because of the weather.

Mills explained that respiratory problems can go in cycles with the weather. The mother on drought-stricken pastures does not provide good colostrum to the calf. That calf will not be as healthy and able to endure the stresses of weaning, sorting, shipping, loading, unloading — all those factors it goes through until it arrives in the feedlot.

In preparation for the workshop, Mills conducted producer interviews on six Lancaster County farms to evaluate feeder cattle receiving and processing practices. Before coming to Pennsylvania, he had extensive experience working with beef producers as a practicing veterinarian in Ohio for 20 years. He noted that the cattle feeders were very cooperative for his study and he found them very knowledgeable about their cattle.

Mills presented a detailed computer-generated demonstration of his findings, aptly using pictures and charts to evaluate what did or could have gone wrong with so many cattle going on feed last fall.

In his presentation, Mills condensed his talk down to the conditions in three feedlots to illustrate the health problems and what was done to treat the sick calves. Where calves were born and purchased, preconditioning/health treatments, transportation to feedlot, nutrition and feeding facilities — these factors were all included in his discussion.

Mills concluded:

- Calves that had one dose of a killed vaccine or two doses months apart were as apt to need treatment as those calves with no vaccination history.
- Calves which had received modified live vaccination were much less likely to need treatment.

Supplementing Dr. Mills presentation on respiratory problems was Dr. W. Dee Whittier, extension veterinarian for cattle, Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine at Virginia Tech. He has done extensive research on bovine respiratory diseases and is experienced with the Virginia Quality Assurance feeder calf program. He discussed the influence of health on feeder cattle prices.

Dr. Dee Whittier

Whittier said he has found that the potential health of calves is one of the significant factors that buyers consider when making a decision about how much to pay for calves. They will pay more for vaccinated and preconditioned calves.

After a question about mycoplasma, Whittier proceeded with a detailed answer with the aid of modern technology. He just happened to have a "power point" presentation on mycoplasma on his notebook computer. So he proceeded to "boot up" the notebook and provided up-to-date information on the respiratory illness.

Mycoplasma, Whittier explained, is an infectious organism, classified bacteria, which has come into more scrutiny in the last three or four years in the U.S. He said the illness has been diagnosed as pneumonia and arthritis and a culture needs to be done for a specific diagnosis.

In the wide shipping fever complex, Whittier believes mycoplasma is distinct enough to call it by its own name and it could then be treated more aggressively. He said he has seen an increased incidence of mycoplasma in sale barn calves where there is more exposure than there is on the farm.

Dr. John Lynch, a veterinarian with the Technical Services Group of Intervet, Inc., spoke on the preventive medicine available to provide immunology for calf health problems and avoid the previously discussed illnesses. Lynch has 20 years of experience as a veterinary consultant with beef cow/calf, stocker, and feedlot operations in the U.S. and Mexico.

About 150 cattle feeders turned out for the workshop at Yoder's Restaurant in New Holland in late July.

Beef, Swine, Lamb Competition Highlights Chester Roundup Week

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

HONEY BROOK (Chester Co.) — "Jeffrey" and "Electric" stood out strongly in market beef competition during Chester County 4-H Roundup Week.

"Jeffrey," a 1,279-pound purebred Angus out of the light heavyweight division, won grand champion. Wednesday evening, Ryan, 12, son of Cheryl and Bill Fairbairn, Coatesville, sold the steer to Hoss's Steak and Seafood House, represented by Craig Campbell, corporate director of development, Altoona, for $1.90 per pound.

Ryan, in the seventh grade at Coatesville Catholic, said he nicknamed the steer Jeffrey "because it looked like a Jeffrey," and is well behaved. This was Ryan's first champion at the roundup. He said he simply fed the steer more, and exercised the homebred champion twice weekly.

Ryan plans to exhibit at the Keystone International Livestock Expo (KILE) and Farm Show.

Reserve, nicknamed "Electric" by exhibitor Eliza Walton ('because I ran out of nicknames," she said), sold for $1.90 a pound to Tom Borrell, Borrell Mulch Hay and Straw, Cochranville.

Eliza, 16, is the daughter of Margaret and David Walton, Kennett Square. The Unionville High School junior said the middleweight champion steer was really nice and calm, and is homebred. Eliza won before at the roundup, and plans to show at Allentown, KILE, and Farm Show.

In the market hog competition, grand champion was the 258-pound heavyweight champion, a Yorkshire crossbred, exhibited by Hanna Mast.

Hanna, 14, daughter of David and Janet Mast, Elverson, nicknamed the hog "Rudy" because it "roots around a lot," said David. Hanna, Twin Valley High School sophomore, said this is the first time she has won champion, her second year in 4-H. The hog was purchased from Nelson Beam, Elverson.

Reserve was exhibited by Laurell Stoltzfus, 11, daughter of Scott and Bert Stoltzfus, Geigertown. The Twin Valley Middle School sixth grader, who was grand champion last year, she said, exhibited "Charlie," a Blue Butt that weighed 266 pounds, the heavyweight reserve. She named it Charlie because she liked the name. The hog was purchased from Nelson Beam, Elverson.

In market lamb competition, the grand champion was exhibited by Sara Howe, 19, daughter of Lamar and Mary Howe, Downingtown. Her brother, Doug, purchased the 120-pound heavyweight champion, a heavyweight crossbred ewe, for $8 per pound, representing AcryLabs Protective Coatings, Honey Brook.

Sara, who graduated in 2000 (homeschooled), said this was her first champion at roundup, her last year in 4-H. She purchased the lamb at New Holland Sales Stables with help from Ken Smoker. She said her family gets to choose between the best lambs, but it was her sisters Laura and Julia who allowed her to keep the best.

Rhoda Smoker, 15, daughter of Clair and Nancy Smoker, Honey Brook, exhibited the reserve champion, the reserve heavyweight at 142 pounds. Ken Smoker purchased the reserve champion for $5.25 per pound. The Suffolk crossbred ewe was nicknamed "Fran" because Rhoda said she liked the name. After six years of showing lambs at roundup, this homebred ewe was her first champion.

In the beef show, there were 15 animals and the same number of exhibitors. In the hog show, there were 111 animals and 42 exhibitors. The lamb show had 29 lambs and 20 exhibitors.

Following is a list of show placings.

Ryan Fairbairn, right, sold his grand champion market steer Wednesday evening to Hoss's Steak and Seafood, represented by Craig Campbell, corporate director of development, Altoona, for $1.90 a pound.

Eliza Walton, right, sold her reserve champion market steer Wednesday at the Chester County 4-H Roundup Livestock Sale to Tom Borrell, Borrell Mulch Hay and Straw, Cochranville, for $1.90 a pound.

Grand champion market hog, shown by Hanna Mast, went for $3.75 a pound to Thrifty Pallet, represented by Bill Fairbairn.

Reserve champion market hog at the Chester County 4-H Roundup, exhibited by Laurell Stoltzfus, went for $2 per pound to Hoss's Steak and Seafood House, represented by Craig Campbell.

Grand champion market lamb, exhibited by Sara Howe, was purchased for $8 per pound by Doug Howe, her brother, representing AcryLabs Protective Coatings, Honey Brook.

USDA-NRCS Receives AFO Regulation Comments

TOM HOPKINS
Maryland Correspondent

FREDERICK, Md. — In a promising gesture of outreach to local individual farmers, the U.S. Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) division of the USDA conducted six regional public meetings, called "listening sessions," rather than hearings.

The sessions were conducted to explain the goals and process in developing new regulations and guidelines regarding animal feeding operations (AFO) and concentrated animal feeding operations (CAFO). These meetings, such as the one in Frederick, Md. July 30 and concluding in Indianapolis, Ind. July 31, gave farmers the opportunity to speak their piece regarding these issues as outlined in the Federal Register, Volume 66, Number 128, Tuesday, July 3, 2001, available on the internet at www.nara.gov.

The plan is to develop and implement new and comprehensive nutrient management programs (CNMP). Both farmers and vendors were invited to speak and are encouraged to write. All aspects of operations such as manure and wastewater handling and storage, feeding schedules and formulations, land treatment practices, recordkeeping, and especially innovative solutions to situations that are considered problems are encouraged. In addition, the agency is willing to receive written comments until Wednesday, Aug. 15. Faxes can be sent to the agency at (301) 504-2264.

In conversations with a number of top individuals, including Thomas A. Weber, department chief for programs; Thomas W. Christensen, director of animal husbandry and clean waters division; Jose Acezdo and Carol Jeff, associate deputy chiefs of programs; and Lawrence Clark, deputy chief for science and technology, USDA, farmers noted the officials are not only interested in the position of farmers, but also in any innovative management methods that farmers have applied to the problems of water quality control (including nutrient management).

This attitude of interest and outreach was most emphatic at the Frederick meeting, where very few farmers spoke very eloquently. The meeting adjourned by 11:30 a.m. rather than the scheduled 3:30 p.m. Yet, this was the most highly attended meeting (more than 120 attended) of the six sessions.

The other meeting also showed a sense of confidence and delivery by the farmers that participated. These meetings were in Davis, Calif.; Raleigh, N.C.; Austin, Texas; Denver, Colo.; and Indianapolis, Ind. The results will be summarized in a working document at a later date.

Agriculture Department To Offer 47 Boars From Annual Performance Test

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes invites all swine breeders to attend the Department's Annual Performance Test Boar Sale Aug. 15 at the Penn State Ag Arena in State College.

The gavel falls on the auction block at 6 p.m. Forty-seven boars will be offered for purchase.

"This sale provides the very best genetics available from the Department's annual performance test," Hayes said. "The boars to be offered at the sale would complement any herd they enter into."

The annual Boar Performance Test, sponsored by the Department of Agriculture, helps Pennsylvania's swine industry stay on the cutting edge by providing high quality genetics through the test. Conducted at the Department's Livestock Evaluation Center in State College, the boars placed on test are evaluated in a controlled environment to measure genetic traits and performance. At the completion of the test, the highest-ranking boars are offered for auction to swine producers looking for high quality boars.

For a sale catalog or information about the boar sale, contact Glenn Eberly at (814) 238-2527, or visit the Department of Agriculture's homepage through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us or directly at www.pda.state.pa.us.

New Dairy Industry Relations Manager Hired

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program (PDPP) has welcomed Tom Smith to the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (ADADC) Mid East as an industry relations manager for western and north-central Pennsylvania.

Based in Harrisburg, Smith's responsibilities include serving as a spokesperson for PDPP and ADADC Mid East in the agricultural community, working with the PDPP board, informing dairy farmers about their checkoff investment, and conducting special events unique to Pennsylvania.

Before joining PDPP, Smith was a sire analyst for Atlantic Breeders Co-op. He also was the international market development manager for Pennsylvania DHIA and organization director for the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau.

Smith is a graduate of Delaware Valley College with a major in dairy husbandry. During his college career, Smith received the Dairy Shrine Award and was on the 1983 dairy judging team.

Growing up with Guernseys on his family dairy farm in Palmyra, Tom is no stranger to the dairy industry. Smith currently lives in Palmyra with his wife, Sandi, and their four children.

PDPP contracts with the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East to implement advertising, marketing, promotion, and nutrition education program on behalf of dairy farmers in 33 counties in western and north-central Pennsylvania.

DEP Increases For County Conservation Districts

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) recently announced it will increase its supplemental 2001-2002 Chapter 105 funding to delegated county conservation districts to $250,000. This commitment reflects DEP's interest in working cooperatively with the conservation districts and in being responsive to their partners' concerns.

Through a variety of funding sources, including Growing Greener, DEP has invested more than $32 million over the past two years with their conservation district partners. Additionally, DEP has placed 51 Watershed Specialists in conservation districts across the commonwealth.

"DEP is excited about the positive results being achieved through our partnership with conservation districts," DEP Deputy Secretary for Water Management Larry Tropea said. "We look forward to beneficial ways to further strengthen our partnership."

Under the Chapter 105 Program, delegated county conservation districts assist DEP by helping landowners and municipalities comply with the department's Chapter 105 general permit requirements. Conservation district also provide training on regulatory requirements and respond to citizens' questions regarding activities in streams, waterways and wetlands. DEP believes these activities are an essential service to local citizens and governments. Last year, DEP invested an additional $150,000 to help delegated conservation districts effectively carry out the Chapter 105 program.

The decision to use funds for the Chapter 105 program highlights the department's recognition of the need to work with conservation districts to increase public understanding of activities in streams, waterways and wetlands.

Seven Breeds Turn Out For Reading Dairy Show

READING (Berks Co.) — A wide variety of dairy breeds were on exhibit here Wednesday for the combined youth and open shows.

Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Jersey, Holstein, Lineback, and Red and White calves, heifers, and cows were led before the judge.

Overall grand champions and reserve champions were selected for each of the seven breeds.

Zahncraft Astre Louann, a 4-year-old cow shown by David Sattazahn of Womelsdorf emerged as grand champion Holstein female.

"Today she had the most bloom and overall style," said judge Alan Hostetter of Sattazahn's grand champion. "She is a very balanced dairy cow."

Sattazahn is a member of the Western Berks 4-H Club and has been showing dairy animals for about 8 years.

Besides helping with "just about everything" on the Holstein dairy farm of his parents Dennis and Betsy Sattazahn, David owns four Brown Swiss, one of which was also selected as grand champion at the show.

Four heifers from one of the lesser known breeds — the Lineback — were exhibited by the Kevin and Lisa Kulp family of Leesport. Son Kyle, 10, and a friend, Zachary Ott, held the halters for the animals.

Lisa Kulp said that one of the reasons the family decided to raise Linebacks is because "they're unique."

U.S. Department Of Energy Sponsoring Two Ethanol Workshops

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — The U.S. Department of Energy will sponsor two ethanol workshops for rural America in Pennsylvania in late August. They are scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 28, in Mars, (north of Pittsburgh) at the Sheraton Inn, and Thursday, Aug. 30, in Grantville at the Holiday Inn.

The workshops will explore how Pennsylvania farmers and agricultural businesses can profit from establishing ethanol plants in the state. A steering committee made up state farm organizations and agencies has provided assistance in planning the agenda and logistics for the workshops.

Target audience for the workshops includes farmers, ranchers, ag organizations, agencies that serve agriculture and businesses that support rural communities. Others who are urged to participate include Rural Economic Development groups, bankers, local government officials, farmer owned cooperatives, county RC&D groups, and state and local environmental agencies. Audience participation will be encouraged and time will be allowed for questions and answers.

Preregistering is encouraged to help with planning for space and luncheon. A registration form can be obtained from David Bingaman at the PDA at (717) 772-5208, or from EPAC at (406) 785-3722 or by logging on to www.ethanolmt.org. A $20 fee will be charged to cover the cost of luncheon.

The agenda will be identical at each location. An introduction to the workshop will be given at 8:30 a.m. by Ann Hegnauer, of the DOE Office of Fuels Development, with a welcome by Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes. The first session will be an introduction to Ethanol, to cover the basics and history of the fuel, presented by Bob Dineen, vice president of the Washington, D.C. based Renewable Fuels Association.

The economics of marketing the fuel in the northeast will be presented by John Urbanchuk, a consultant with AUS. Marc Tosiano, of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistical Service will present crop data.

Marketing and utilization of ethanol fuel will be addressed by Mike Allen, of Allen Oil, who owns and operates stations that market ethanol blended fuels, and by Shirley Ball, executive director for Ethanol Producers And Consumers (EPAC) who drives a flexible fueled vehicle that can be powered on E-85, a fuel made up of 85 percent ethanol and 15 percent gas.

Utilizing the high protein distillers grains co-product as livestock rations will be presented by Dr. John Fidler and a speaker to be announced.

Larry Johnson, project development manager for Delta-T, will speak on feasibility studies and how to get started on an ethanol project. Larry Johnson, who was the 'Ethanol Answer Man' during the time Minnesota was developing its strong ethanol program, will also speak during the session on "State and Federal Public Policy" to discuss policies that provide market push and market pull.

Current case studies will be a report from people who currently manage ethanol plants. Dan Thompson, Minnesota Corn Processors will speak at the Mars workshop and Jim Glancey, of the Wyoming Ethanol plant will speak at the Grantville workshop.

New production technologies for value added processing of corn will be presented by researchers ViJay Singh and Kevin Hicks, who are associated with the USDA Ag Research Service at the Eastern Regional Research Center in Wyndmoor.

Kelly Ibsen and Rafael Nieves with the National Renewable Energy Laboratory in Golden, Colo. will speak on "Ethanol from Cellulosic Biomass, and the Opportunities in Pennsylvania."

The next session features Pennsylvania developments, assistance and programs that are available. Speakers include David Carver, of the York County Industrial Development Corp., Gerald Ely, Cooperative Development Specialist with USDA Rural Development, and Dick Poorbaugh, with Penn State Cooperative Business Education and Research Program.

Dairy Promotion Groups Together At Ag Progress Days

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Dairy farmers are invited to 2001 Ag Progress Days to learn more about how dairy checkoff programs are working to increase dairy product demand.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program (PDPP), American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East (ADADC Mid East), and the American Dairy Association/ Dairy Council Middle Atlantic (ADA/DC Middle Atlantic) will host a joint exhibit at the annual event, Aug. 14-16 at the Ag Progress Days grounds.

All dairy farmers and anyone affiliated with the dairy industry are invited to visit the joint exhibit in Dairy and Livestock Tent #1 to learn more about both local and national dairy promotion efforts. Farmers are encouraged to register for a special drawing while visiting the display.

Pennsylvania dairy farmers are also invited to a free luncheon and informational meeting hosted by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program at noon, Thursday, Aug. 16 in the Special Events Building at Ag Progress Days. This will serve as the annual meeting for PDPP and a great opportunity for farmers to hear more about new dairy promotion initiatives, including milk vending. For reservations, call (800) 292-MILK.

Discover Tomato Possibilities

Pennsylvania's fresh market tomato crop is grown on 4,000 acres. Another 1,400 acres are used to grow tomatoes for food processors.

Perhaps no other vegetables, with the possible exception of sweet corn, highlights the summer dinner table like farm-fresh tomatoes.

Despite the industry's best efforts, nothing can compare to a tomato that is ripened on the vine.

According to the Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program, tomatoes are a member of the nightshade family along with potatoes, peppers, and eggplant. Europeans considered the tomato fruit poisonous when Spanish explorers brought the plants back to Europe from South America, and grew it as an ornamental houseplant.

It wasn't until the 19th century that the tomato began gaining acceptance as a food. Initially, both Europeans and Americans were careful to cook tomatoes for hours to neutralize "poisons." Finally in the last half of the 19th century, people realized the tomato was safe and delicious to eat raw or lightly cooked.

Tomatoes are almost considered a staple in the American diet because they combine so easily with so many different foods such as pasta, rice, poultry, and fish as well as other vegetables.

Tomatoes picked before they are fully ripe can develop an appetizing flavor and texture if two basic conditions are met. First, the tomatoes must not be refrigerated. They should be stored at room temperature or at least 55 degrees. Unripe tomatoes that have been subjected to temperatures below this level will never ripen satisfactorily.

Food and medical authorities recommend eating three to five servings of vegetables each day. Fresh tomatoes provide an excellent source of vitamins and minerals. In fact, one medium tomato supplies more than 40 percent of the daily allowance of vitamin C and 20 percent of vitamin A plus potassium — all with only 35 calories.

Here are some recipes.

MOTHER-IN-LAW'S DELICIOUS KETCHUP

2 gallons uncooked tomato chunks
2 onions

Boil together tomato chunks and onions. Put through tomato strainer. Add:

5 tablespoons salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
2 cups vinegar

Boil one hour, add:

6 cups sugar
7 tablespoons Clear Jel

Boil mixture an additional hour. Fill pint jars, adjust lid, and process 15 minutes in boiling water bath.

TOMATO COCKTAIL

6 quarts tomato juice
2 teaspoons onion salt
2 teaspoons celery salt
2 teaspoons garlic salt
Pepper to taste
1½ cups sugar
2 tablespoons salt

Wash, cut, boil, and put through sieve (about 1 peck tomatoes, enough to make 6 quarts juice. Add remaining ingredients and bring to a boil, put in jars and process for 5 minutes. If you don't like garlic, omit garlic salt.

This makes a great tasting juice and is good for chili or any tomato dish. I use for tomato soup too.

TOMATO AND CHEESE SALAD

12 slices tomatoes
12 slices fresh mozzarella cheese
Red wine vinegar
Olive oil
Salt and pepper to taste
lettuce leaves
Oregano

Line dinner plate with tomato slices, top with cheese. Drizzle oil and vinegar over plate and salt and pepper to taste. May arrange over lettuce leaves if desired. Drizzle oregano sparingly over top of cheese when ready to serve. Wonderful with crusty bread and sufficient for a lunch. Yields 3-4 servings.

STUFFED TOMATO

1 tomato
Tuna or egg salad (your favorite recipe)
Lettuce leaves
Sprig parsley

Line plate with lettuce leaves. Core tomato and leave about one-inch pulp around tomato. Turn tomato over to drain juice. When drained, stuff with your favorite tuna or egg salad and garnish with a sprig of parsley. Before filling tomato, take a knife and make an X into the tomato about halfway down so it opens into four quarters — stuff. Ingredient amounts depend on size of tomato.

Variation: This same process can be used for cherry tomatoes and served as an appetizer. Don't cut the X on the cherry tomatoes—they're too small.

BETTY'S BOILED HERB TOMATOES

⅓ cup flour
4 tablespoons melted butter
3 tablespoons light brown sugar or honey
2 teaspoons chopped fresh tarragon or parsley
1 teaspoon chopped fresh chives
½ teaspoon chopped fresh thyme
1 teaspoon salt
Ground peppercorns for topping

Cut tomatoes in half horizontally. Place flour in shallow bowl and roll each half of tomato, fully coating each. Dip in melted butter. Place in baking dish and sprinkle the brown sugar or dribble the honey over tomatoes. Add herbs, salt, and pepper. Broil until golden brown, approximately five minutes, and serve immediately. Do not overcook.

Serves 4-6.

Salsa is the Mexican word for sauce, which can mean cooked or fresh mixtures. In recent years, the availability and variety of salsa has exploded in the U.S. Varieties range from mild spiciness to mouth-searing hot.

Salsas are a great way to liven up grilled meats, seafoods, and a variety of other dishes. But the most popular is probably as a dip using tortilla chips.

Serve fresh salsa within a few hours of preparation. If it sits too long, the acidic ingredients will cook the salsa and ruin its texture. Raw ingredients such as raw garlic, onion, and chilies will oxidize making the flavors sharp. Allow to stand 15-20 minutes before serving for flavors to mingle. Serve at room temperature or slightly chilled.

Here is an easy recipe to make use of tomatoes in season.

TOMATO SALSA

2 cups diced plum tomatoes
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup diced yellow or green bell pepper
1 jalapeno pepper, seeded, veined, minced
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon cilantro, chopped
1 tablespoon oil
1 tablespoon fresh lime juice
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 clove garlic, minced

In a large bowl, combine all ingredients. Cover and refrigerate for a few hours to blend flavors. Makes 3 cups.

On Being a Farm Wife

(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Looks like a record year in the making.

Just a couple of weeks ago, we broke the record for chilliness around our area when the temperature dropped down into the two-blanket level one mid-July night. A two-blanket night — two blankets being needed to sleep with any level of comfortable warmth — is way more common about late September.

It brought to mind those rare instances, I recall reading about when snow has fluttered at isolated spots in the state during midsummer.

Less than two weeks later, we either tied or set a record for heat — depending on whose thermometer one was reading that day — when the mercury inched up to the other extreme. Though we rarely set up a fan, an old one was hauled up from storage in the basement, just to get some air moving. Which, in reality, is far more typical for this season than two-blanket nights.

Also, while it may not be record dry, the lingering moistureless-skies continue to drag us in that direction. After a relatively dry winter, following by a relatively dry spring, would we really expect anything else? So, day after day, as the corn leaves curl tighter under the midday heat, The Farmer haunts The Weather Channel. His frustration deepens with each eastward creeping front which slides away up along the front edge of the Appalachians, or scoots out to sea across Eastern Shore leaving us high and dry. High temperatures, high humidity, dry skies.

If folks could "will" it to rain just by concentrating on it, I'd be packing to move into an ark, with all the moisture-wishful thinking energy The Farmer has been directing at the TV remote. We rejoiced when a gentle, if sparse, shower last weekend at least slightly rinsed off the dust-plagued corn stalks and crinkly-dry, third-cutting alfalfa stubble. A week of 'em would be more than welcome.

And, if temperature and moisture records weren't enough to set, along came this string of record-setting calf happenings.

In late March, we established what might be a new farm calving record when the 40 heifers that freshened out over about six weeks gave us an uncommonly high percentage of bouncing, baby girls. For weeks, the calf pens practically ran over with bawling little heifer babies loudly begging for bottles twice each day. By the time they had been weaned, our calving had swung a complete 180-degree turnaround and gone into calf nursery drought period. Three babies to feed is a record low that I can remember.

It didn't last long.

"Boy, you have a bunch of calves again," chuckled a visitor recently.

"And a bunch less than could be there," I had to add. But not for lack of our girls trying to fill up those pens.

Indeed, the barn crew struggled one morning last week with a heifer stretched on her side, laboring to calve. When it was determined just how tangled the legs and heads of the two yep, two — babies were, they knew a different approach was needed. The Farmer managed to get her up and on her feet, which took some of her "push" pressure away and allowed the calves to recede a bit. That enabled him to disentangle the calves limbs just enough to deliver them. Dead. A pair of bull calves.

Just a few hours later, our daughter spotted a laboring cow in distress in the meadow. She was quickly brought into the barn calving pens and — again — after some assistance from all of us anxiously waiting, delivered a calf. Heifer. In an unwanted summer rerun, yet another dead heifer calf followed.

But, our luck was changing. Sort of.

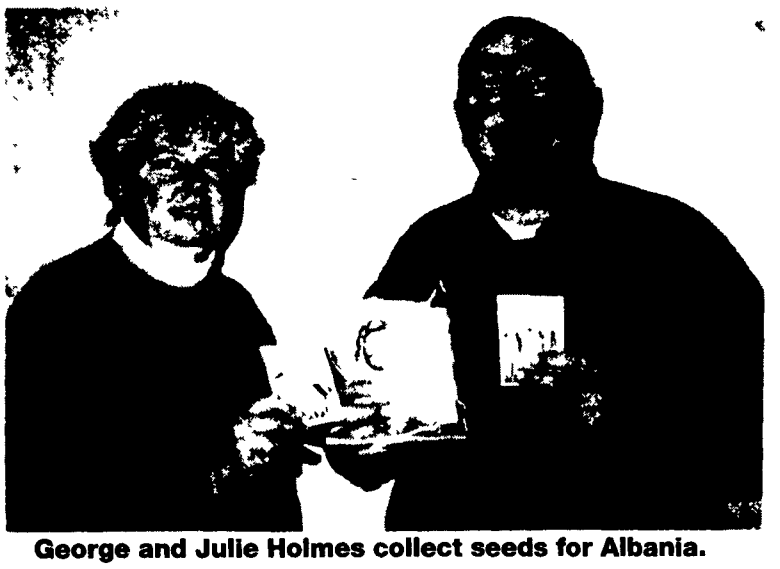
Less than 24 hours later, yet another cow calved. With another pair of twins. Alive and healthy, it was a bull-heifer set.

As all veteran cattlemen are aware, a heifer calf born twinned to a bull, in about 98 percent of all cases, lacks her major reproduction organs. No sensible explanation, just Mother Nature's quirk with cattle twins. So, our twins, for all practical breeding herd purposes, were a bull and...a steer.

But, it was a record for us. Three sets of twins in three consecutive births. And not a single one out of six available for growing on as milking herd replacements.

Enough already. Can we just skip all this record-setting stuff and just go back to "normal?"

Whatever that is.



George and Julie Holmes collect seeds for Albania.

Seeds Needed For Albania

TRUMANSBURG, N.Y. — Soon local stores will be discarding vegetable and flower seeds. If that is the case in your area, the Holmes could use them for their mission work in Albania.

George and Julie Holmes have been short term missionaries in Albania for eight years. This time of the year, local stores throw good seeds in dumpsters or burn them. Help the Holmes out and ask store managers to donate those seeds to Albania.

In January, the Holmes along with other farmers, helped to put together 3,446 family seed packets of 10 vegetable and two flower seed and the "History of Jesus." Those family seed packets went to 48 villages in Albania this year. Holmes got to see results of last year's seeds and the people were so thankful to receive them. The seeds are a gift from Americans to help the Albanians grow more nutritious food for their families.

If you would like to contact the Holmes with questions or donations of seeds, phone (607) 387-6538 or write 3220 Jacksonville Road, Trumansburg, NY 14886.

Consuming Thoughts

Fay Strickler

A lot of people assume that if a blue cheese is made in Europe, it's better than what we make here. Most experts agree that it's not better. It's just different.

Blue cheese is noted for its blue veins, semi-soft texture and piquant, tangy flavor. The strain of blue mold, rather than the veining visible are one factor that determines its distinctive flavor.

Traditionally, domestic Gorgonzola cheese has a sharper flavor than blue cheese because of its longer curing time. Lower moisture content makes it more crumbly.

When domestic blue cheese is made, the milk for production comes from area farmers. After pasteurization and homogenization, enzymes and harmless bacteria cultures are added to the milk to begin the blue-veining process.

The curds are transferred to round cheese forms or hoops and turned hourly to drain the remaining whey. After 12 hours, the cheese is removed from the hoops and rolled in salt or placed in salt brine to aid flavor development and preservation. It is then placed on storage racks for seven days. As many as 60 holes are punched in each wheel, contributing to the development of the characteristic blue mold.

The blue cheese wheel requires 60 days for cooking and curing. Gorgonzola requires an additional 30 days for aging. Some of the more popular of the blue cheeses include dana-blu, roquefort and stilton.

Try blue cheese in a moist, rich spoonbread for brunch or lunch; or in a low-calorie dressing or dip that's high in flavor.

Here is a low calorie blue cheese dip you may want to try.

Slimline Blue Cheese Dressing And Dip

- ½ cup unflavored nonfat yogurt
- ¼ cup skim milk
- ½ cup thinly sliced green onions, including green tops
- ¼ cup crumbled blue cheese (1 ounce)
- ½ small clove garlic, pressed
- ¼ teaspoon basil
- ¼ teaspoon crushed rosemary
- Salt, to taste

In small bowl combine yogurt and milk. Mix in onions, blue cheese, garlic, herbs and salt. Cover and chill 30 minutes or more to blend flavors. Serve as a dressing for salads or as a dip for vegetable chunks. Makes about 1¼ cups.

Storing cheese properly is important to maintain product quality. Firm, semi-firm and semi-soft cheese should be wrapped airtight in a plastic bag and stored in a refrigerator's cheese compartment (or warmest location) for up to several weeks. Such cheeses can be frozen, but will likely undergo a textural change. Fresh and soft-ripened cheeses should be tightly wrapped and stored in the coldest part of the refrigerator, generally for no more than two weeks.

If mold appears on firm, semi-firm or semi-soft cheese, simply cut away the offending portion (plus a little extra) and discard. Mold on fresh or soft-ripened cheese, however, signals that it should be thrown out. Firm and semi-firm cheeses are easier to grate if they're cold. All cheese tastes better if brought to room temperature before serving.

Read This Before Recycling That Old Computer

Thinking about selling, donating, or disposing of an old personal computer?

If so, federal officials urge you to delete financial records, tax returns, and other personal information from your PC.

Why? Because computer files often contain Social Security numbers, birth dates, bank account numbers, and other personal information that can be used to commit "identity theft" — to make purchases or get cash using your name.

Just choosing to "delete" files using the basic commands on your keyboard or mouse won't do the job, because the deleted information still can be easily retrieved from your computer's hard drive. Use software available from computer stores that is formatted to completely erase computer files.

Non-Native Plants Threaten Survival Of Native Insects, Birds

NEWARK, Del. — Ever wonder about an insect's preferred cuisine? Not likely, unless, of course, the critter in question is an uninvited guest chewing on your prize rose. Yet Dr. Doug Tallamy, University of Delaware professor of entomology and applied ecology, is concerned.

In a recent study, he found that insects largely ignore the leaves of non-native plants, opting instead to eat the leaves of native species. But with non-native plants choking out native growth, the insects' food supply is disappearing rapidly. At issue is the availability of insect food, a fact on which the entire food chain rests.

"Why should the disappearance of insects concern people who spend millions every year getting rid of them in the garden?" Tallamy poses. "Plants are at the base of the food chain, and insects feed on plants. If insects disappear, so do the creatures that depend on them.

"More than 90 percent of insects are restricted in their diets, because they do not have the enzymes required to digest the leaves of non-native plants, sometimes referred to as exotics," he explains. "Fewer plant food sources, fewer insects, wildlife vanishes."

Over several months this year Tallamy and Rebekah Baity, an undergraduate researcher in the UD College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, began to measure the amount of leaf area eaten by insects on more than two dozen plants and trees. His research site was 10 acres of long uncultivated farmland in Chester County, where non-natives — specifically, oriental bittersweet, autumn olive, Japanese honeysuckle and multiflora rose — have crept into unmowed fields once inhabited by native plants.

Evaluating the food preferences of native insects, Tallamy found that the insects consumed 239 square centimeters of the leaves on black oak, a Native American tree, as compared with 12 square centimeters of Norway maple, a highly invasive species rapidly spreading throughout eastern North America.

The UD entomologist says that although a number of studies have been conducted on ecological problems caused by non-native plants, the focus has been the economics of unchecked invasion and the biological threat of displacing native plants. Tallamy believes his is the first study to quantify the effects of non-native plants on the food supply of insects, relate it to the food supply of birds and the ultimate consequence to ecological balance.

"Fast-growing non-native vines such as bittersweet, Japanese honeysuckle and climbing bushes such as multiflora rose can actually strangle a healthy tree — even a native mulberry like this one," Tallamy says, pointing to a huge tree trapped under a jumble of honeysuckle vines.

"All plants vie for sunshine for photosynthesis, yet vines have an advantage," he says. "Before long, the tree weakens, first losing its ability to bear leaves, seeds and fruit, then declining to the point that a wind or ice storm finishes it off. The result is a loss of plant food for insects and protein and shelter for birds."

Tallamy points to the multiflora rose as an example of a shrub introduced into this country as an ornamental plant. This rose offers excellent nesting sites for birds and berries for birds to forage in fall, so marketers purposely appeal to people who encourage wildlife in their yards, gardens and farms. But now this aggressively-growing bush has overtaken creek banks and roadsides all over the U.S., effectively choking out native plant species.

"Yes, it does provide nesting and berries for winter-feeding birds," notes a frustrated Tallamy," but what is overlooked is that native birds also nest in native plants. More important, when raising their young in the spring, birds depend upon a supply of insects and larvae to feed hatchlings. If the insects are eliminated, so are future generations of birds."

According to Tallamy, when people see green open spaces they think nature has taken over. What they don't recognize is that the fields of green in many parts of southeastern Pennsylvania and Delmarva are overrun with 90 percent non-native growth.

"A green field in which the native plants have been chocked out by invasive non-native ones is more productive than a parking lot when it comes to providing food for insects, birds and other animals," the scientist says.

"The non-native butterfly bush is another case in point. People plant butterfly bushes in the mistaken idea that they are helping nature," he says. "Okay, the bush attracts butterflies for its flower nectar, but they will not lay their eggs on these leaves, because the foliage offers no nutrition to the hatching larva.

"Planting a native species, such as viburnum, milkweed, Joe Pye weed or purple cone flower for every butterfly bush — now that would really help nature."

Tallamy is optimistic that the data he and Baity have collected will attract the attention of birders, who may be able to influence the garden marketplace.

"I hope the scientific evidence gathered in this study will help spur people into action," says Tallamy. "Just imagine the future impact on the bird populations and our natural heritage if homeowners replaced the non-native ornamental plants on their property with plant species historically native to the area."

New York Dairy Princess Promoters Receive Training

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The annual New York State Dairy Princess Seminar was conducted July 5 and 6, at the White Eagle Conference Center in Hamilton, N.Y. Thirty-two princesses along with their chaperones attended the two-day seminar, for an educational start to the various programs and functions of the princess program in New York State.

"It gives ADADC the opportunity to inform the girls of what is expected of them during their reign," says coordinator Meghan Fullington. "It also gives them a chance to meet their fellow promoters, and myself the opportunity to meet the girls I will be working with for the next year."

The dairy princess program is designed to increase the consumption and sales of fluid milk and dairy products. It is also as a means to foster better relations between urban and rural people, through one-on-one contact at the local level. Dairy princesses serve this purpose by spending their reign out amongst the people of their counties, whether it is serving ice cream at a county fair, doing a school program, or attending a store promotion. The dairy princess is an enthusiast who knows the amount of labor it takes to produce dairy products.

At the seminar, the girls take part in a number of activities, which will help them to better educate the public about dairy products. For instance, the first day the girls participated in a media workshop giving them tips on how to work with local newspapers on submitting articles; a fashion show on dairy princess fashion do's and don'ts put on by the three state princesses; and the Madison County Health Department also helped to better educate the girls on the health benefits in milk needed for strong bones.

Day two allowed the girls to view some of their fellow promoter's school programs. School programs are a mandatory part of their reign at the county level. The State Princesses Kendra Inman, Elizabeth Newbold, and Heather Nowland, along with Melinda Wolfe, the Pennsylvania state princess, critiqued the school programs and offered advice on including fun and educational information.

Throughout their reign as a county princess, each girl is required to fulfill a base incentive consisting of 10 school programs, six newspaper articles, and two farm meetings.

New York dairy princesses gather for training recently.

The seminar is the start of what for most is a very fulfilling year. After completing her base requirements, each girl is eligible to compete for the title of New York State Dairy Princess at the 39th annual New York State Dairy Princess Coronation on Feb. 20.

Certified Organic Farmers Preserve The Land, Open Health Food Store

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) "God has really blest our land we should take care of it," said Gerald Smith, an organic farmer and health food store owner.

Gerald, his wife, Julie, and son, Joshua, live on a farm just south of Bedford where they have five acres of land in organic fruits and vegetables.

"We plan to clear more land as we have the time and money to do it," Gerald says.

Neat, weedless, rows of blueberries, black berries, red and yellow raspberries, tomatoes, cucumbers, squash, and corn all grown organically are a delicious sight on a cloudless July morning when the air is heavily scented with the smells of summer. Huge, mouth-melting blueberries are ripe and are just one of nearly a dozen varieties grown by the Smiths. Gerald says there are more then 200 varities of blueberries.

Raspberries, so sweet, one could easily bake an unsugared pie, will soon be ready for picking.

"This year, for the first time, we hope to open picking to the public," he adds.

"We are certified organic farmers and, that is no easy task. We must pass an inspection each year. We use no chemical fertilizers or sprays and we use no chemicals for pest control. We even have to be careful of the type of bindertwine we use." Gerald said.

Gerald and Julie began their farming experience in 1989. As their interest in organic farming growing increased so their interest in alternative health care. Increasing their knowledge in vitamins, minerals and other natural supplements, the young couple featured a line in a local open market store. As the demand increased, they saw a need for more space and, in several years ago, opened their own store on Pitt Street in Bedford.

"With more space we are able to carry cereals, canned items, and other organically grown or natural products," explains Gerald. "We try to carry organic produce such as kiwi and bananas when possible. The store also provides a market for our own produce."

In a small town, word travels fast and it doesn't take long for any of the outstanding vegetables or berries grown on the Smith farm to disappear.

Some of it never makes it to the shop as Gerald also trucks organic produce to a larger market.

"Our number one problem is predators," the young farmer admits. "We have bugs, birds, raccoons, skunks, opossums, and deer."

"Fighting them naturally isn't easy. We use the praying mantis, ladybugs, green lacy wing, and hairy flies to fight bad bugs. We're grateful for birds like the Eastern bluebird and flycatchers which devour tons of our bug predators."

They use bird callers which sound like hawks or crows to keep the bad birds away and trap a lot of the smaller mammals, transporting them to another location.

The raspberries are almost ripe and ready for picking.

"Then there are droughts or late frosts to add to our aggravations. We have an irrigation system but, thankfully, have not had to use it much this year. It's been a wonderful growing season. Tomato plants were out very early and we only had a few nights that we had to cover them.

"But despite everything, it's all worth it! We like what we are doing and we are preserving the land God gave us."

Gerald and Josh work at weeding the blueberries.

Rodale Institute To Host Workshop For Family Farm Owners

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — The Rodale Institute will host a Field Day and Workshop on Thursday, Aug. 23 titled "Profitable and Environmental Approaches to Regenerating Family Farms."

The workshop will cover farming and marketing techniques designed to help family farmers learn how to "regenerate" their farm for improved yield and profitability.

Topics to be covered will include: soil and livestock/ nutrient management for improved water quality; covercrops and rotations; transitioning to an organic system; marketing techniques; and a farm equipment tour.

The field day will take place at The Rodale Institute Experimental Farm, 611 Siegfriedale Road, Kutztown. Admission to the workshop is free, and the first 100 registrants get a free lunch and mileage reimbursement. Preregistration is required, and walk-ins must register upon arrival. Interested farmers should contact Maria Pop at (610) 683-1481 or maria.pop@rodaleinst.org.

The day is being co-sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection and the USDA Initiative for Future Agriculture and Food Systems. The Rodale Institute Experimental Farm is comprised of 333 acres, 290 of which are certified organic. The acreage has been organically farmed since 1972, and functioning as a CSA since 2000. The Experimental Farm conducts a variety of research on soil health and compost, as well as growing grains and forage, vegetables and apples.

Tips To Store Garden Vegetables

Most garden produce needs to be stored either cold, 32-40 F or cool, 50-60 F. Two refrigerators will simplify matters. If cool storage is not available, those vegetables should be stored only briefly. Humidity is also important. Some vegetables need dry storage about 65 percent relative humidity (RH); others need moist 95 percent RH. Home refrigerators are usually dry 50-60 percent RH.

Use perforated plastic bags to create moist conditions because unperforated plastic may cause excessive moisture.

The following crops should be stored cold and moist. (Storage times are estimates).

Broccoli keeps about 2 weeks.

Cabbage keeps up to 5 months.

Green beans keep about one week. Will develop pits below 40F.

Escarole stores two to three weeks.

Lima beans, shelled, keeps about a week

Muskmelon and ripe melons will store up to 10 days

Sweet corn, husk to conserve space. Keeps 2-5 days depending on variety.

These crops should be stored cool and moist.

Slicing cucumbers keeps about a week; develop pitting below 40F.

Eggplant stores about one week; will discolor below 50F.

Okra stores for one week.

Summer squash about one week; if refrigerated, keep only a few days.

Sweet peppers will keep two weeks; develops pitting below 45F.

Watermelon will keep about one week at room temperature, two weeks in the refrigerator; decays below 50F more than a few days.

Tomatoes are best never refrigerated. Exposed to temperatures below 50F, unripe ones will not ripen. Ripe tomatoes loose eating quality rapidly in the refrigerator. Garlic and onions need cold and dry storage. Winter squash and pumpkins need cool and dry.

Storage life depends on the condition of the produce as well as storage conditions. Don't expect to store damaged vegetables for these lengths of time.

It's In The Bag!
Healthy Lunch Box Tips

With school just around the corner, it's time to dust off the lunch box and get ready for the busy days ahead. Lunch provides the fuel children need to get through an afternoon of school lessons and activities.

When packing lunches, you want to provide about ⅓ of the daily food needs of your child. This means choosing at least one serving of food from each of the food groups in the pyramid. This would include 2 servings of fruits and/or vegetables, 1 serving of low-fat milk, yogurt or cheese, 1 or 2 servings from the bread, pasta and grain group, 1 serving from the meat group, with small amounts of food from the tip of the pyramid for added pleasure.

One of the keys to packing healthy lunches involves planning. If morning is hectic at your house, try packing lunches the night before, or better yet while you're cleaning up from supper. Get the kids involved in planning their lunches. They are more likely to eat what's in their lunch if they helped prepare it. Have them write down menu ideas to use as your guide when shopping. When preparing fresh fruits and vegetables for supper, place some in containers for use in lunches the next day. Add some yogurt or lowfat dressing for dipping. If your budget allows buy items already prepared or in individual sized serving containers. If this isn't possible, buy foods in larger quantities and then repackage in small plastic containers or bags, store properly, then grab and use as needed.

Younger children may be satisfied with, or even insist on having the same thing everyday. That's OK, one meal or several meals the same does not make or break a diet.

It's far better for them to eat the same thing everyday, then not to eat or to trade with a schoolmate. While sandwiches are a simple way to include many of the food groups, they are not the only way. Here are some ideas to use if your kids are tired of "the same old thing." Cut fruits and vegetables into bite size pieces or strips. Make kabobs with fruits/vegetables on a straw, add some cheese cubes. Send along dips for fruits and vegetables, such as lowfat yogurt or salad dressings. Add variety by using different breads such as pita bread, soft tortillas, English muffins or try whole grain crackers. Top sandwiches with cucumbers, sprouts, red or green pepper strips for more adventurous eaters. Send along dry cereal or granola to mix in with yogurt. Pack pretzels, rice cakes or Cheerios instead of potato chips. Allow for special treats as well, cookies or snack bars or include a special note from mom or dad.

In most cases refrigerators and microwave ovens will not be available for use, so be sure to take the necessary steps to ensure cold foods remain cold and hot foods remain hot. Invest in an unbreakable thermos and insulated lunch bag. For hot foods, preheat the thermos (make sure it is one specifically designed for hot food) by pouring in hot water. Reheat foods to 165F before placing them in the thermos. An ice pack of some type should be placed in the insulated bag to keep cold foods cold. Freezing a juice box or a container of yogurt will also work. Sandwiches can also be frozen. To avoid sogginess do not put condiments on the sandwich before freezing. Use containers that are designed specifically for carrying foods. Throw away any foods brought home and be sure to thoroughly clean containers, bags, and lunch boxes daily with soap and water.

Menu ideas: Peanut butter and honey on whole grain submarine roll, fresh orange slices, three vanilla wafers and milk. Tuna salad on whole wheat bread, strawberry, grape and orange fruit kabobs with lowfat fruit flavored yogurt for dipping, three small chocolate chip cookies and a juice box. Tortilla roll ups (low fat ham or turkey and cheese rolled on a whole wheat tortilla), carrot and celery strips with salsa, two oatmeal cookies and milk.

While these ideas may not appeal to everyone, they may spark other ideas to get the school year off on the right foot with healthy and nutritious lunches.

ANSWER — Cindy Donahue-Varsaci, Berverly, N.J., requested a recipe for canning red beets and making red beet eggs. Thanks to Norma McClure, York, for sending her mother's recipe. Also Nancy Kramer sent in a similar recipe and Grace Shetter, Albrutis. Neither recipe specifies the amount of beets but is probably a peck.

Pickled Beets

Select small, young beets, leave 3-inches of top on and roots. Wash thoroughly, using a vegetable brush. Boil beets until tender, skin by slipping off skins under cold water, slice beets. Make syrup with the following ingredients:

2 cups water or beet juice
2 cups vinegar
2 scant cups sugar
1 teaspoon salt
Few whole cloves, optional (remove before canning as they can leave dark spots on the beets.
Pinch black pepper

Bring syrup to good boil and add sliced beets. If canning, bring syrup to a rolling boil, pour into sterilized jars filled with sliced beets, and seal in boiling water bath for 30 minutes.

To make red beet eggs, cook as many hard boiled eggs as desired and add to the syrup and red beets. May slice in onions. Delicious. Put into gallon containers and refrigerate several hours before serving.

To save time you may substitute 4 15-ounce cans sliced red beets in place of the raw beets.

ANSWER — Sarah Algoe requested a recipe for ice cream cake that has a decorative frosting like Carvel Ice cream cakes. Thanks to Kathryn Zook, Gap, and another reader for sending identical recipes so it must be great tasting.

4 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
Peanut butter
½ gallon vanilla ice cream
Chocolate fudge ice cream topping
Whipped cream topping

Mix first six ingredients and put into two 9x13-inch cake pans and bake at 350 degrees 15-20 minuts. Spread peanut butter on cake while it is still hot. Cool. Add ice cream topping and whipped cream topping. Sprinkle with nuts or sprinkles if desired.

ANSWER — In answer to a Somerset County reader wanting a recipe for Black Forest Cherry Cake. Thanks to Charlotte VanBuskirk for sending her favorite recipe.

Black Forest Cherry Cake

6 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 squares unsweetened baking chocolate, melted and cooled
1 cup sifted flour

Syrup:

⅓ cup sugar
⅓ cup water
2 tablespoons Kirsch

Butter-Cream Filling:

1½ cups confectioners' sugar
½ cup unsalted butter
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons Kirsch liquor

Topping:

2 cups drained, canned sour cherries, patted dry
2 tablspoons confectioners' sugar
1 cup heavy cream
Whipped 8-ounce semisweet chocolate bar

Beat eggs, sugar, and vanilla together until thick and fluffy, about 10 minutes. Alternately fold chocolate and flour into egg mixture, ending with flour. Pour batter into 3 well-greased and floured 8-inch round cake pans.

Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 10 to 15 minutes, until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool cakes in pans 5 minutes, turn onto racks to cool completely.

Make syrup. Mix together sugar and water; boil 5 minutes. When syrup has cooled, stir in Kirsch.

Prick cake layers; brush syrup over all 3 layers.

Make butter-cream filling. Beat together sugar and butter until well-blended. Add egg yolk; beat until light and fluffy, about 3 to 5 minutes. Fold in kirsch.

Assemble cake. Place 1 layer on cake plate. Spread with filling. Drop ¾ cup cherries evenly over filling. Place second layer on cake. Repeat with filling and cherries. Place third layer on top.

Fold confectioners' sugar into whipped cream. Cover side and top of cake with whipped cream. Decorate top of cake with remaining cup cherries.

To make chocolate curls from chocolate bar, shave bar (at room temperature) with vegetable peeler. Refrigerate curls until ready to use.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

We all leave something of ourselves behind when we leave this world. It might be good or bad memories. Some of my ancestors left unpleasant memories for their families, while others are not mentioned without nods of approval.

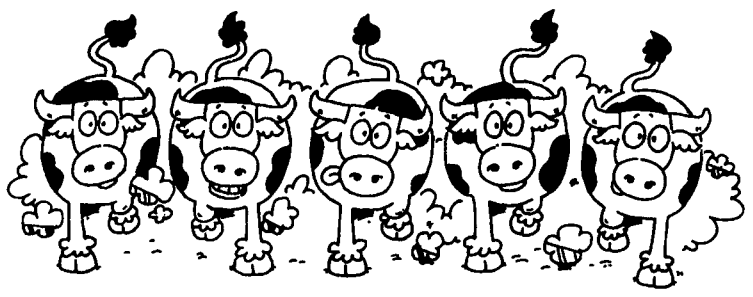
Almost all of them worked hard for a living as they were farmers. Some years were good, and they bought new machinery while others were not, and they had to "tighten their belts." Many went to market every week to bring in extra money.

Some of my relatives grew flowers to sell — fresh and dried. They made artificial ones. Some artificial ones were made of crepe paper while others were made of a satin material. One cousin made beautiful girl and boy dolls out of tiny pink socks. These were then embroidered. An elderly aunt made quilted toy dogs. I never thought of myself as capable of making crafts.

But, then I looked around my living room, and I'm surprised. I see four small vases of dried flowers that I grew. Pillows that I quilted and even an embroidered table cover. There are a number of braided rugs on the floor and a needlepoint chair. I even made a large coffee table in a wood shop course.

What you don't see is in the desk drawers — stories that I've written. My sister has written many stories too. She also is an artist and has many paintings stored in her house.

I've been delving into genealogy lately and one finds relatives that one would sooner forget. So, whether we leave tangible things behind or just good memories, we will be remembered one way or another.



Three West Snyder FFA Students Attend Washington Conference

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Derek Fetterolf, Hannah Etzler, and Phaedra Wray, members of the West Snyder High School FFA Chapter, attended the 2001 Washington Leadership Conference, July 10-14.

The conference is an activity of the National FFA Organization in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Education. The conference's goals are to build individual leadership and citizenship skills and teach team building.

Derek Fetterolf, is son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Fetterolf of Beavertown, is in the 11th grade and is serving as the 2001-2002 chapter treasurer. Hannah Etzler, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Etzler of Beavertown, in the 11th grade and is serving as 2001-2002 chapter vice president of student development. Phaedra Wray, the daughter of Larry Wray of McClure and Linda Levanowitz of Middleburg, is a senior and is serving as 2001-2002 chapter president.

The week-long program helps FFA members improve their leadership skills and prepare them for leadership roles in their chapters, communities and their future careers. They attend workshop sessions on persuasive communication, character leadership and building relationships, and participated in discussions on citizenship.

The National FFA Organization coordinates the Washington Leadership Conference, which attracts participants from all over the country. This summer, more than 2,300 FFA members will attend one of the conference's seven week-long sessions.

Students also increase their understanding of the nation's heritage with visits to Mount Vernon, Arlington National Cemetery, the Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt Memorials and other historic sights in Washington, D.C.

Gettysburg Student Competes In Public Speaking Contest

Isaac Bucher placed third in the State FFA Senior Division Public Speaking contest conducted recently at Penn State University with his speech entitled, "Would You Take the Chance?" To reach state-level competition, Bucher advanced through county, area, and regional competition as well as presenting his talk at the Battlefield FFA and Gettysburg Area Young Farmers annual banquet held earlier this year at the Adams County Agriculture Center on Old Harrisburg Road. For his accomplishments in public speaking at the state contest, Bucher received a gold medal and $50 cash.

Guidelines for the contest call for a six- to eight-minute presentation. Scoring is based on voice, presence, and power of expression. Additionally, the manuscript is evaluated for both content and grammatical accuracy. A five-minute period follows the speech presentation whereby judges determine the contestants ability to "think on his feet" and demonstrate depth of knowledge in the subject matter being presented.

Summertime Fun On Grandma's Farm

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

NEW PARK (York Co.) — Katarina Warner may have a town address, but she spends lots of her time being a "country girl."

Most of Katarina's weekends and summertime days are spent at the farm of her grandparents, Jim and Norma Warner. The Warner family raises potatoes, hay and grain crops and have a variety of animals at their farm near the town of New Park.

Katarina often helps her Grandma Norma tend her herd of 13 dairy goats, which she milks morning and evening every day. The milk is sold at the farm to families who often use it for feeding to their young children and babies.

Sometimes Katarina helps with the goat milking, washing, and drying the goats' teats very carefully before attaching the special milking machine. The Warners use soft, wet baby-wipes to wash their goats before each milking. After each goat is finished, Katarina helps to dip their teats in a special iodine solution, which helps keep them clean and free of bacteria until the next milking.

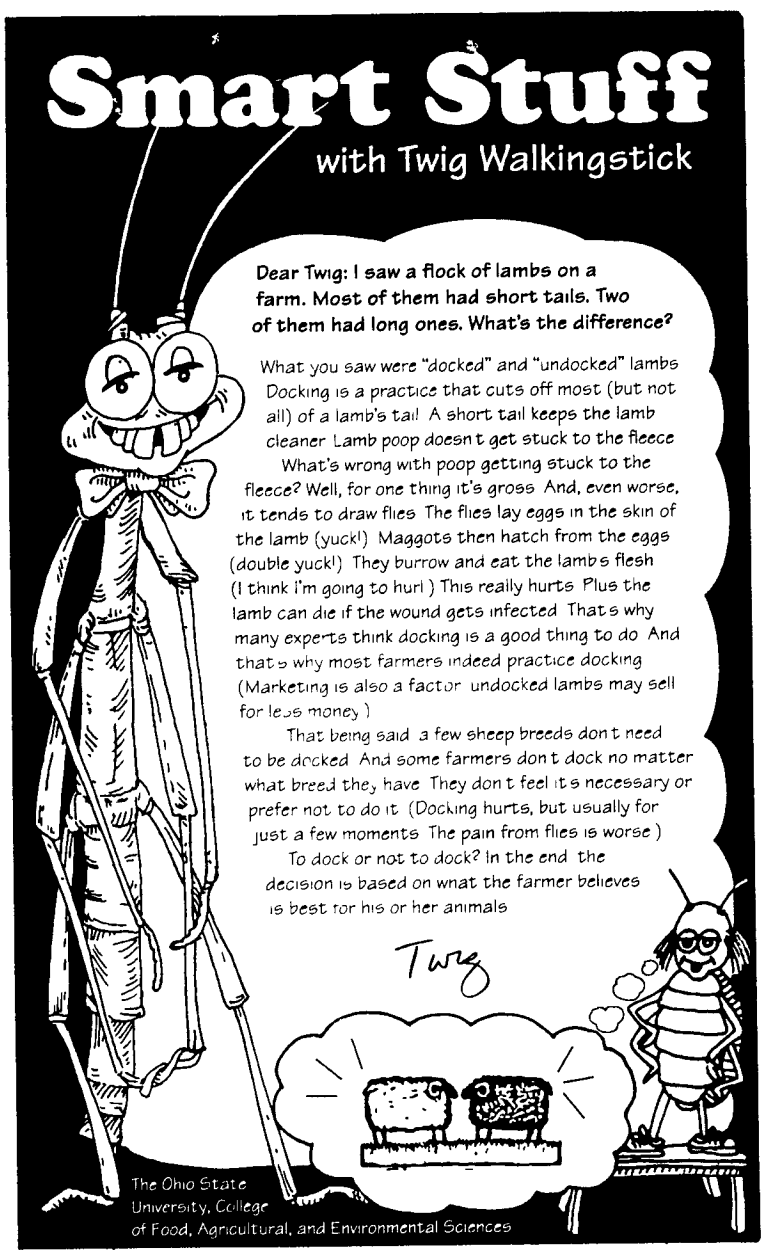
Katarina washes a goat while helping grandmother Norma with milking chores.

After milking, the "kids," or baby goats, must be fed and given fresh straw bedding. Katarina likes to help feed the kids their hay and grain and play with them. Sometimes she tosses them one of the giant plastic balls the Warners keep in the kids' pen as toys for them to push and butt.

At the Warner farm there are lots of animals to enjoy. Katarina's favorite of the five horses is April, a brown-coated mare that she sometimes rides. Llamas, guinea pigs, pigeons and wood duck also have pens around the farm. A large pen with a high fence, trees and bushes is home for a buck and doe white-tailed deer and their two fawns.

When chores are all finished, Katarina sometimes rides the four-wheeler or the golf cart between the Warner farms, or plays with the dogs and kittens. One tiny kitten that became separated from its family is being raised in the house by Katarina and her grandmother. The kitten drinks milk from a baby bottle.

Soon, the long summer days at the farm will end for Katarina, when school vacation ends and her classes in the second grade at the East York Elementary School begin once again. But there will still be the weekends when she can visit her grandparents and spend time with all her four-legged animal pals at the farm.



Smart Stuff
with Twig Walkingstick
Dear Twig: I saw a flock of lambs on a farm. Most of them had short tails. Two of them had long ones. What's the difference?
What you saw were "docked" and "undocked" lambs. Docking is a practice that cuts off most (but not all) of a lamb's tail. A short tail keeps the lamb cleaner. Lamb poop doesn't get stuck to the fleece. What's wrong with poop getting stuck to the fleece? Well, for one thing it's gross. And, even worse, it tends to draw flies. The flies lay eggs in the skin of the lamb (yuck!). Maggots then hatch from the eggs (double yuck!). They burrow and eat the lamb's flesh. (I think I'm going to hurl.) This really hurts. Plus the lamb can die if the wound gets infected. That's why many experts think docking is a good thing to do. And that's why most farmers indeed practice docking. (Marketing is also a factor: undocked lambs may sell for less money.)
That being said, a few sheep breeds don't need to be docked. And some farmers don't dock no matter what breed they have. They don't feel it's necessary or prefer not to do it. (Docking hurts, but usually for just a few moments. The pain from flies is worse.)
To dock or not to dock? In the end, the decision is based on what the farmer believes is best for his or her animals.

Residential Environment Asthma In Children

The prevalence of asthma increased by 75 percent during the 1980s and early 1990s in children under the age of 5.

The disease now affects four million children in the U.S.

To investigate the association of household allergens with asthma, researchers surveyed the parents of 8,257 children younger than 6 and found that almost six percent of the children had been diagnosed with asthma. Children exposed to dogs were 1.6 times more likely than others to have asthma. In addition, those exposed to cigarette smoke or the use of a gas stove or oven for heat each had a 1.8 times higher risk of being diagnosed with asthma. The researchers calculated that removing such risk factors should prevent 39 percent of asthma cases in children under 6.

Parents of children under 6 may wish to avoid household risk factors for asthma such as dogs and other pets, cigarette smoke, and the use of a gas stove or oven as a space heater.

Cumberland County 4-H Dairy Club Meets

The last meeting of the Cumberland County 4-H Dairy Club took place July 9.

Under old business, any member that participated in Speak Out Night told what type of presentation they gave. Under new business, the club is having a food stand at the South Central Championship Show at the Shippensburg Fairgrounds on Aug. 11. As a reminder, the Showmanship Contest is Sept. 23 and Sept. 24 is the State Junior Dairy Show with the Judging Forum Sept. 25. Members were reminded that all books must be completed to show at the Roundup and Mrs. Kathy Walton gave the club a checklist of things needed for a show.

Demonstrations followed by Brian Nailor, a life cycle of a fly; Michael Woods, round bale safety; Amy Kulick, how a cow digests food; and Michelle Ocker, what it takes to get a cow ready for a show; and Kristen MCauley told about osteoporosis.

Lancaster 4-H Competition Kicks Off County Fairs

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Almost 200 4-H'ers entered projects in the Lancaster County 4-H Fair, which kicked off the fair season in Lancaster County last week.

The 3-day show included livestock, general projects, exhibits, and numerous entertainment activities for visitors, 4-H members, and their families.

In the livestock barns, breeding sheep included entries in the Cheviot, Corriedale, Dorset, Hampshire, Oxford, Shropshire, Southdown, Suffolk, Texel, and Natural Colored breeds.

Kelsey Binkley's Dorset ewe captured grand champion honors overall breeds. Katrina Frey, Quarryville, showed the grand champion Suffolk and claimed the best bred and owned champion.

Katrina, 11, said the champion was bred from a ewe that has been twice named Suffolk champion in the junior show at the state farm show. Named Valentine, the ram lamb is part of Katrina's grandmother's show string for Breezeview Farm, Atglen.

In market lamb competition, Tiffany Dean, Strasburg, and her lamb Sweet Pea captured the top spot. Making it even a sweeter victory was the fact that Sweet Pea was bred and owned and was the half brother of the champion market lamb at last year's Lampeter Fair.

Tiffany said she races Sweet Pea daily to condition her. This was the third time Tiffany claimed a championship at the Lancaster County 4-H Fair.

Running a close second to Sweet Pea and attaining reserve champion market lamb status was Stealth, a Suffolk-cross showned by Ryan Donough, Manheim. The Donoughs have about 25 market lambs and compete in about seven shows annually.

John Eaton, judge for the event, said length and muscle were the determining factor for his choice.

"You start with good genetics but you must work with it," Eaton said of attaining a trim, firm champion.

Now a Quarryville dairy farmer, Fuller takes a special interest in helping young members get a start by buying a sale animal and donating it back to a 4-H'er. Fuller said, "Somebody has to help. Kids today can't do it (buy a farm) on their own."

Well Preserved

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions received in the office.

Tomatoes

Is it safe to process tomatoes in a boiling water bath?

Yes, tomatoes and tomato juice may be safely processed in either the boiling water bath or in the pressure canner if approved USDA guidelines are followed.

Why should lemon juice be added to canned tomatoes or tomato juice?

Although tomatoes are usually considered an acid food, some tomatoes are known to have pH values above 4.6—the upper limit for a high acid food. (pH is a measure of acidity; the lower its value, the more acid the food. Acidity can be increased by adding vinegar, lemon juice, or citric acid).

If tomatoes are to be canned as acid foods, they must be acidified with bottled lemon juice or citric acid. Add two tablespoons bottled lemon juice or ½ teaspoon citric acid per quart of tomatoes. Use one tablespoon bottled lemon juice or ¼ teaspoon citric acid per pint of tomatoes.

Sugar to taste may be added to offset the acid taste. Vinegar usually is not chosen to acidify tomatoes because it produces a stronger flavored product. Properly acidified tomatoes are safely processed in a boiling water bath.

Why have processing times changed?

Today's processing times have increased to make food safer. Increasing numbers of bacteria are killed as they are exposed to heat and pressure. The density of the product also influences processing time. Refer to USDA recommendations for processing times to ensure a safe product. Count processing time when water comes to a vigorous boil in the boiling water bath or when specified pressure is reached in a pressure canner.

Can other ingredients be added to tomatoes to improve flavor or make a vegetable juice blend?

Whenever another ingredient is added to a tomato product it changes the acidity of the mixture. Therefore, always use a USDA tested recipe that takes the changed acidity into account for processing times and methods. Many of these additions lower acidity requiring the use of the pressure canner. Thickening ingredients as in stewed tomatoes should be added at the point of use—not before canning.

Home canned tomato juice usually separates. What causes this and how can this be prevented? When tomatoes are crushed before they are heated through, enzymes start to break down the pectin that "cements" tomato cells together. To reduce separation, heat the tomatoes quickly so that the pectin that holds the tomato cells together remains intact producing a more homogeneous juice. The best method is to heat about one pound of quartered tomatoes to a boiling temperature as fast as possible while stirring. Continue to quarter and add more tomatoes at a rate, which does not slow the boiling.

After all tomatoes are added, cook them another five minutes. Then put them through a strainer to juice. The least desirable way to make juice is to put raw tomatoes in a blender. Blending raw tomatoes encourages the enzymatic breakdown of pectin. It also incorporates air into the juice, resulting in oxidative destruction of vitamin C.

Adding baking soda to prevent separation is not recommended because it reacts chemically to destroy vitamin C.

Can tomatoes be frozen?

Freezing of tomato products is an acceptable practice but not recommended for these reasons. Frozen whole tomatoes become limp after thawing. Quality of canned products is very acceptable, and overall costs of preserving tomatoes favor canning.

A Home Economist is available to answer your food preservation questions on Wednesdays from 9:00 a.m.—1:00 p.m. Call 717-394-6851 or write Penn State Cooperative Extension, Lancaster County, 1383 Arcadia Road, Room 1, Lancaster, PA 17601.

Jenna Hersberger holds Thunder, the overall grand champion dairy beef selected by Scott Wright, judge.

Thunder Is Powerful Champ At Lancaster 4-H Fair

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Two novice 4-H'ers in dairy beef competition claimed the coveted champion and reserve titles at the 4-H Fair last week.

From 36 entries, Jenna Hershberger, 10, and Thunder claimed the grand champion title.

Jenna, daughter of Dan and Gayle Hershberger who own a dairy farm in Quarryville, spent a lot of time with the 5-month-old steer that weighed 500 pounds.

Brian Nolt, 11, showed the reserve dairy beef. He said his brother entered a dairy beef in last year's competition, and it looked like fun, so he decided to enter this year. He is the son of Dale and Sandy Nolt, Manheim.

Of the event, Brian said, "He (steer) did not want to move in the ring, but I lifted his tail and then he went."

In beef competition, Linford Hershey earns showmanship honors.

Brian Nolt shows the reserve grand champion dairy beef.

Judge Scott Wright, Dolyestown, said overall it was a good show with great kids. Linford Hershey was one of the outstanding 4-H'ers who took top showmanship honors. Linford said, "I like to show dairy beef because they are like miniature steers but easier to handle."

Reading Fair Increases Entries

Volunteers Jane Treichler, Kutztown, at left, and Ruth McQuate, Robesonia, are both in charge of the jams, jellies, and canned goods division. Monday afternoon found the volunteers putting ribbons on jars. This year a jar of dried tomatoes exhibited by Joy Richard, Boyertown, won best of show in the division.

The Reading Fair, in only its second year at its present location, is growing.

According to the fair's agriculture director, A. Wayne Readinger, entries in several categories, from dairy cattle to needlework to flowers, doubled.

The fair maxed out in sheep, cattle, and swine barns, as "we even refused some animals," said Readinger.

Last year, said Readinger, the fair was still under construction the week the event opened, so many people were doubtful the fair would proceed.

The fair was successfully conducted, however, and this year "everyone knew we were going to have a fair here," said Readinger.

Also, said Readinger, this year blacktop on the midway allowed easier access for visitors.

Other changes include the introduction of an antique tractor competition.

Entries were up to 32 afghans, 41 quilts, and 13 wall hangings. Pillows, for example, jumped from 16 entries last year to 28 entries this year, according to Jane Reppert, Hamburg, who was in charge of the needlework department. The judge of the quilts and afghans noted the particularly stiff competition in those categories, said Reppert.

Monday's events included an apple pie and chocolate cake contest judged by Marge Nester and Barbara Spatz, both of Reading, and Miriam Forney, Northampton County — all active or retired from the county extension service.

Sarah Hoch, Fleetwood, took home a blue ribbon for her sour cream apple pie, with Christine Landis, Mohnton, winning second and Mary Harper, also of Fleetwood, third place. This year marked the 14th year for the contest, sponsored by the Berks County Fruit Growers. The contest drew 11 entries. A recipe for both the filling and the crust accompanied each pie.

Pieces of the first-place chocolate cake were sold "so everyone could get a taste," said June Schuler, Fleetwood, co-chair of the contests. For the contest the layered cake must be made from scratch and use Hershey's cocoa.

Jane Reppert, Hamburg, won the Hershey's greatest cocoa cake contest, which drew 14 entries. Marci Butterweek, Reading, took home second place and Sharon Brunner, Mohnton, won third place.

Kelly Phillips, Mohrsville, won first place in the junior division, for youth age 8-18, of Hershey's cookie, etc. contest. Sarah Harper, Fleetwood, won second and Brielle Strunk, Shillington, took home third place.

While one lone piglet nuzzles up to his mother, the rest of the litter spreads out to beat the heat.

Card games are a tradition for many of the fair's exhibitors.

A Western-style exhibit provided by the Berks County Beef Club offered information on foot and mouth disease, BSE, and reminders for the fair's visitors to wash their hands after visiting the livestock barns.

Be Aware Of Blocking

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Have you ever been shopping and your debit card was declined — even when you know there is more than enough money in your account to cover the cost?

No one wants this to happen, but it does. According to Home and Family Finance magazine, it is a practice known as "blocking," and works the same way credit card blocking does. If you check into a hotel or rent a car, the estimated total charges are reported to the company that issued your card. A hold is placed on your card for an amount that is often times higher than the actual amount. The hold that is placed on your card can block your use of that amount of money for three days on a debit card and up to 15 days on a credit card.

Blocking happens any time that you use your card before you know how much you will be spending. This happens most often to debit cardholders at the gas pumps.

Here's how it works: Suppose you use a credit card when you check into a $100-a-night hotel for a three-night long weekend. At least $300 would be blocked. In addition, hotels and rental car companies sometimes include anticipated charges for "incidentals" like food, beverages or gasoline. These amounts can vary widely among merchants.

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) says that merchants use blocking to ensure you do not exceed your account balance before you leave the gas station or check out of a hotel and they do not get paid. To avoid blocking of your account, use the following tips:

- When checking into a hotel or renting a car, use a credit card instead of a debit card. Be sure to use the same card when you check out that you used at check-in. If you pay your bill with a different card, cash or a check, the card issuer will hold the block because they are not notified of the final charges and that you had paid them another way.
- When purchasing gas, stop at stations of major brands. Newer, better-known gas stations will have updated technology and will be able to process debit and credit cards faster.

If you maintain a healthy balance in your account, chances are, blocking won't be a problem. But if your funds are running low, be careful. Not only can it be embarrassing to have your card declined, it also can be inconvenient, especially if you have an emergency purchase and no available credit.

When you choose a credit or debit card, ask the issuer how long they hold a block on your account for transactions at hotels, rental car companies and gas stations. Usually, credit unions and other financial institutions automatically remove the hold within a few days, even if the transaction has not cleared your account.

To avoid an embarrassing situation or a potential crisis while traveling, you might want to call your credit card issuer before you leave and ask how long blocks are held on your accounts.

Ag Careers Fair Broadens Exposure

FREDERICK, Md. — Looking for a career in agriculture? Then come to The Great Frederick Fair on Tuesday, Sept. 18, and see for yourself the many career paths that link to the ag industry.

The Frederick County Task Force in conjunction with the fair will host the second annual Ag Careers Fair on Tuesday from 10 a.m.-8 p.m. next to Building 18. The 139th annual county fair runs from Sept. 14-22.

Since Frederick County Public School students will have a day off from school that day, the Ag Careers Fair will especially be a "must see" event at the fair. This one-day event features lots of educational and career resources.

"We want the students as well as the public to benefit from the Ag Careers Fair," said Richard Grossnickle, chairman of the Ag Task Force. Numerous exhibits will again depict the ag career path students may consider for their future. "People just don't realize what careers are connected to agriculture and natural resources. We hope we can continue to make the careers fair an annual part of the county fair."

Students as well as the fair-going public are invited and encouraged to visit the careers fair and talk one on one with exhibitors who will range from colleges and universities to agencies and businesses that range from wildlife management and landscape design to zookeepers and agribusiness institutions. Up to 35 exhibits could be featured.

Pa. Girls Place In Horse Judging Contest

MECHANICSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — Three girls from the Pennsylvania Paint Horse Club (PPHC) were awarded sixth place overall in the recent youth horse judging team competition at the 2001 American Paint Horse Association (APHA) World Championship Show in Fort Worth, Texas.

In addition, the team placed third in performance judging and fifth in the oral reasons category of the contest. More than 400 youth from around the nation participated in the event, conducted Friday, June 29 at the Will Rogers Memorial Center.

Heidi Evelhoch of Shippensburg, Mary Strasbaugh of Mechanicsburg, and Michelle Thomas of Carlisle are active in the Cumberland County 4-H light horse and pony club as well as the PPHC, and competed in the senior American Junior Paint Horse division.

According to the National Horse Judging Team Coaches Association, the event is the largest horse-judging contest for youth in the nation. Contestants between the ages of 9 and 19 involved in 4-H, FFA, and regional Paint horse clubs nationwide competed for coveted trophies, buckles, plaques and other prizes. The four-member teams competed in two divisions: junior (age 13 and under) and senior (ages 14 through 19). Contestants also received individual scores in each judging area.

The young judges competed against one another in the event and were themselves judged by APHA officials on their ability to evaluate the equine classes. Scores given were based on how closely a student's placing of horses matched that of an APHA judging official's scoring. Students were also critiqued on the oral arguments they presented in support of their placement decisions.

Contestants were asked to judge four halter classes (2-year-old Geldings, 3-year-old Mares, Aged Geldings and Aged Mares) and four performance classes (Hunter Under Saddle, Hunter Hack, Western Pleasure and Western Riding). Participating in the event were 32 Paint horses.

The AGJA board of directors elected the following directors to serve as officers for the 2001-2002 term: Josh Phillips, Lathrop, Mo., president; Matt Burbank, Mo., vice president; Justin Betzelberger, Ill., vice president of leadership development; Kelly Leonhardt, Lake Preston, S.D., secretary; and Luke Burbank, St. Catharine, Mo., treasurer.

Seeing Double At Reading Fair Sheep Show

Miller Takes Grand Ewe, Ram Placings; Rarick Takes Grand, Reserve Market Spot

MICHELLE RANCK-KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — "Two" was the number of the day for sheep exhibitors Amanda Miller and Shelby Rarick at Reading Fair's Sheep Show Tuesday.

Amanda, 16, enjoyed a big day at the fair with a double win in the breed show. Her homebred Southdown ewe and ram took home champion honors.

Shelby, 9, took home champion and reserve market lamb placings before her lambs topped the class in pair competition.

The daughter of Ronald and Joan Miller, Bernville, Amanda has been around sheep all of her life at the family's 50-sheep farm. A 4-H and FFA participant, she has nine years of experience in the show ring. Kutztown and Oley fairs, besides KILE and the Farm Show are all on the slate for her and her sheep.

Besides her grand champion wins in the breed show, she also exhibited the medium weight champion in the market lamb show and garnered grand champion showman honors in the showmanship classes and the reserve champion fitter placing.

Because of their endearing appearance and personality, Amanda admits being partial to the Southdown breed, which she says is "easy to handle."

She hopes to live on a farm in the future and plans to continue showing animals until she turns 21, the cutoff age for FFA participants. This fall she will be a sophomore at Tulpehocken High School.

Shelby Rarick, Fleetwood, also had a memorable day at the fair.

Two of Shelby's four sheep, "Bryant" and "Hops," named for his jumping ability ("we could hardly walk him when we first got him," said Rarick), were exhibited at Tuesday's show. The animals, according to judge Annette Lovell, "combined muscle and finish," said Lovell. "They were the most ideal market lambs here."

Shelby Rarick, 9, Fleetwood, took "Bryant" and "Hops" to grand and reserve champion market lamb placings before the two lambs won the pair competition.

The seven-month-old lambs, Hampshire-Suffolk crosses, will be sold at the end of the show season.

Shelby purchased the animals from a farm in York County.

Their training regimen included extensive walking each day in the Shelby's large backyard as Shelby and her friends practiced showing the animals. Besides a show in York County where Shelby has already competed this season, Shelby plans to exhibit her animals at Kutztown, Allentown, and Oley fairs.

Shelby's mother, Kenianne, also exhibited animals and introduced her daughter to the show ring at the age of three. This year Shelby was able to join 4-H.

To Shelby, showing animals in competition is "fun, you have to make sure the animals are combed well and in the right position." Shelby topped the junior division of the sheep showmanship class.

In addition Shelby will show six head of beef cattle at the Reading Fair. The Rarick have 17 head of Simmental and Shorthorn cattle on their farm.

Judge Annette Lovell, a Penn State graduate living in Paoli, participated on livestock judging teams while she was in college.

Amanda Miller's homebred Southdown ewe and ram took home champion honors at Reading Fair Tuesday.

She works as a shepherd for Hollystone Farms, Paoli, a purebred Dorset operation. Lovell grew up showing animals from her family's beef, sheep, and hog farm in Linden.

The breed show, especially the quality among the ewes, was very strong, according to Lovell. "4-H'ers have particularly high quality in the breeding stock," she said.

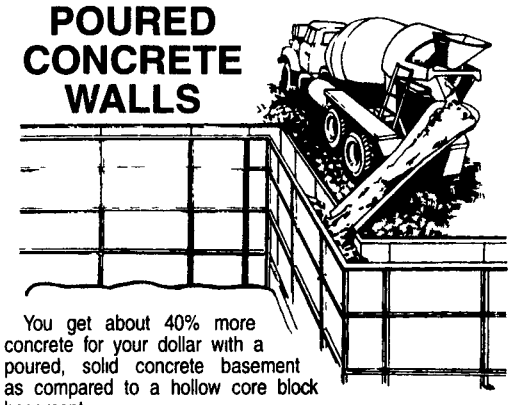
POURED SOLID CONCRETE

STORAGE SYSTEM SPECIALISTS

START WITH THE BEST! POURED CONCRETE WALLS



You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs more per cubic foot! Far denser What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced

Solid Concrete For:

- Manure Pit Walls
- Hog House Walls
- Barnyard Walls
- Chicken House Walls
- Retaining Walls
- House Foundation Walls
- Silage Pit Walls
- Cistern Walls
- Concrete Decks
- Concrete Pit Tops

Antiques On The Cheap

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) The love of hunting and refinishing antiques led James W. McKenzie of 649 South Juliana Street to write a book. "Antiques on the Cheap," featured by the Doubleday Book Club.

Retired from Bell Atlantic, McKenzie is an experienced technical writer. He and his wife, Wanda, became interested in antiques when residing in Sheperdstown, West Virginia.

"Antiques are very expensive," says McKenzie. "I began buying those that were in bad shape and refinishing them. Then, I could either sell them for a nice profit or keep them for my own collection."

The McKenzies found Bedford while attending an Indian Pow Wow at Old Bedford Village.

"We drove around the streets and fell in love with the town," Wanda remembers. "Jim checked out retirement in Pennsylvania and found it to be one of the best."

Jim and Wanda bought a circa 1912 house, which they have been remodeling. Built during the arts and crafts movement, the house had turned dark and dreary. Now, the woodwork is in a lighter hue and blends beautifully with the glistening light fixtures all refinished by Jim. Lovely pieces of Stickley "mission style furniture" add to the to the timely decor. Chandeliers are in brass and German silver. Both have been polished and lacquered to retard oxidation. "Some people prefer the dull "patina" look that develops over the years, but we prefer the shine," Jim says.

Some of his secrets for refinishing or restoring are revealed in his book. "I believe in getting supplies where they cost the least," McKenzie admits. "Wal-Mart probably has everything you will need to refinish an antique."

His formula for cleaning almost any kind of wood is one part white vinegar, one part boiled linseed oil, and one part turpentine. Put it in a jar and shake. The mixture creates a clean smell, not overpowering like many commercial products.

After going over the furniture with the best steel wool you can find, go over it with the above mixture, let set for five minutes and wipe off. If the wood is not extremely dirty, it may take less time.

"I usually don't completely strip good antiques," McKenzie says. "Roadshows tell us you can ruin a $100,000 piece of furniture. Truth is, there are very few $100,000 pieces of furniture so use your own judgement."

"To bring out the colors in a room, you might want to marbleize," McKenize continues. "Colors are always up to the individual." In his book, he suggests, acrylic paints use a wet sponge and a dry sponge.

"Dry sponge the object first, then wet sponge. You can make an inexpensive item look as though it is solid marble. If it is the look you want to achieve rather then an investment, it can be done with a few dollars. Veining is done with a feather. Turkey feathers are particularly good for this."

McKenzie also recommends marbleizing for bathrooms, powder rooms, or mantles.

"Remember, if you get into antiques to make money," he adds. "The less you pay, the more profit!"

The same cleaning concoction used on the wood can also be used on most metals.

McKenize also restores lighting fixtures, pottery, frames, and paper collectibles."You might find a chipped piece of Roseville or McCoy pottery and restore for a few pennies a little labor."

While marbleizing a wooden stand at a demonstration, McKenzie puts on the finishing touches. At his feet is a finished magazine rack.

He uses epoxy putty and acrylic paints. "You have to mix a lot of paints to get the correct shade, but use your eyes and work in good light," he said.

For those who want to try restoration themselves, Jim suggests haunting yard sales, flea markets, and checking out the trash barrels at auctions.

While showing off a lovely wood frame, he admits, it was a throwaway from an auction. He took the discarded frame home to restore.

"The hunt can be the most fun!"

Sometimes you have to buy two or three light fixtures in order to get one good one. Look closely at the throwaways, give aways, or inexpensive items.

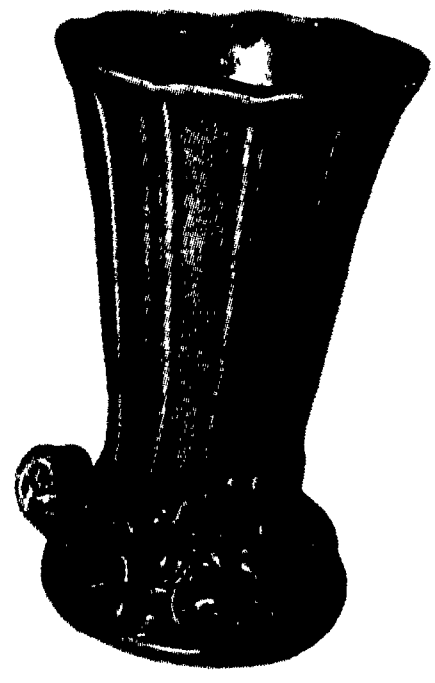
"Is there a part that is usable? A good drawer pull, sturdy legs on an otherwise worn out table? The hunt is the fun, make the most of it!"

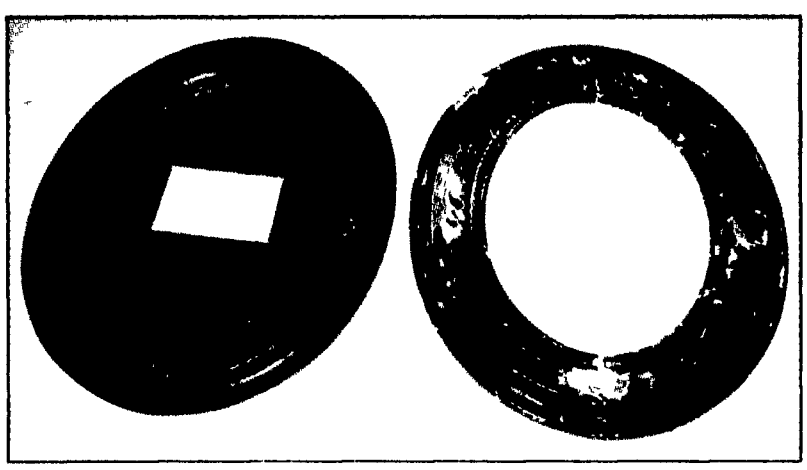
"Making antiques whole again is both a great hobby and good way to make some extra money," affirms McKenzie.

McKenzie pursues his love of antiques by restoring them for dealers or individuals, speaking about them, giving demonstrations, or writing.

His book, "Antiques on the Cheap," can be bought at most bookstores.

He can be reached at (814) 623-8344 or by e-mail at HYPERLINK mailto:jmckenzie@pennswoods.net jmckenzie@pennswoods.net.

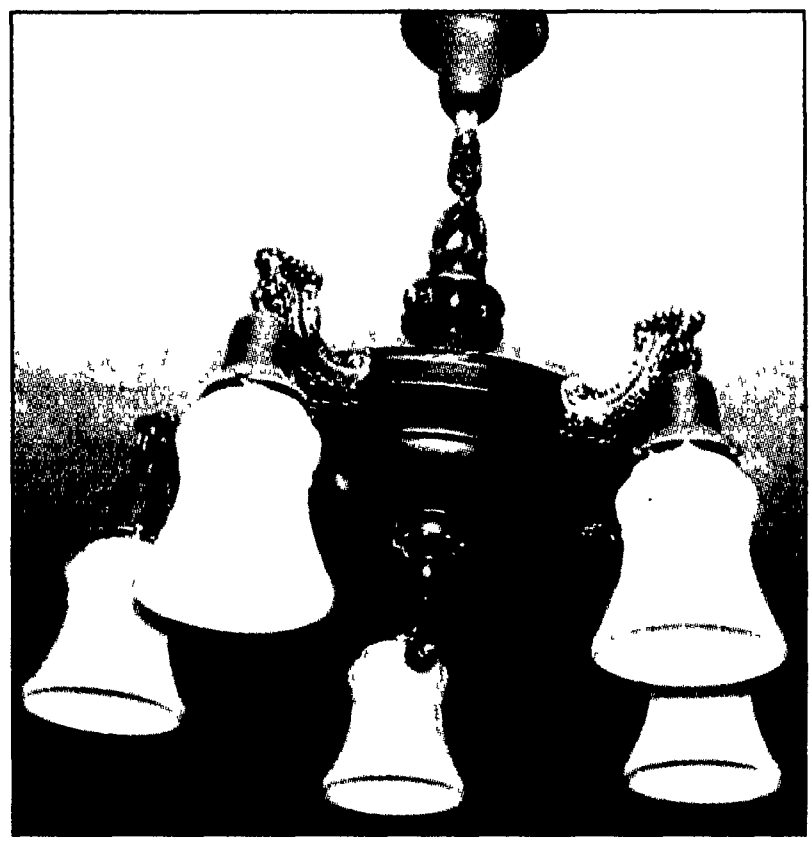




The taller piece of pottery that was restored by McKenzie is a McCoy. The smaller one awaiting a chip repair is Roseville.

McKenzie sometimes buys two fixtures and creates one good one, then polishes and lacquers them to retard oxidation.

At left, two frames, one finished, one unfinished. Both bought at an auction for a few dollars.



Broken Dishes Get A Second Chance

MORGANTOWN (Berks Co.) — When Susan Dobra, a dealer at The Mill Property Antiques in Morgantown, breaks a dish, it's not to worry. "I love to rescue things and turn them into something," says the artist, whose mosaic table tops and planters assembled from bits of broken glass and pottery are farm more functional and attractive than the damaged objects she reuses.

When a friend's mother brought her family china, worn and chipped, but still cherished, Dobra went to work carefully breaking it at specific places to save the best of its design. The pieces were then arranged and applied to a table top to be enjoyed as a reworked family heirloom.

Dobra prefers to create her one-of-a-kind mosaic table tops in patterns and pictorials, rather than as random or abstract designs. The yellow bottom of a Fiesta plate with its trademark lettering becomes the daisy center and focal point of a bright burst of flowers atop the base of a cast iron end table.

Sticking with a theme, Dobra often chooses to select all Blue Willow for one piece, while finding damaged Fiesta Ware for another.

Ordinary metal plant stands with plain or missing tops are given new life with colorful, waterproof tops that can be used indoors, as well as in the garden.

Dealers at The Mill Property are happy to supply her with working materials when accidents happen. "It's nice to know that something I thought was ruined can become art," said one dealer who specializes in fine china, and saves unsold and chipped plates for Dobra's projects.

She sells her pots and tables at The Mill Property Antiques along with other pieces she paints and reworks. Many of the antiques and collectibles she sells feature animals, evidence of her other passion — rescuing dogs and cats. Dobra has a special area at the co-op where she sells animal-related items, the sales of which benefit a local animal shelter.

The Mill Property Antiques is located at 2910 Main Street, Rt. 23, Morgantown, at exit 22 of The Pa. Turnpike. Call (610) 286-854, and ask for the "CAT" booth.

California Pottery Riding The Surf

Not just the music of the Beach Boys is making a comeback.

California pottery made in the 1940s and '50s is finding a new generation of admirers who are seriously collecting it. Not just the colorful dinnerware but decorative ceramics. If names like Sasha Brastoff and Franciscan Ware are unfamiliar, now is the time to get acquainted.

Sugar bowl of Franciscan ware features an apple pattern. Photo by Private collector.

They've been listed in the Price Guides for the last couple of years. A sure sign they're being collected. That and the fact that stores like Bloomingdales are offering new versions.

Until the past five years most of what is known as California pottery was a staple in flea markets. It was most closely identified with the colorful, mass-produced dinnerware made in the Depression years by Bauer Pottery of Los Angeles. When their bright, opaque colored, glaze pottery was first introduced in the "ring" design it introduced casual dining and what came to be known as the "California Lifestyle."

By the late 1940s dozens of potteries blanketed California. When World War II put imports in short supply, many Southern California began producing dinnerware and decorative pieces.

They all but disappeared by the early fifties even though they had been inexpensive. The emerging Italian and Japanese markets were too much competition. By the 1960s only a few were still in production.

With the revived interest in all things from the 1940s and 1950s, California pottery is being scooped up. Prices, although still modest, are on the upswing. A good example are the patterns in Franciscan ware. The apple pattern is one of the most expensive of the dinnerware. A four-inch jug could be priced at $195, and is considered a rarity. A rectangular baking dish could sell for more than $400.

While there are many ceramic pieces that could are forever in the kitsch category, others are fine decorative pieces. The late Sascha Brastoff produced many pieces of earthenware noteworthy for their unusual glazes and metallic colors.

Worth the search would be his earthenware table settings using a marbleized pattern of platinum or gold against different color backgrounds. His decorative pieces sold in chic stores like Saks Fifth Avenue. Today his sculptures sell for several hundred to eight hundred dollars.

The early Bauer ring pottery that was once so cheap is also going up in price. A teapot in the ring pattern can sell for more than $200. Some prices depend on color.

The most expensive ring pieces are in deep blue, ivory, chartreuse and others.

CLUES: Not every piece is worth collecting. Start by examining pieces that appeal to you. Most will be stamped with a name that sounds like it was made in California, such as Pacific or Brayton Laguna. Others will say "Calfornia." Others that once had paper labels can be recognized by their colorful glazes.

Some potteries made both high- and low-end lines. Don't pay too much for a name, when the piece may not be a best example. The more unusual the glaze, the higher the price.

While many pieces were made from molds, others were handthrown.

Highly collectible are the figurines made in the '40s by Hedi Schoop, in North Hollywood. Poodles, lamp bases and gypsy dancers were among the many subjects ceramic creations. Her figurines sell for more $100.

To learn more about the potteries, artists and signatures, invest in The Collector's Encyclopedia of California pottery by Jack Chipman. Published by Collector Books, Schroeder Publishing, PO Box 3009, Paducah, KY, 42002-3009.

USDA To Measure Chemical Usage For Apples, Corn

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — To gather reliable, objective information about pesticides and commercial fertilizers used on fruit crops and corn, the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) of USDA will be surveying fruit growers in 12 major producing states, and corn growers in 19 states starting in late September 20001.

For Pennsylvania, 176 farm operators will be surveyed for apples and 185 for corn.

The 2001 Chemical Use Surveys will cover chemicals used, acres treated, rates applied, farming practices, and grower characteristics. The information gathered from growers will be used to set state and national estimates of producers' use of pesticides and commercial fertilizers on apples and corn.

Results from previous NASS surveys showed that, in general, growers apply pesticides at rates below manufacturers' maximum levels. Without this information, EPA and others could assume that maximum rates are used on all acreage. These chemical use surveys, which have been conducted since 1990, usually have about 90 percent of the surveyed producers responding.

Important benefits farmers gain from responding to the survey are as follows:

- The survey results are official USDA estimates and help clarify the facts about chemical use in agriculture.
- Growers have a chance to tell how they use agricultural chemicals responsibly to produce a safe and abundant food supply for America and the world.
- Accurate and timely information on actual usage speeds up the registration and reregistration process of agricultural chemical products that fruit producers depend on.

Individual usage information is held in strict confidence and is combined with other reports to set state and national estimates. NASS will publish the resulting state and national estimates of fruit and corn growers' during the summer of 2002.

LMA Amends Complaint On Beef Referendum, Seeks Ruling on Checkoff Constitutionality

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Responding to a request from the South Dakota federal district court, the Livestock Marketing Association (LMA) announced Wednesday it will amend its initial complaint seeking a beef checkoff referendum, to ask the court to address whether the checkoff is unconstitutional.

The court requested LMA and the other parties - the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the Cattlemen's Beef Board and the Nebraska Cattlemen association - to address the constitutionality of the beef checkoff in light of the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision in the mushroom checkoff case.

In a June 25 decision, the Supreme Court ruled that forcing mushroom producers to pay for advertising is invalid under the First Amendment. The district court asked both sides for their views on that case, saying that if the beef checkoff is unconstitutional, it doesn't make sense to conduct a referendum. LMA will file its amended complaint soon.

"We believe that as a matter of law, the beef and mushroom checkoff are alike," said LMA President Patrick Noggins. "A great deal of our money has been spent trying to get producers a simple vote on a program they finance. But we can't justify continuing to pour our members' money into a campaign for a vote, where there is now a substantial question whether the program is constitutional."

"It's as if there's a bus leaving the station, heading for a referendum, "Noggins said. "But before we buy more tickets on that bus, we need to know if it has four flat tires."

Noggins noted that when the mushroom checkoff case was before the Supreme Court, both USDA and the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, which joined in an "amicus curiae" brief, took the position that the mushroom decision would affect the future of the beef checkoff.

"That's the issue which we're now presenting to the South Dakota court," he said.

Walker Champion Tops York Show

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Numbers were fewer but quality held high the annual York County Holstein Show, with a pair of EX-90 cows sharing the spotlight in the champion circle. The annual event was conducted Aug. 1 at the York Expo Center.

Reserve champion was the supreme winner of the 4-H show just one day earlier, a senior 3-year-old exhibited by junior member Christina Knight, Airville. Woodbine Rudolph Ellie, a great-granddaughter of the Knight family's All-Time-All-American Northcroft Ella Elevation, was also named the show's best senior bred and owned animal.

Reserve junior champion was Coredale Casino Taffy, a summer yearling bred and exhibited by Rod and Jane Thompson's Coredale Holsteins, East Berlin.

Officiating for the show was Lebanon County Holstein breeder and show exhibitor Alan Hostetter.

Spring calf: 1. Dixie Doll, Glen Rock. 2. Cameron Knight, Airville. 3. Daphne Doll, Glen Rock.

SCC Approves Continued Support Of Leadership Development Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The State Conservation Commission (SCC) recently approved continued funding of the "Building For Tomorrow" Leadership Development Program designed to increase the capacity of Pennsylvania's conservation districts.

"'Capacity' refers to increasing the ability of the districts to successfully plan and manage programs," SCC executive secretary Karl Brown said. "Since the 1980s, our state's 66 conservation districts have been asked to locally administer a number of programs and tasks on behalf of local, state and federal agencies. As the scope of conservation district work increases, the need for local staff and leadership to possess strong management and communications skills also increases. This program offers a way to meet those needs."

The Pennsylvania Conservation Partnership's Leadership Development Committee oversees the program. It currently consists of members representing the commission, DEP, USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service, the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts, Penn State Cooperative Extension, and conservation district directors and managers.

The commission approved allocating $100,000 for state fiscal year 2001-2002 to continue the Leadership Development Program. The program is currently administering a "Team Visits" special project in which team members work with host district directors, managers, staff and agency partners to identify operational strengths of local district teams and to develop strategies to enhance and expand district operations.

In addition, the program has been developing leadership resources for use by conservation districts statewide, such as a lending library; an operational policies catalog; manuals on financial management, personnel management and board-staff interactions; and a program self-evaluation tool.

In recognition of their exceptional efforts to support the Leadership Development Committee, the Bradford Conservation District was given special recognition during a commission luncheon, held in conjunction with the meeting.

During the commission meeting, Committee members LeRoy Gross of the Erie Conservation District and Mike Lovegreen of the Bradford Conservation District reported that team visits were made to eight conservation districts during the 2000-2001 fiscal year, surpassing by two the goal originally set. During the first year of the program, six districts were visited.

In addition to the Team Visits special project, the 2000-2001 Building For Tomorrow program included four strategic business planning workshops at which there were 151 attendees representing 50 conservation districts, and a June coaching session teleconference for volunteers from districts, DEP and the SCC who are willing to assist districts through a planning process.

Planned for the near future is a first-ever District Manager Summit to be conducted Aug. 29-31 in State College at which district managers are to discuss management issues.

October 1 Deadline for "IRM Tips For Profit" Contest

DENVER, Colo. — The entry deadline for the 'IRM Tips for Profit" contest is fast approaching. Entries must be submitted by Oct. 1 to be eligible for the cash awards and other incentives.

The contest is sponsored by the Pennington Seed Company and administered by the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA). It rewards cattle producers willing to share management ideas they use in their operations.

Top prize is $3,500 cash and a trip to the 2002 Cattle Industry Annual Convention and Trade Show in Denver next February. Second prize is $1,500, and third is $1,000. Up to 10 honorable mentions will also be recognized.

Last year's winners included a hay feeding/manure management system developed in Maryland; a tractor-mounted, hydraulic round-bale scale devised in Arkansas; and a Texan's syringe "coozie" for handling vaccines.

"This contest will uncover more great management ideas from successful people in our industry," says Homer Buell, Integrated Resource Management (IRM) Subcommittee Chair, Rose, Neb.

Individuals are encouraged to submit their own management tip, or any group or organization is eligible to nominate one cow/calf operation. Nominees must be NCBA members. Entries must be original, non-patented ideas, and will be judged by a selection committee representing various geographic regions of the country.

For more detailed rules and entry forms, contact Renee Lloyd at (303) 850-3373 or email rlloyd@beef.org. Entries arriving after the October 1 deadline will be automatically entered in next year's contest.

KEENAN TMR MIXER

in operation at the

"FUN WITH FORAGES" DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM

and see why farmers prefer

KEENAN MIXERS

WHY? The potential in this mixer to better control fiber intake in your cattle, which means:

MORE MILK - MORE BEEF

BETTER HEALTH - MORE PROFIT

HEALTHY Cows can Stay HEALTHY by Eating HEALTHY – But How?

Because when you use a Keenan Precision Cut Mixer Feeder your cow must eat her complete ration without sorting, which is very important in receiving the proper amount of fiber

TO STAY HEALTHY!

Keenan Mixers – Available in Stationery OR Trailer Little to Big!

KEENAN

3 R's in KEENAN Commitment to YOU!

Reliability: Nearly 50 years of research, testing and development – resulting in the KEENAN system as we know it today!

Ration: Structural fiber is sized to optimum length to assure major benefit to rumen/digestion process. Assistance in formulation of ration is offered by KEENAN, through sales professionals and certified nutritionists.

Results: Scores of satisfied KEENAN users attest to significant responses in herd health, milk production and "bottom-line" profitability, due in part or in total to the KEENAN system.

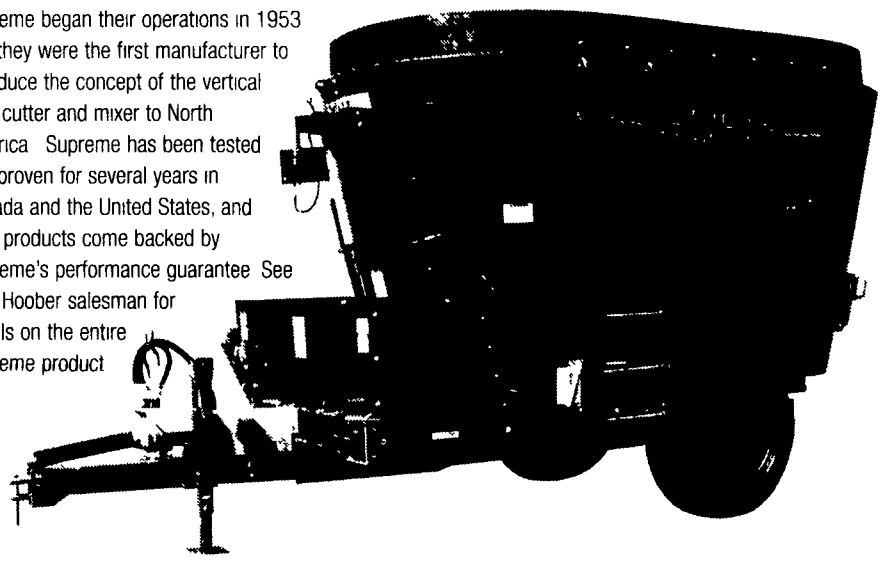
Get Into the Mix with Supreme and Hoober

Hoober is pleased to announce the addition of the Supreme Feed Processors product line Supreme began their operations in 1953 and they were the first manufacturer to introduce the concept of the vertical feed cutter and mixer to North America Supreme has been tested and proven for several years in Canada and the United States, and their products come backed by Supreme's performance guarantee See your Hoober salesman for details on the entire Supreme product line



Higher Quality Feed
A Supreme feed processor cuts and thoroughly blends material without shattering stems or eaves producing a more uniform, more palatable – healthier – feed for your animals

Ability to Process Difficult Materials
Supreme's patented screw design gives you the power to process all sizes of round and square bales and difficult materials such as 100% roughage and frozen or spoiled material

Reduced Down Time & Repair Costs
Minimal moving parts, premium components and a professionally engineered design translates into less downtime and fewer maintenance related costs

Shorter Feeding Time

Krause 7300 & 7400 Rockflex Discs
The Standard by Which All Discs are Measured

25 years ago Hoober, Inc. introduced Krause Rockflex disc harrows to the East. Since then Krause discs have been the undisputed leader when it comes to finishing seedbeds on Eastern farms.

The new 7300 & 7400 Series Krause Rockflex disc harrows are in a class by themselves when it comes to getting the job done in tough conditions. Plus, Krause Rockflex technology backed by Hoober's outstanding service and parts support is as good as it gets. Krause Rockflex disc harrows from Hoober... a great idea for 25 years.

Voices From the Field

"The design of the Krause 7300 disc is very simple but very strong, I would be surprised if it ever cracks But the biggest thing we like about the Krause disc is probably the walking tandems we got on it The wings ride smoother if you hit a bump - the tandems divide it up and it's offset on the wheels, not the disc The Krause disc will stand up to whatever we put against it "

Merv Heimbach ~ Selinsgrove, PA

"We have some very rocky fields and the Krause 7300 Disc stood up to the rocks We used it for over 400 acres so far this year and didn't have any problems And the disc has a narrow transport of 11' 6" which is an important factor, because we do a lot of transporting on the roads "

Dale Hoover ~ Hoover Farms, Lebanon, Pa

Hoober Offers the Following Krause Disc Models

2200	12' 3" to 13' 9"	Up to 360 lbs/ft
7300	18' 1" to 34' 0"	Up to 483 lbs/ft
7400	18' 1" to 26' 9"	Up to 547 lbs/ft

Voices From the Field

"In one of our low-lying fields, the water was staying on top and not getting through the hardpan We had about an 13" barrier to get through, so we ran the DMI Ecolo-Til 2500 subsoiler and shattered that barrier That land is really productive now, where it wasn't before "

Our vacs have a capacity for hard work.

Our field vacuums combine impressive power, large capacities, ease of use and long-term reliability.

The Brouwer BV85 Vac, the largest capacity vacuum unit of its kind, is ideal for fast, economical cleanup of large turf and hard surface areas. It's easy to maneuver the BV85, bringing its wide pickup head (up to 120 inches) and powerful suction fan to bear on any kind of debris. Unloading is easy, thanks to its hydraulically driven conveyor.

The mid-size Brouwer BV138 Vac is designed for hard-to-reach areas that require a compact, maneuverable machine. The BV138 features heavy-duty impeller fans, creating a mulching effect on debris before it enters the hopper to significantly increase capacity. And, the BV138's hydraulic lift makes unloading simple.

Two great vacs. One great name. For the best in field vacuums, visit your Brouwer dealer today.

Suzuki quadrunner ATV's may be used by those aged 16 and older. Suzuki highly recommends that all ATV riders take an ATV safety course. We'll even pay for it. For safety and training course information, see your dealer or call the SVIA at 1-800-852-5344. ATV's can be hazardous to operate. For your safety, always wear a helmet, eye protection and protective clothing. Always cross paved surfaces. Never ride on public roads. Never carry a passenger, or engage in stunt riding. Riding and alcohol or other drugs do not mix. Avoid excessive speeds. Be extra careful on difficult terrain. Along with concerned conservationists everywhere, Suzuki urges you to "TREAD LIGHTLY" on public and private land. Preserve your future riding opportunities by showing respect for the environment, local laws and the rights of others when you ride.

REMEMBER, WE FINANCE, TAKE TRADE-INS AND WILL DELIVER ANYWHERE!

CNH Reports Second Quarter Profit

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — CNH Global N.V. recently reported second quarter consolidated net revenues of $2.689 billion compared to revenues of $2.894 billion last year.

When adjusted for the impact of divestitures and adverse foreign exchange rates, net revenues were essentially unchanged, as higher sales of agricultural equipment offset lower sales of construction equipment. The company's second quarter industrial operating margin rose to $154 million from $137 million for the same period in 2000.

On a net basis, CNH reported a second quarter profit of $6 million, compared to a loss of $31 million, for the second quarter last year. Earnings per share for the quarter, before restructuring, were $.05 per share, compared to a loss of $.20 per share in 2000, in line with expectations. Earnings per share, after restructuring, were $.02 for the quarter. Per share results for the 2000 period are based on a lower number of shares.

For the first six months of 2001, consolidated net revenues totaled $5.143 billion compared to revenues of $5.502 billion last year. During the first half of 2001 the adverse impact of foreign exchange rates on consolidated net revenues totaled approximately $220 million; divestitures accounted for a further negative impact of about $210 million. The company's industrial operating margin for the first six months was $245 million, compared to $168 million for the same period in 2000.

"In spite of the significant decline in the construction equipment industry, we have achieved our objectives for the second quarter," said Paolo Monferino, CNH president and chief executive officer. "Our sales of agricultural equipment have improved substantially, particularly in North America where we have posted significant share gains both in tractors and combine harvesters."

During the second quarter, the company achieved merger-related profit improvements of approximately $66 million partly due to the company's initial successes in marketing its extensive product offering through its multiple distribution channels. In addition, cost savings were achieved through manufacturing efficiencies as well as reductions in material costs and SG&A expenses.

Second quarter net sales from Equipment Operations were $2.497 billion, compared to $2.723 billion for the same period in 2000. Significant revenue growth came from sales of agricultural equipment in North America as the company recorded market share gains in an up market.

In Europe, the company held production and wholesale levels significantly below retail sales levels in order to reduce dealer inventory. Worldwide revenue from sales of agricultural equipment were up 5%, net of currency impact and divestitures.

In sales of heavy equipment, the CNH brands significantly outperformed the industry in both Europe and Latin America but slightly underperformed the industry in the United States. In light equipment, the company's worldwide market share was essentially unchanged, as significant share gains in skid steer loaders and other light equipment lines offset lower sales of backhoe loaders.

Market Outlook for Agricultural Equipment: Through the first half of the year, the industry in the Americas has continued to perform better than last year and somewhat better than expected, with the strongest results in the United States and Brazil. As a result, the company now expects the industry will be up by as much as five percent in the Americas for the full year. In Europe, the market has performed as expected and the forecast for the full year is unchanged: down by eight percent. Foot and mouth disease in Western Europe appears to have nearly run its course, but the possible impact of BSE remains unclear.

Market Outlook for Construction Equipment: In the second quarter, industry sales of construction equipment were down significantly in North America while Europe and Asia weakened slightly, and growth in Latin America slowed somewhat. Although further deterioration is not expected, neither is any significant recovery anticipated in 2001.

CNH Outlook for 2001: The success of the company's overall integration process is evident in the steady growth of merger related profit improvements ($300 million expected for the full year) and the consistent improvement in the gross margin as well as the significant share gains and reductions in dealer and company inventory reported this quarter.

Pennsylvania Student Named Intern At Select Sire

PLAIN CITY, Ohio — Thomas Uber, Mercer, Pa., has been selected as the field marketing intern for Select Sires Inc., Plain City, Ohio. In this role he will work with the Select federation's 10 member cooperatives by helping locate, fit and photograph daughters of Select's sires. In addition, Uber will assist with other marketing projects while based at the organization's headquarters office in Plain City.

Uber is in his third year at Pennsylvania State University, State College, Pa., majoring in animal sciences with a business option. A member of the university's dairy science club, he has helped with the Nittany Lion Fall Classic sale, annual cheesebox sale and Penn State Dairy Expo. Uber also is a volunteer leader of his local 4-H club.

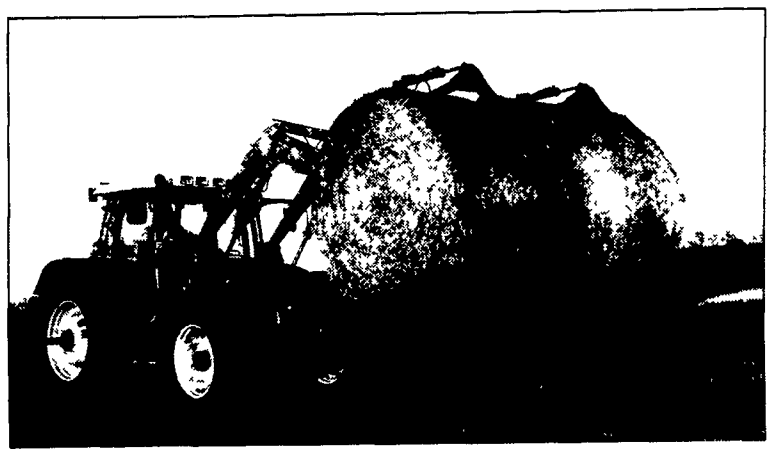
Uber recently finished an internship with the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, State College, Pa., where he worked with junior members, represented the association at regional meetings and assisted with marketing cattle. The son of Debra Uber, Mercer, Pa., he has been actively involved with the 60-cow herd at his home farm, Amoore Holstein Farm.

Agco Introduces New Line Of Fendt Loaders

ATLANTA, Ga. — As a complement to its widely acclaimed Fendt tractor line, which the company introduced to North America in early 2000, Agco Corporation has released a new line of Fendt loaders.

Available in two series, Fendt loaders are tailor-made specifically for the Fendt Vario 400 and 700 Series tractors and are designed to fill two specific niches in the market.

For those looking for a custom-fit loader, Agco offers the 3S-63, designed to fit the Fendt 400 Series, and the 3S-70 model, which fits the Fendt 700 Series. Both models are built by Fendt in Germany and are available as factory installed options only. That's because unlike most loaders on the market today, the 3S Series features heavy-duty cast-iron mountings that securely attach to the tractor's cast-iron half frame.



Four new models of Fendt loaders provide owners of 400 and 700 Series Fendt tractors with a choice of high-performance loaders in both factory-installed and dealer-installed versions.

"The cast-iron-to-cast-iron fit allows for the use of narrow, contoured brackets that permit full maneuverability of the power front axle, and provides easy access to the engine compartment and maintenance areas," says Kevin Bien, General Marketing Manager for Fendt products. "Other unique features of the 3S-63 and 3S-70 models include a hydraulic line/hose breakage safety feature that instantly locks the front loader if a line or hose should break, and a lowering control valve that provides a constant lowering speed irrespective of the load.

The 450 HSL and 750 HSL (Hydraulic Self-Leveling) loaders, on the other hand, are built in North America and are available as dealer-installed models for customers wishing to add a loader after the purchase. Designed to fit the 400 and 700 Series Fendt tractors respectively, the 450 HSL and 750 HSL feature a high-tensile-strength boom frame that combines reach, torque and durability. The HSL loaders' pedestal mount design also assures the same front-axle maneuverability as the 3S Series factory-mounted loaders. To top it off, a tractor-matching, powder coat finish provides added durability and appearance by providing resistance to chipping and rust.

"One of the best features about both loader series, though, is the easy mounting and removal," says Bien. "It only takes a few minutes, and no tools are ever needed."

According to Bien, much of the credit goes to the unique hydraulic multi-coupler, which groups all five hydraulic couplers into a single block coupling. The operator need only line it up and engage the locking handle. All hydraulic circuits are connected without confusion, contamination or significant oil leakage. For added convenience, the HSL models even include an integral electric third circuit plug-in connection in the multi-coupler.

Additional features found on all models include a self-leveling system that automatically maintains bucket angle regardless of lift height; and a "Quick-attach" system that permits fast and easy front attachment changes.

"Fendt loader customers will also appreciate the fact that joystick loader control is already built into the tractor," Bien adds. "There's no need to add additional controls to the cab, or fumble with separate remote levers."

Using the crossgate lever located to the right of the operator seat on 400 Series tractors and in the armrest on 700 Series models, the operator has one-lever control of all loader functions. Pushbutton operation of an optional third hydraulic circuit control allows the operator to engage a grapple fork or other auxiliary attachment.

"Other features which make the 400 and 700 Series Fendt tractors the ideal loader tractors," Bien continues, "include the pressure-flow compensated hydraulic system, which ensures increased lift capacity and fast loader cycle times, and the forward/reverse power shuttle, which can be shifted from both the Fendt multi-function joystick and a button on the steering column adjustment lever — leaving the right hand free for loader operation.

"When you add the Fendt tractor's stepless speed control, proportional crossgate control lever and combine it all with Fendt's state-of-the-art front loader technology, you end up with a loader tractor that provides unmatched performance and efficiency," he concludes. "Yet, it remains an extremely versatile machine, particularly since the loader can be easily removed."

Both loader series offer a variety of attachments for all four models, as well. They include several sizes of material buckets, two fork attachments, a round bale spear, a bale squeezer and a grapple fork.

Jennings Advances To Bid-Calling Finals

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. — In the auction industry, Billie J. Jennings of York Haven, Pa., is one of the elite among the elite — kept from the world title, international auctioneer champion, by a mere fraction of points.

The competition, the largest of its kind anywhere, was recently conducted by the National Auctioneers Association at its 52nd International Conference and Show in Boise, Idaho, July 16-22.

Only 84 of the association's more than 6,000 members mustered sufficient derring-do to enter the competition. Jennings was not only one of these, but also one of only 20 auctioneers (15 men and five women) to advance to the finals.

In the preliminary round of competition, contestants are required to demonstrate their sales capabilities, bid-calling technique , and general poise and presence by auctioning three items they've never seen before. After 10 intense hours, the field was narrowed to the 20 finalists, who then repeated the bid-calling drill following another aspect of the contest that is unique to the finals: an interview in which each contestant (conducted in isolation to prevent hearing the responses from the other contestants) is asked to respond to three questions developed by the panel of seven judges to assess knowledge, poise, ethics, professional judgment, and communications skills. All seven judges (five men and two women) were professional auctioneers.

This year's winners were, in the men's division, Scott Musser of Kennewick, Wash., champion; Jeffrey Stokes of Edgewood, Wash., first runner-up; and Rick Musick of Eagle, Idaho, second runner-up.

In the women's division, the winners were Jill Marie Wiles of Canby, Ore., champion; Terri Walker of Memphis, Tenn.; first runner-up; and Darlene Davis of Emmett, Idaho, second runner-up. (When the IAC competition began in 1988, men and women competed in one division. That was changed in 1994 when the contest was bifurcated into men's and women's divisions.)

The National Auctioneers Association's 52nd International Conference and Show has more than 1,100 registered attendees, including NAA auctioneers, their families, exhibitors in the trade show and, for the first time ever, auctioneers who are not members of NAA.

Jennings participated in numerous educational offerings at the conference and show, learning the latest developments in the marketing speciality that is auctioneering. Topics includes marketing, information technology, legal issues, auction specialities, and advertising and communication, among others. The NAA label indicates, among other desirable qualities, auctioneers who have access to a comprehensive and coordinated continuing education program.

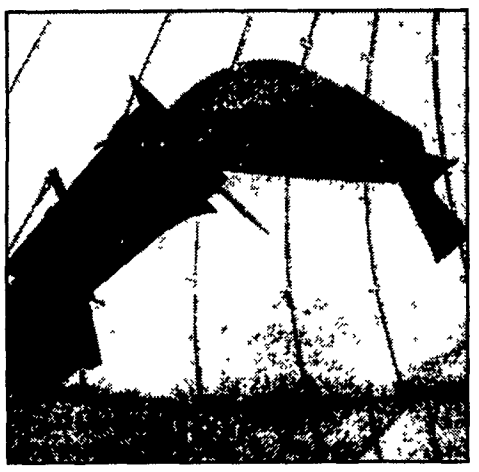
Silage Spreaders with a Heritage of Quality

Lancaster Level-Flo has been the leader in non-motorized silage spreaders for more than 25 years. Each spreader is specifically designed to meet the needs of the individual operator.



Choose the spreader that best matches the equipment you use to fill your silo.

The Model 1030 Multi-Flo® is our standard silage spreader With a 9" gooseneck, it is designed for average capacity blowers and silo sizes

The Model 1200 Multi-Flo® has a 12" wide gooseneck Its larger size all but eliminates plugging problems, even when you blow in haylage It is especially helpful in larger silos

The BlueMax® is built for those who push high-capacity silo filling equipment to the limit All parts of the BlueMax® subject to wear are made 25% heavier - and the stainless steel plate is twice as heavy For strength, there are reinforcements all around Even our well-known non-binding hinge is heavier

For more information or the location of the Lancaster dealer nearest you, call today 1-800-635-8708.

Crude Soy Oil Now Available

With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer soybean oil as an animal nutrition product. Processing the soybeans ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

Crude Soybean Oil

Uses of Crude Soy Oil Include:

- Use as a high energy feed ingredient in swine and poultry diets.
- Especially useful in sow lactation diets, pig starter and grow/finish diets.
- Used as an added energy source in broiler, turkey and layer feeds.
- Can be used for dust control purposes.
- Can be used as a lubricant for feeding systems

Advantages of Crude Soy Oil:

- Use as a direct replacement for animal fat
- Vegetable based product
- Holding tank does not need to be heated if temperature is above 30 degrees, which reduces storage and handling costs compared to animal fat
- Bulk delivery, partial loads available direct to farm by Keystone Mills
- Customer may pick up to save delivery costs.

GROWING FARM FAMILY DEPENDS ON PURINA

The growing Brougher clan depends on Purina to keep the dairy animals at their peak and provide a good living for the family. In front of new milking facility, from left, Purina representative Jim Frain; Ruby, Ruth, Bob, Michael, Fannie, Lois, and Randy Brougher with Carson, Nathaniel and Leonard in front.

About 20 years ago, Bob and Ruth Brougher of Beaver Run Farm near Gettysburg switched from Purina to another feeding program for their herd of Holsteins.

They decided to return to Purina in 1985 and have stayed there ever since.

Both of them agree that what makes Purina stand out from the crowd is the high level of attention their Purina representative gives to balancing the rations.

"It's the service that makes it work," Bob said.

As the main recordkeeper for the herd of 125 cows, Ruth said that evidence of a good feeding program can be seen in the Holstein's rolling herd average of nearly 26,000 pounds.

"We've had good results because (Purina) keeps everything balanced," she said.

The Broughers said they can routinely expect two visits or more per month from Purina Representative Jim Frain.

Ruth is now teaching son Michael how to keep the cow records. As the main herdsman, Michael owns a number of the Holsteins, as well as eight Jerseys which he especially likes because "they're nice to work with."

On the Purina program, the Jerseys are achieving a rolling herd average of over 17,000 pounds.

The Brougher's other son, Randy, is the "field man" who grows corn and alfalfa on about 500 acres to provide the main part of the feed for the cows. Haylage, corn silage, and high moisture corn are stored in separate silos and dispensed in measured amounts, along with Purina custom Maxi-Tech concentrate, in the bunk feeder.

The animals are put on a Purina program starting at birth. Newborn calves on the farm receive Purina Nurse Chow milk replacer, and Purina calf starter grain mix "as soon as they'll start eating it," Bob said.

Older replacement heifers and dry cows also receive a special Purina concentrate in the ration. With both Michael and Randy starting their own families, the Broughers have been making improvements on the farm. They built a new facility in 1999 that houses a double-10 parallel-stall milking parlor, milk house and office area.

A possible expansion project for the future may be construction of a new free stall barn with capacity for 200 milking cows. However, Ruth said that if the operation continues to thrive as it is now, the family may choose to keep the herd size smaller.

Whichever way the Broughers decide, Purina feeds will continue to be a major part of the program.

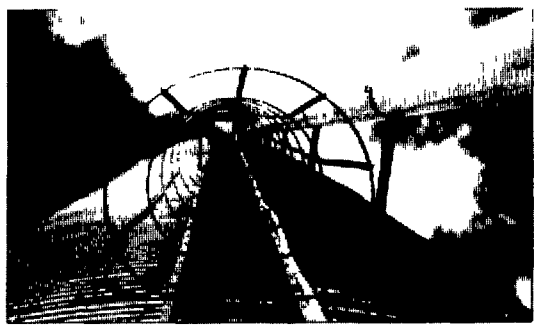
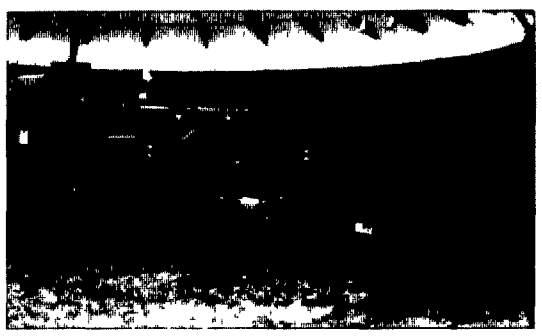
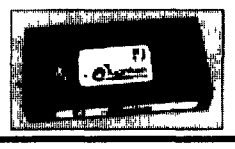
Silo Unloader Technology Takes a Giant Leap Forward!

BIG JIM® Quantum SYSTEM







CALL US TODAY FOR A VIDEO AND BROCHURE.

TOWER SILOS REALLY MEASURE UP!

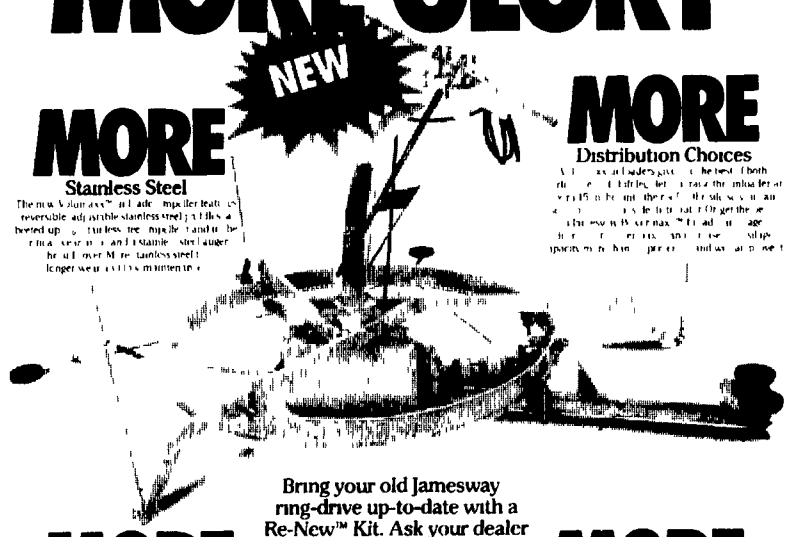
Measure for measure, nothing beats a tower silo for storing forage. Just compare them to bunkers which have up to 45% storage loss, as well as lower capacity, increased labor and equipment costs and considerable inconvenience. Towers lose just 3% to 7% because of gravity, feed weight and a good unloader like the Big Jim QUANTUM System.

QUANTUM installs in any type of 20' to 30' forage silo conventional or oxygen limited, and makes your tower silo even better!

JAMESWAY The Silo Unloader Experts

VOLUMAXX

MORE GUTS MORE GLORY



MORE Stainless Steel

The new Volumaxx™ unloader features reversible, adjustable stainless steel paddles, a beefed up auger, stainless tree, spindle and tube, and the exclusive Saber Edge™ stainless steel auger head. Lower MOI for stainless steel longer wear, less maintenance

MORE Distribution Choices

Volumaxx™ paddles give you the best throughput, whether you're unloading corn silage, haylage or a mixture of the two. Choose the unloader that's right for your silo, or get the best of both with the Volumaxx™ dual-stage unloader. Two sets of paddles and two speeds let you adjust capacity to match your cattle and your feeding system.

MORE Performance

The Volumaxx unloader's high performance auger head and exclusive discharge auger features lift forward pitch flighting to keep haylage and silage moving toward the center of the auger tube and away from the edge. Result: Lower power requirement, more efficient unloading, longer auger life, less auger wear.

Latest Farming Technology Demonstrated At Ag Progress Days

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Penn State's Ag Progress Days — Aug. 14-16 — annually presents state-of-the-art technology for farmers and other agricultural producers.

This year's edition of one of Pennsylvania's largest outdoor agricultural exposition has the potential to top last year's record participation from commercial vendors, according to Bob Oberheim, manager of the event.

"To date, we have more than 30 new commercial exhibitors coming to the show, with the potential for up to 40 new companies," Oberheim said. "I feel confident that we'll have more than last year's 342 exhibitors, and possibly set a record."

In addition to equipment displays, exhibitors will offer 'show-and-tell" demonstrations, a skid steer rodeo and a farm equipment highway safety workshop. Field demonstrations will feature hay mowing, baling, bale handling, haylage chopping and bagging, and rakes and tedders. In addition, three specialty line equipment companies will demonstrate a variety of equipment, such as planters, forage mixers, loaders, bale processors and forage platforms, plus other equipment.

"Each of the specialty line equipment companies will have more than a half-acre of active demonstration area to showcase items that are unique, state-of-the art or in demand in the industry," Oberheim said. "They'll demonstrate a wide range of equipment throughout the day. The potential buyer can talk to a company representative, see the equipment features and watch it in action."

Vegetable producers can see the latest in high tunnels during an expanded demonstration tour through the horticulture research farm. High tunnels are simple, garage-sized structures covered with clear plastic sheeting to manipulate soil and air temperatures using the energy of the sun to support year-round growing seasons. Penn State researchers are conducting growing trials for a variety of crops, including tomatoes, peppers, potatoes, spinach, lettuce, okra, ornamental gourds, cauliflower, raspberries, blackberries, strawberries and cut flowers.

"Since last year, they've added more high tunnel models and two large full-sized models to show what commercial production would be," Oberheim said. "We're growing a lot of crops, and our researchers have another year of experience with this technology under their belts. High tunnels can work for the home gardening enthusiast or the commercial grower, and this tour will show how it can work for you."

Many visitors will appreciate another new feature: "new products" posters developed by Ag Progress Days staff to help visitors find new or innovative products at the exposition.

"Our research center covers 55 acres — that's a pretty big area," Oberheim said. "Thanks to the new-products posters, our audience can focus immediately on what's new. This will help them use their time wisely."

Because of concerns over the possible transmission of foot-and-mouth disease and other foreign animal diseases, visitors who have been overseas within two weeks of attending Ag Progress Days are asked not to visit the event's live-animal exhibit areas.

Penn State's Ag Progress Days is conducted at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rockspring, nine miles southwest of State College on Rt. 45. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesday, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday, and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday. Admission and parking are free.

Complex Issues Addressed At Ag Progress Days

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Declining profitability, environmental protection, biotechnology, globalization, and emerging diseases — these issues present multifaceted challenges to farmers, and the solutions can be as complex as the issues themselves.

By visiting the College of Agricultural Sciences Exhibit Building at this year's Ag Progress Days event, Aug. 14-16, visitors can learn how Penn State research and educational programs are addressing these issues. "From the Ground Up: Building a Better Environment" is the theme for the event.

"Ag Progress Days gives us a chance to showcase some of the work we're doing to address problems such as land and water pollution while enhancing farm profitability and human health," said Robert Steele, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences. "Research and education are critical to finding our way through today's complex issues to answers that work not only for those of us who are here, now, but also for our children and their children."

One College Building exhibit will focus on new uses for farm waste products. The College of Agricultural Sciences and the College of Earth and Mineral Sciences at Penn State are working collaboratively on various projects in this area. For example, plastic jugs used to store chemicals can present a disposal problem for farmers. But new research is uncovering ways to turn used farm plastics into pellets that can be used in manufacturing or as a fuel source.

An innovative truck that gobbles up plastic jugs and turns them into a usable product will be demonstrated at the show — visitors are encouraged to bring empty plastic pesticide containers from home to be recycled by the machine. The exhibit also will feature other research aimed at turning agricultural waste products into profit-generating biofuels that may help to address the country's critical energy needs.

Visitors also will learn how they can conserve water resources and take measures to protect water wells from contamination. In addition, landowners will see why wetlands are important, both as habitat for plant and animal species and as buffer zones to soak up excess farm nutrients and other pollutants that might otherwise contaminate rivers and streams.

Livestock farmers will learn how new quality assurance programs can help them ensure the safety of their food products and find affordable and practical solutions to on-farm environmental challenges. The programs address a broad range of farm practices — from feed rations and managing manure to animal health care — in a holistic manner. Other exhibits will provide information about launching profitable small farms through niche marketing.

Presentations in the theater area of the building will address current health issues such as foot-and-mouth, West Nile, and Lyme diseases. A farm vehicle and equipment safety workshop and a public forum on hot topics in today's agriculture also are scheduled. On Thursday morning, Aug. 16, the Pennsylvania House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee will hold a "town meeting." Farmers and other members of the public who wish to discuss current issues with committee members are welcome to attend. Crop insurance issues will be addressed at an afternoon session in the theater on Thursday. In addition, visitors to the show will be able to take home a variety of free publications produced by the College of Agricultural Sciences and get information about undergraduate programs.

Because of concerns over the possible transmission of foot-and-mouth disease and other foreign animal diseases, visitors who have been overseas within two weeks of attending Ag Progress Days are asked not to visit the event's live-animal exhibit areas.

Penn State's Ag Progress Days is held at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rockspring, nine miles southwest of State College on Rt. 45. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesday, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday, and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday. Admission and parking are free.

Ag Progress Days Schedules Variety Of Events

Aug. 14-16, 2001
Rockspring, Pa.
Tuesday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Wednesday, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.
Thursday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.
Welcome!

I'm very excited to welcome you to Ag Progress Days 2001, "From the Ground Up: Building a Better Environment."

Today, wrestling with complex issues is the name of the game for all of us. Profitability, environmental protection, biotechnology, globalization, emerging diseases — these issues present multifaceted challenges, and their solutions will be as complex as the issues themselves. I know, however, that research and education are critical to finding our way through to answers that work not only for those of us who are here, now, but also for our children and their children.

That's why I'm very proud to share with you some of the work we're doing in the College of Agricultural Sciences. As you walk through the College Exhibits Building, you'll see displays featuring research and extension programs that address issues such as land and water pollution while at the same time enhancing farm profitability. Turning farm waste products into profit-generating energy or utilizing wetlands as buffer zones to trap excess nutrients are good examples of this work. Presentations in the theater will address current issues such as foot-and-mouth, West Nile, and Lyme diseases. A highway safety workshop for farm equipment operators and a public forum on hot topics in today's agriculture also are scheduled.

Throughout the show, you'll find exhibits and displays packed with information to help you and your family. More than $20 million in farm equipment and services are on display, with an equipment manufacturers "show and tell" demonstration featuring the very latest technologies. Also scheduled are a skid steer rodeo, a special high-tunnel production tour, and a variety of field demonstrations. You'll find information on crops and soils, dairy and livestock production, integrated pest management, farm safety, woodlot management, and lawn, landscape and garden care.

New this year is the "Kid's Climb," where the daring can ascend to the treetops and discover what it's like to be an arborist. Some of our most popular features are back for your enjoyment. The corn maze and largest weed contest await you, as do the lovely flower gardens. The Family Learning Hub, ImAGination Station, Shavers Creek and the Farm Animal Learning Center continue to offer great fun, great information, and a place to relax with your family.

Don't forget to visit the Pasto Agricultural Museum to see their special exhibit and take part in the second annual silent auction. And throughout the show, you'll find food booths offering wonderful treats from ice cream to steak sandwiches.

If there is anything we can do to make your visit more enjoyable, please feel free to ask our faculty and staff for assistance. Welcome to Ag Progress Days!

Pasto Museum Features 6,000 Years Of Small Grains

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — "Six Thousand Years of Small Grains" will be the featured theme at the Pasto Agricultural Museum during Penn State's Ag Progress Days, Aug. 14-16.

Visitors can see historic grain production items used for soil preparation, sowing, harvesting/handling, threshing, power, cleaning, and grain handling.

The collection begins with a 6,000-year-old clay sickle and concludes with a horse-drawn binder and photographs of horse-drawn combines, according to Darwin Braund, museum curator. The latter items are representative of those that closed the human- and animal-power era in most of the U.S. by the 1940s.

"For centuries, the harvesting and threshing of small grains required more labor than growing them," said Braund. "Thus, much attention was paid to improving the harvest. It was the most important event on Earth every year."

In the earliest days, the heads of grain were hand-picked from each stalk, and then threshed by rubbing them between the hands, explains Braund. A flint stone with a sharp edge was the earliest mechanized cutter. Clay sickles were made in areas with no stones.

Sickles made of bronze, an alloy of copper and tin, followed the clay models. They in turn were replaced when the Iron Age made sharper blades possible. New designs of the tool improved efficiency in their use.

The Pasto Agricultural Museum collection includes more than 750 antique implements used for farming and rural life. Visitors can tour the museum during Ag Progress Days and by appointment. Groups of 10 or more can schedule tours from April 15 through Oct. 15 by calling (814) 863-1383, sending an e-mail to pastoag-museum@psu.edu, or registering through the World Wide Web at pasto.cas.psu.edu.

Because of concerns over the possible transmission of foot-and-mouth disease and other foreign animal diseases, visitors who have been overseas within two weeks of attending Ag Progress Days are asked not to visit the event's live-animal exhibit areas.

Innovations For Livestock Housed In One Place At Ag Progress

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — As biosciences, computer technologies, and other innovations impact every phase of animal agriculture, it gets tougher for livestock and dairy producers to keep up. Producers who want to stay current should visit the Animal Sciences Exhibits Area at Penn State's Ag Progress Days, Aug. 14-16.

The exhibits, sponsored by Penn State's departments of dairy and animal science and veterinary science, will feature the best available technologies to make them accessible to farmers and producers, according to Bill Heald, professor of dairy science and exhibit coordinator.

"We're highlighting the best of the new and the old, to help farmers sort out what's available," he said. "There are so many new inventions and initiatives, sometimes it's good to have an expert there to help you decide what's a real innovation, and what's a flash in the pan.

"We want the animal industry to show us what they're doing and have the opportunity to ask us for advice. We can discover what the producers want, they can see what we have to offer, and we can forge a relationship to improve Pennsylvania's agriculture industry."

A great example is the hog odor remediation exhibit in the Animal Sciences facility. Developed by Penn State researchers, it's a comparison of several technologies for controlling odor emissions from swine and other livestock facilities. Visitors can talk with the experts about the relative strengths of each system and consider the factors that would make a system most effective for a particular location.

Even the building housing the exhibits is innovative. Called an "animal greenhouse," it's a low-cost and surprisingly sturdy farm building that uses a metal tubing frame and plastic sheeting to fulfill all of the functions of traditional wood-and-steel barns, at a fraction of the cost.

A new addition for 2001 is a display from the Dairy Alliance, a partnership between Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, Penn State Cooperative Extension, and dairy producers to enhance the economic development of the Pennsylvania dairy industry through focused educational efforts. The alliance helps individual farmers with issues of labor and business management, information technologies and nutrient management.

The popular Youth Lamb Show and Skillathon returns with a new wrinkle on Wednesday, Aug. 15, at the Junior Livestock Exhibition Tent. Pennsylvania 4-H and FFA members in four age groups will test their knowledge about lamb production in a multi-phase competition that includes a showmanship competition, a written test and a series of identification stations, followed by a traditional lamb show. This year, 4-H and FFA members with lamb projects can compete without showing an animal.

Other displays will address the dynamics of milk market pricing, milking machine testing and improvement, and opportunities in undergraduate education.

Because of concerns over the possible transmission of foot-and-mouth disease and other foreign animal diseases, visitors who have been overseas within two weeks of attending Ag Progress Days are asked not to visit the event's live-animal exhibit areas.

Crop And Soil Information At Penn State's Ag Progress Days

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Weeds and dirt aren't usually big crowd-pleasers, but there's fun to be had for young and old alike at the Crop and Soil Sciences Tent at Penn State's Ag Progress Days, sponsored by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, Aug. 14-16.

The exhibit area will present new developments in forage and crop production, with plots of field corn, sweet corn, soybeans and alfalfa; small research plot harvesting equipment; and a display of about 100 common weeds in Pennsylvania, according to Marvin Hall, professor of forage management and coordinator for the area. And the return of the popular "A-Maze-N Corn" will provide fun for the young and young-at-heart while parents are looking into more serious matters.

"Children can spend time in the maze while the adults can visit with Penn State specialists for advice on weed control, forages, soils, corn, soybeans and small grains," Hall said. "So for three days people will have immediate access to specialists in crop and soil science — while their kids have loads of fun."

Another source of amusement will be the annual "Largest Weed in Pennsylvania" contest. Gardeners, farmers and homeowners will bring in their largest, most noxious samples of unwanted plant guests for the three-day competition. Prizes will be awarded daily.

The Hay Show will once again show samples of the state's best hay. Growers who would like to enter samples in the display are invited to bring them to the Hay Show drop-off point near the Ag Progress Days' east entrance on the morning of Aug. 14. All samples will be evaluated, and growers will receive the results.

Visitors also can pick up free extension publications related to crops and soils. Along with Penn State extension crop and soil specialists, representatives from the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council, Crop Management Association and Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers will be on hand for one-on-one consultations.

Because of concerns over the possible transmission of foot-and-mouth disease and other foreign animal diseases, visitors who have been overseas within two weeks of attending Ag Progress Days are asked not to visit the event's live-animal exhibit areas.

Penn State's Ag Progress Days is conducted at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rockspring, nine miles southwest of State College on Rt. 45. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesday, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday, and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday. Admission and parking are free.

For more information, call (800) PSU-1010 toll-free from July 9 to Aug. 16 or visit the Ag Progress Days Website at http://apd.cas.psu.edu.

"There aren't a lot of stallions that you can put over a fence and let kids hang on his bridle," said Joe Myers of Joekar's Hilltop Farm. "Thor," 10 years old, was an instant hit with the crowd.

Take The Kids To The Country At Penn State's Ag Progress Days

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — From megatractors to wild raptors, there's plenty for kids to do at Penn State's Ag Progress Days, Aug. 14-16.

Whether you're three or 103, you can learn about the life of an arborist — up in the trees. The "Kid's Climb" will have ropes and all of the necessary equipment to safely climb two white oaks. With help from professional arborists, amateur climbers can climb to 25 feet — or to their comfort level — whichever comes first. "Anyone who has a little coordination can try," said Jim Savage, research assistant in Penn State's Environmental Resources Research Institute.

At the Natural Resource Conservation Partnership area, adults can relax in the "backyard garden," while kids enjoy the fish tank, daily fly-casting exhibitions, invertebrates, worm tubes and touch boxes, or get tattoos and make fish print shirts. The younger crowd also may enjoy 'A Maze N Corn," a corn maze that's accessible for wheelchairs and baby strollers. The maze is located next to the Crops and Soils Tent on East 5th Street.

The Family Learning Hub, near the food vendors on Main Street, between West 8th and West 9th, will interest kids whether they live on a farm or in the city. The Hub includes:

• ImAGination Station. Little visitors can learn about rocketry, race balloons, play with chicks and slip their smiling faces into a stand-up astronaut or Nittany Lion for a take-home photo. They also can meet The Waterlion, the star of a brand-new book, and do "The Big Drip" to learn how much water is wasted from a leaky faucet.

At one particularly tasty exhibit, visitors will receive a passport and try to guess — using a world map and table filled with ingredients for chocolate (cocoa beans, cocoa trees, sugar cane, sugar beets, almonds and milk) — which country each ingredient came from. At another interactive, tasty exhibit, you can learn how much color influences perception of flavor.

Ag in the Classroom will feature an interactive game that tests kids knowledge of basic facts related to Pennsylvania agriculture. So, how many stomachs does a cow have?

If they want to get small, kids can peer through a microscope at the hidden life of soils. Also, food-related bacteria will be featured in 'The Good, The Bad and The Necessary."

• Shaver's Creek Environmental Center. Here, visitors can get "up close and personal" with native Pennsylvania wildlife. Shaver's Creek will introduce visitors to live birds-of-prey, snakes, turtles and frogs, share stories and answer questions. Interpretive programs will be held on various wildlife. Hands-on exhibits will include natural artifacts, such as skulls, pelts and antlers.

• Farm Animal Learning Center. This is the place to learn about farm animal welfare, such as animal care, biosecurity, and use issues. Visit with dairy and beef calves, goats, lambs, rabbits, pigs, miniature horses, chickens, retired greyhounds and other farm and companion animals, and learn about the myths and facts of farm animal production. New information this year focuses on precautions that should be taken by farm and non-farm people when working with and enjoying farm animals to prevent the spread of disease. More than 50 handouts, mostly for grades 3-8, will cover almost every aspect of animal agriculture.

• Family Room Building. Here, visitors can go on a treasure hunt or relax at the "Kids Corner," a special area where children and parents can do art activities, enjoy water play and read stories together. Families also will find a variety of informative exhibits, games and demonstrations on cooking, youth sports, food safety, financial issues, children and elders, and more.

Because of concerns over the possible transmission of foot-and-mouth disease and other foreign animal diseases, visitors who have been overseas within two weeks of attending Ag Progress Days are asked not to visit the event's live-animal exhibit areas.

For more information, call (800) PSU-1010 toll-free through Aug. 16 or visit the Ag Progress Days Website at http://apd.cas.psu.edu.

One-Stop Lawn And Gardening Advice At Ag Progress Days

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Home gardeners and professional growers can get answers to any kind of question related to home landscaping and the cut-flower business at Ag Progress Days, sponsored by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, Aug. 14-16.

Penn State specialists in horticulture, plant pathology, entomology and turfgrass will be on hand at the Landscape, Lawn and Garden "Ask the Experts" tent on East 7th St. at the Ag Progress Days site.

The demonstration gardens will showcase more than 100 flower varieties, including zinnias, asters, celosia, sunflowers, strawflowers and other annuals, as well as perennial plants and several varieties of woody plants popular in the cut-flower market. "We'll also display some unique flower varieties not widely known," said Robert Berghage, associate professor of horticulture.

"Cut flowers really have piqued the interest of farmers and others as a cash crop that can be sold at farmer's markets and other outlets," Berghage said. "The cash return on a small, well-managed plot of flowers is a lot more than you would get from an acre of corn."

Flower arranging demonstrations will be conducted daily in the tent at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., with an additional demonstration at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 15.

Penn State faculty and cooperative extension agents also can help diagnose your plant, insect and mite problems. "Bring samples of turf, plants or insects for an on-the-spot evaluation," Berghage said. "If we can't solve the problem immediately, we'll examine it further at a lab on campus and get back to you with a diagnosis and suggestions."

Because of concerns over the possible transmission of foot-and-mouth disease and other foreign animal diseases, visitors who have been overseas within two weeks of attending Ag Progress Days are asked not to visit the event's live-animal exhibit areas.

For more information, call (800) PSU-1010 toll-free through Aug. 16 or visit the Ag Progress Days Web site at http://apd.cas.psu.edu.

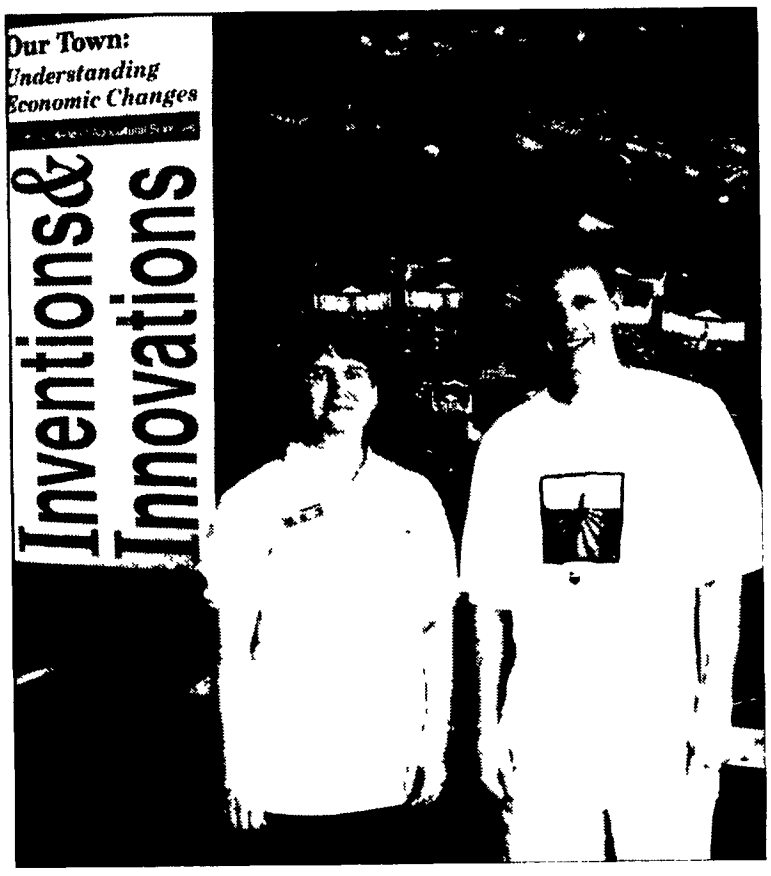
One Tough Animal



Extension agent Winifred McGee and assistant professor and co-developer of the CIM PSU model Martin Shields explained their contribution to the "Inventions and Innovations" theme, a model which predicts the impact of economic changes on a community.

500 Livestock Producers Complete Environmental Literacy Course

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — More than 500 livestock producers in Pennsylvania have participated in a new Livestock Environmental Literacy Course developed by Penn State University College of Agricultural Sciences Department of Animal Science Extension to improve environmental awareness and stewardship among livestock producers.

Development of the course was done by Penn State through the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania State Conservation Commission in response to a request from the state Senate for three educational products to help those involved with agricultural nutrient management issues.

Two other educational products — a Best Management Practices manual and a community conflict resolution manual — were created by commission, Department of Agriculture and DEP staff at the same time, and distributed through educational meetings and conventions conducted last fall through this year.

Certification course efforts thus far indicate a high degree of acceptance among agricultural producers. During the first winter meeting season (Nov. 9, 2000 through May 7, 2001), 525 people were enrolled and 506 completed the course.

Enrollment was highest among swine producers (39 percent), followed by dairy (14 percent) and poultry (six percent). Additional participants included other farmers, and regulatory personnel and professional educators.

There is no cost to attend the Livestock Certification Course. The course consists of four basic areas of concern: environmental awareness, manure application, odor and gaseous emissions, and environmental regulations.

Robert Meinen, senior extension associate, serves as the program coordinator and generally teaches the course. In addition, extension agents or other educational professionals with adequate in-service training can teach the course via computer, conventional slides, or overhead transparencies, depending on equipment available. Following the course, producers are required to attain a minimum score of 80 percent on an exam before receiving a certificate of completion.

For more information, contact Robert Meinen at Penn State University at (814) 865-2987 or e-mail rjm134@psu.edu.

Natural Resources, Backyard Gardens At Ag Progress Days

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Visitors can explore nearly five acres of demonstrations, presentations, tours, and exhibits at the Natural Resource Conservation Partnership Area at Penn State's Ag Progress Days, Aug. 14-16.

"Afterward, relax in our 'backyard garden' courtesy of Blackhawk Nursery," said Stacy Mitchell, state public affairs specialist for the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service.

• Daily tours. The "Forestry Wildlife Tour" will feature an easy walk through the forest. The "Conservation Tour" will take visitors through grassed waterways, stream crossings, diversions, and terraces to learn about practices that improve soil and water quality.

The "Grazing Tour" will highlight research on how grazing management can help farmers economically by reducing the pressure to buy feed. "Last year's grazing tour was so successful that we had to commander a second bus," Mitchell said.

Also, once each day, a bus will shuttle visitors to the composting area, where farm nutrient and mortality composting will be demonstrated. For times and details, stop by the tent or Ag Progress Days information booth.

• Forums and presentations. "Along with our usual grazing forum where farmers can hear from panels of their peers about what is — and isn't — working on their farms, we'll have presentations on backyard composting and the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP), a state/federal/private partnership program that promotes water quality and wildlife habitat," Mitchell said.

Other presentations will include the Dirt and Gravel Road Program, which aims to reduce sediment in streams and make neighborhoods cleaner. "A daily presentation with live frogs and snakes will round out the programs," Mitchell said.

• Exhibits. "The main tent will be larger this year to make room for additional exhibitors," Mitchell said. "Kids can enjoy the fish tank, daily fly-casting exhibitions, invertebrates, worm tubes and touch boxes. They also can get tattoos and make fish print shirts using their own shirt, or one they purchase for $5."

Other exhibits will include farm and backyard conservation, soil types, plant materials and their uses, composting, nutrient management, best management practices, water quality, forestry, fencing, and watershed conservation.

• Live demonstrations. These will include how to stabilize barnyard surfaces and control runoff to "keep clean water clean," manure spreading standards and spreader calibration, livestock watering equipment, fencing types, no-till planting, and grass plots.

Federal and state agencies, organizations and private industries participate in the Natural Resources Conservation Partnership Area, including the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers; Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission; USDA Natural Resource Conservation Service; Pennsylvania's Departments of Environmental Protection, Conservation and Natural Resources, and Agriculture; Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts; Chesapeake Bay Foundation; USDA Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service; Penn State Cooperative Extension; USDA Grain Inspectors and Packers and Stockyards Agency; State Conservation Commission; and USDA Farm Service Agency.

Because of concerns over the possible transmission of foot-and-mouth disease and other foreign animal diseases, visitors who have been overseas within two weeks of attending Ag Progress Days are asked not to visit the event's live-animal exhibit areas.

No Unicorns At Ag Progress Days — But Lots Of Horses

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Whether for power, transportation or companionship, humans have bonded with horses for 6,000 years. Visitors can see why at Penn State's Ag Progress Days, Aug. 14-16.

Horse events will take place at the Equine Exhibits Building and Horse Arena on Main Street, behind the Special Events Building, at the Ag Progress Days site.

This year's program is dedicated to the memory of the late Bill Conway, long-time supporter of Penn State's equine program, the equine education program at Ag Progress Days and Centre County 4-H. A dedication ceremony will honor Conway at 6 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 15.

Experienced horse handlers will explain and demonstrate basic handling techniques and skills. Brian Egan, horse program assistant for Penn State Cooperative Extension, will demonstrate trailer loading at 1 p.m. on Tuesday, Ward Studebaker, manager of the university's horse herd, will demonstrate round pen training at 6 p.m. on Wednesday, and Carla Weaver, Centre County 4-H Horse Club leader, will present a horse-handling clinic at 12:15 p.m. on Thursday.

The Keystone Dressage and Combined Training Association will present the intricate riding techniques of dressage at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Tuesday. Dressage requires great coordination and training of both horse and rider — almost like gymnastics on horseback.

Jim Glunt, of Jim Glunt Equine Services, will show visitors how to evaluate a riding instructor at 1:10 p.m. on Wednesday, and fit saddles and equipment at 10:30 a.m. on Thursday.

A trainer will demonstrate sheep dog herding techniques each day at 11:30 a.m.

The Pennsylvania State Police Mounted Patrol will perform at 12:30 p.m. on Tuesday and 11 a.m. on Wednesday.

Horsepower Farm will demonstrate therapeutic riding at 12:30 p.m. on Wednesday. The Franklin County Therapeutic Riding Center will demonstrate therapeutic driving at 2:15 p.m. on Wednesday.

Wednesday evening events begin at 6 p.m. with a flag presentation by the Centre County 4-H Clubs and Pennsylvania State Police, followed by the ceremony for Bill Conway. An earlier flag presentation will take place at 1 p.m.

On Thursday, the Ag Progress Days/Pennsylvania Quarter Horse Association 4-H Equine Skillathon will start at 10 a.m. The skillathon is a multi-phase competition that allows young equestrians to demonstrate their skills with a showmanship competition, written test and series of identification stations.

4-H members without horses will compete in a separate division in which they will judge a class of horses. Entry deadline for the skillathon is Aug. 9. Entry forms are available from county cooperative extension offices.

Penn State equine science faculty members Nancy Diehl and Ann Swinker will answer horse care and health questions at the "Ask the Expert" booth each day in the Equine Exhibits Building.

Breed clinics throughout the event will present the history, uses and unique features of Freisians, Knapstrupps, Hanoverians, thoroughbreds, Paso Finos, quarter horses, trottingbreds and Morgans.

Because of concerns over the possible transmission of foot-and-mouth disease and other foreign animal diseases, visitors who have been overseas within two weeks of attending Ag Progress Days are asked not to visit the event's live-animal exhibit areas.

Penn State To Provide IPM Information To Retail Shoppers

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Home gardeners in two Pennsylvania counties who want to minimize their use of pesticides and fertilizers soon will be able to get tips and advice while shopping at their local garden centers and chain stores.

Beginning this fall, Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, in cooperation with the Pennsylvania IPM Program, will provide free information on integrated pest management (IPM) and nutrient management to retail shoppers in Franklin and York counties. "Our long-term goal is to expand the project to other areas of the state and work with counties in Maryland as well," said Steven Bogash, Penn State Cooperative Extension horticulture agent in Franklin County.

IPM aims to control pests — such as insects, diseases, weeds and animals — by combining physical, biological, and chemical tactics that are safe, profitable and environmentally compatible.

"In the case of home plantings, proper variety selection and good site preparation can help avoid many future pest problems," Bogash said. "Consumers need this information when they are planning their garden and purchasing plants."

Under a grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Bogash and Thomas Becker, Penn State Cooperative Extension horticulture agent in York County, will assess the needs of garden centers in York and Franklin counties and provide the centers with information about proper IPM practices that can be shared with consumers. A full-time educator will be hired to visit individual stores and disseminate educational materials.

"After the needs assessment this summer, we'll begin supplying information for the fall mum season, and then fact sheets on Christmas trees and house plants for the winter," Bogash said. Consumers also will receive information on classes offered by Penn State Cooperative Extension.

Project personnel also will work with the Southeast IPM Research Group — an organization of university and "green" industry collaborators in Pennsylvania and Delaware (http://sepaipm.cas.psu.edu) — to develop fact sheets on gardening topics such as choosing plants that are most resistant to diseases and plants that require less pesticide.

"In the past, we've relied on people coming to us for information, but we feel that most people only have time to shop at retail outlets and tend to their garden," said Bogash. "If they do need advice, they typically ask someone who is trying to sell them something. Through contact at the retail level, this project will give consumers useful and unbiased information and raise awareness of the IPM work being done by Penn State and other land-grant universities."

For more information, contact Steve Bogash (717-263-9226, smb13@psu.edu) or Tom Becker (717-840-7408, tbecker@psu.edu).

The Pennsylvania IPM Program is a collaboration between Penn State and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture aimed at promoting IPM in both agricultural and nonagricultural situations. For more information, call (814) 865-2839 or visit the program's Website at http://paipm.cas.psu.edu.

Life Skills, Family Info At Ag Progress

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Learn about family issues, health, safety and nutrition at "The Family Room" at Penn State's 2001 Ag Progress Days, Aug. 14-16.

The Family Room is located in the Family Learning Hub on Main Street, between West 8th and 9th streets at the Ag Progress Days site.

Visitors with children can go on a treasure hunt or relax at the "Kids Corner," a special area where children and parents can do art activities, enjoy water play and read stories together. Families also will find a variety of informative exhibits:

"Healthy Food, Healthy Families" will include daily food demonstrations on topics such as foods made from soy and tofu, increasing calcium in the diet, and "Kids in the Kitchen."

"Character Counts for Kids" will feature activities related to character education.

"Connecting the Generations" will illustrate the many ways young people and older adults can come together. At "Intergenerational Sketching," participants can have fun creating images of things young people and older adults can do together. At "Stump your Relative," kids and older relatives can test how much they know about the other's generation.

"Families Are Important and Resilient" will share ways families can deal with stress. "Reading Wizards" will show how to make reading a family activity. "Youth Sports" will provide information to parents and coaches about making youth sports a positive experience for the family. Information also will be available on how dads can get more involved in their kids' lives.

"The Four C's of Food Safety" will explore proper cooking and cooling, preventing cross-contamination, and keeping hands, utensils, and equipment clean. Visitors can check out different kinds of food thermometers.

"Full Circle: Agriculture, Nutrition, and Health" will show how the Pennsylvania Nutrition Education Network (PA NEN) and Pennsylvania Nutrition Education Plan (PA NEP) help low-income Pennsylvanians to increase their capacity to have healthy, delicious meals.

"Increase Your Financial Know-How" will feature ways to increase your money IQ and prepare for the future by saving, investing and distributing belongings to family members.

"The Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP)" teaches food preparation and nutrition to low-income youth and young families across Pennsylvania. The exhibit will include an interactive quiz board and food safety information.

"Keeping Kids Safe," by the Better Kid Care program, will feature ways parents can help keep kids safe while playing in the sun or around water, and riding bikes, scooters and skateboards.

"Making Healthy Decisions About Eating: Reducing Your Risk of Colo-rectal Cancer" will provide tips on healthy cooking and eating and recommendations for colo-rectal cancer screening. Learn about community cancer coalitions and the Appalachian Cancer Network.

"Secondhand Tobacco Smoke Prevention" will show how to have the smoke-free air we deserve in public places. Breathing secondhand smoke increases the risk of developing cancer.

"Road to Work" will give kids and families the chance to interactively explore the many employment opportunities available in their communities. Preparing kids to be successful in the work world begins at home.

"Up Close and Personal with DB Pest," by Penn State's Pesticide Education Program and the Pennsylvania Office of Rural Health, interactively teaches pesticide safety and how to reduce exposure around the home through a life-sized board game. Visitors also can learn about the West Nile Virus, a pest problem currently making headlines, and take home fact sheets and activity books.

"Wellness" will feature two principles that improve our ability to remain healthy: regular activity and eating more foods from the bottom of the food pyramid. Visitors can estimate how far they've walked, and see if they can identify high fiber foods.

Because of concerns over the possible transmission of foot-and-mouth disease and other foreign animal diseases, visitors who have been overseas within two weeks of attending Ag Progress Days are asked not to visit the event's live-animal exhibit areas.

NFU Awards Stanley Moore Scholarships

AURORA, Colo. — The National Farmers Union (NFU) recently announced the first ever recipients of the Stanley Moore Scholarships, a new program named in honor of former NFU vice president, Stanley Moore.

Receiving $500 each are Marik Moen of Minnesota; John Bata and Jessica Keith of North Dakota; Abigail Thrasher of Oklahoma; and Daniel Harnisch and Andy Larson of South Dakota. "All the recipients are outstanding young leaders, Stanley Moore would have been very proud of each of them," said Leesa Witt, NFU's director of education.

This new national scholarship program, offered through the National Farmers Union Foundation, was established by many of the Farmers Union state organizations to honor Stanley Moore and his lifelong dedication to Farmers Union. Moore was born into two prominent Farmers Union families in North Dakota. He rose through the ranks for 30 years before becoming president of the North Dakota Farmers Union. He also served as the National Farmers Union vice president and chairman of the National Farmers Union Insurance Companies.

The 2002 Stanley Moore Scholarship application deadline is April 15, 2002. Farmers Union members, who are either traditional or non-traditional students, seeking funding for their higher education at a two or four-year accredited institution are eligible for these scholarships. For more information or to obtain an application, contact Leesa Witt, National Farmers Union, 11900 E. Cornell Ave., Aurora, Colo., 80014 or call 1-800-347-1961 ext. 2527.

Pa. Physician General Recommends Lyme Disease Prevention

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Physician General Dr. Robert Muscalus urged Pennsylvanians to take some simple precautions to protect themselves against the bacterial infection lyme disease, carried by deer ticks.

"As warm weather arrives, people need to become informed about lyme disease and the steps they can take to avoid infection," Dr. Muscalus said.

The Physician General suggested the following precautions to decrease the risk of being bitten by an infected tick:

- Use insect repellent containing DEET (N-diethyl-metatoluamide) on clothes and exposed skin, except the face. Concentrations of less than 40 percent are recommended, and directions on product labels should be followed to avoid skin irritation and other toxic effects.
- Avoid tick-infested areas, such as high grass and weeds.
- Wear light-colored clothing so ticks can be spotted more easily.
- Wear a hat, long-sleeved shirt, and long pants for added protection.
- Tuck pant legs into socks or boots, and tuck shirts into pants.
- Tape the areas where pants and socks meet.
- Walk in the center of trails to avoid overhanging brush.
- Check for ticks after leaving potentially tick-infested areas. Daily tick checks are advised for people living in the areas of the highest lyme disease incidence.

In 2000, Dr. Muscalus noted 1,911 cases of confirmed lyme disease were reported in Pennsylvania. He said that Chester County led the state in confirmed cases of lyme disease last year with 476 cases. Montgomery County reported 379 cases, followed by Bucks County with 368 cases; Philadelphia, 157 cases; York County, 141 cases; Northampton County, 42 cases; and Berks County, 41 cases.

A bite from an infected deer tick — a tiny insect that can be smaller than a pinhead or a poppy seed — transmits the disease. In its early stages, the tick feeds on white-footed mice that live in wooded, bushy areas. It later moves on to larger mammals, including dogs, cats, deer and humans.

Lyme disease usually begins as a small, red (often "bulls-eye-shaped') rash. The disease can progress quickly to flu-like symptoms, chills, swollen lymph nodes and fatigue. Left untreated, the disease can lead to more severe symptoms months or years later, including arthritis, heart-rhythm irregularities, and nervous-system abnormalities.

Dr. Muscalus said it takes at least 24 to 48 hours for a tick to transmit the lyme disease infection, so early detection and prompt, proper removal of ticks is a very important prevention step. Ticks should be removed using fine-tipped tweezers, grasping the tick as close to the skin as possible and slowly pulling it straight out. An antiseptic or antibiotic ointment then should be applied to the wound. Never apply mineral oil, heat or any other substance that could cause the tick to inject the bacteria into the wound.

Always wash your hands after handling a tick.

Lyme disease is treated with antibiotics. Patients treated in the early stages of the disease usually. respond very well, and even those treated in much later stages usually recover satisfactorily — although a small number may have recurring symptoms or permanent joint damage.

Muscalus advises people who think they may have been exposed to a deer tick to consult with their doctor for proper diagnosis and treatment.

The disease was first identified in the U.S. in 1975, near Lyme, Conn.

The typical lyme disease season in Pennsylvania runs from May to November, with the peak months being June through September.

For more information on lyme disease, call the Department of Health's toll-free help line, at 1-877-PA-HEALTH, or visit the department's Website http://www.health.state.pa.us.

FB Applauds Tax Provision To Encourage Food Donations

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A bill approved by a House committee would result in more food for millions of hungry and needy Americans, in part by providing farmers who donate food to charities the same tax treatment as corporate donors, according to the American Farm Bureau Federation.

In a letter earlier to the House Ways and Means Committee, AFBF and a coalition of farm and hunger groups urged support for a provision of the Community Solutions Act of 2001 (H.R. 7). Specifically, the letter praised a section of the bill that "corrects current inequities in the tax code" to recognize charitable food donations from farmers at a level equal to that of corporate donors.

"America's farmers and ranchers have always supported hunger relief," the groups stated. "Although thousands of farmers and ranchers regularly donate products to hunger relief activities, the current tax law is a hindrance to their food donations in many ways."

The groups stated that the current tax code only provides corporations a "special deduction" for donations to food banks and excludes farmers, ranchers and other small business owners who donate.

"Under current law, if a major food company donates a truckload of unprocessed apples to a food bank and a local farmer donates a truckload of apples that he just harvested to the food bank, the food company would be eligible for the (special donation) but the farmer would not," the groups pointed out. "The current tax law is not only unfair, it is an obstacle to helping us feed the hungry."

As approved by the House Ways and Means Committee, Section 103 of H.R. 7 would realign tax laws governing donated food by extending the "special rule deduction" to all business taxpayers, especially farmers and ranchers. Section 103 also would increase this deduction to the fair market value of the donation.

A similar provision is in other pending measures, including the Good Samaritan Hunger Relief Tax Incentive Act (S. 37/H.R. 990) and the Tax Empowerment and Relief for Farmers and Fishermen Act (S. 312.)

In addition to AFBF, groups signing the letter included America's Second Harvest, National Cattlemen's Beef Association, National Farmers Union, National Milk Producers Federation, and United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association.

Scholarship Established For Animal Health Professionals

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — The National Institute for Animal Agriculture (NIAA) announced recently that it will award a scholarship, equivalent to one-half the tuition fee, to a deserving individual seeking to participate in the Science, Politics and Animal Health Policy Executive Fellowship Program.

The program is designed to mold mid-career professionals into the animal health leaders of the 21st Century by building their critical knowledge and skills. The fellowship program has three four-day modules examining animal health policy at the local, national and international level. Locations for the modules are East Lansing, Mich., the Washington, D.C. area, and an international location. This year's class, the third since the program began in 1998, will travel to Argentina for the international module.

"NIAA applauds the Michigan State University College of Veterinary Medicine, the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine and the University of Minnesota College of Veterinary Medicine for administering and offering this executive fellowship program," said NIAA Chairman of the Board Richard D. Hull. "We support the program's objectives and are proud to offer this scholarship."

In exchange for tuition assistance, the scholarship recipient will be assigned a project dealing with a contemporary issue affecting animal agriculture. The project will be mutually agreeable between NIAA and the scholarship recipient, who will perform approximately 50-75 hours of service for NIAA in completing the assignment. The recipient will be offered an op portunity to report his/her findings or results during the 2002 NIAA annual meeting.

"NIAA's scholarship validates the need for continuing education in the area of science, politics and animal health policy," said David J. Sprecher, DVM, coordinator of outreach activities for the Michigan State University College of Veterinary Medicine. "We hope that their leadership and initiative serves as a model for others to follow."

The NIAA Continuing Education Scholarship application deadline is Aug. 15. The recipient will be announced approximately 30 days later, and all applicants notified immediately thereafter. Application forms may be obtained on the Internet at www.animalagriculture.org or by calling (270) 782-9798. Additional information on the Science, Politics and Animal Health Policy Executive Fellowship Program may be obtained on the Internet at www.cvm.msu.edu/outreach.

American-Canadian Ag Economists Examine Digital Revolution

AMES, Iowa — Every aspect of society has been affected by the digital revolution — especially agriculture. The changes created by new technology in the global agricultural system will be examined in-depth at this year's joint meeting of the American Agricultural Economics Association (AAEA) and the Canadian Agricultural Economics Society at the Hilton Chicago Hotel, Aug. 5-8.

The principal paper session "E-Commerce and Agricultural Commodity Markets" will examine which types of e-commerce applications are adopted by major players in the agricultural commodity markets and why.

Rolf A.E. Mueller, a professor at the University of Kiel (Germany) with more than 20 years of study on electronic marketing, will survey the diversity in e-commerce agricultural exchanges and commodity markets.

Jeffrey Williams, from the University of California at Davis, will link e-commerce to what we know about the history and economics of organized commodity markets through the year.

Bruce Babcock, director of the Center for Agriculture and Rural Development at Iowa State University, and Eugene Kunda, senior economist in market and product development at the Chicago Board of Trade, will provide their insights on Mueller and Williams' findings.

An organized symposium featuring staff from the Economic Research Service of the USDA will examine "E-Commerce and Globalization of Agricultural Markets." This session will draw together practitioners, researchers and government officials from the U.S. and around the world to evaluate the role of e-commerce in U.S. and international agricultural markets and to define and prioritize a set of policy issues surrounding e-commerce in agricultural markets.

Fulton Breen poses his challenge to today's agribusiness leaders in "E-Commerce: Adapt or Die," the subject of this year's Industry Banquet. Breen is founder and chief executive officer of XS, Inc., the parent of company of XSAg.com, the leading agricultural e-commerce Website, and Nterline, a comprehensive e-commerce platform used by agribusiness.

Farm Bureau Hails Immigration Reform Bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An immigration reform bill introduced recently by Sen. Larry Craig (R-Idaho) could be valuable in providing legal workers for farmers and ranchers who need an additional labor force, according to the American Farm Bureau Federation.

"This bill represents an important step forward in the long-running debate on farmworker immigration reform," said AFBF President Bob Stallman. "Everyone knows farmers are struggling right now, and ensuring farm employers a legal labor force they can afford to employ will help these farmers survive until the farm economy improves.

"Passage of this bill will benefit farm employers, farmworkers and the farm economy," Stallman said. "It will reform the temporary worker visa program for agriculture, the so-called H-2a program, by streamlining the application procedure and making the requirement for immigrant employee wages uniform with temporary immigration programs for nurses, computer programmers and food processing workers."

The Agricultural Jobs, Opportunities and Benefits Security Act II (S. 1161) closely parallels a bill Sen. Craig introduced in the 106th Congress as well as compromise reform legislation. The compromise attracted broad bipartisan support but narrowly failed late in the congressional session in December 2000.

Sen. Craig's new bill would offer illegal farmworkers an opportunity to gain a legal work status. They would be required to work in agriculture for about 150 days per year in four out of six years. Once that work obligation has been completed, workers could apply for residency status to allow them to remain in the U.S. or travel freely between the U.S. and their home country. A similar worker applying for residency while in Mexico would have to wait about six years for his application to be processed, and would be ineligible to work while waiting.

Stallman said, "The Craig bill will make these workers legally eligible to perform a vital service to a basic American industry; otherwise, they'd have to wait in Mexico for their number to come up, while we need them to work on American farms."

Maryland DHIA Report For June

The June Dairy Herd Improvement information for dairy herds from the DHI processing center in Provo, Utah. The list includes herds from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. The information is listed by herd name, county association, number of cows in the herd and the average production per cow in the herd based on Energy Corrected Milk (ECM). ECM combines milk production and components.

The ECM formula is: (7.2 x lbs. protein) + (12.95 x lbs. fat) + (.327 x lbs. milk). To be included, the herd must have 10 cows averaging, 65 pounds or more of ECM per cow, per day. All herds reported are on official DHI or DHIR test. Also listed are the top 10 herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys, and Jerseys, and the top seven herds for Ayrshires.
